ROCKETEER RIPS SKY

Dare-devil Rides Powder Comet

Fritz Von Opel Flies for Six Miles at Immense Speed on His Fiery Steed

Emotions During First Trip Described and Five-Hour Globe-Girdling Seen

Fritz Von Opel, young German millionaire automobile builder and racing driver, yesterday made the world's first flight in a plane propelled by rockets. He flew six miles at a height of 250 feet.

Von Opel's machine is called the Sander Rake I. It is named after its constructor, Friedrich Wilhelm Sander. It weighs about 550 pounds plus a weight of 110 pounds in rockets, and has a wing spread of forty feet. The rockets used today were made of powder, but Von Opel expects to adopt a new liquid fuel invented by Sander.

The airman suffered a minor accident before his successful flight. The hair on the back of his head was burned off in two failures to rise.

Von Opel and other German scientists who have been experimenting with rocket planes believe they will do much to revolutionize present day aviation, and that the new machine will be an effective weapon against air raids in time of war. They also envisage a day close at hand when rocket planes will shoot mail across the Atlantic. Here is Von Opel's own story of his first flight.

BY FRITZ VON OPEL

(Copyright, 1929, by New York Times)

FRANKFURT (Germany) Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—My first rocket flight! You want to hear something about my impressions and emotions ten minutes after my flight, when I myself can scarcely grasp my joy. That other rocket flight of mine with a motor car at Avus was critical, too, but then at any rate, I had four wheels beneath me and I wasn't suspended between heaven and earth.

FRITZ VON OPEL

For today's flight I've trained for a year—to solve the problem of shooting an airplane aloft without a carriage or motor, but from rails and to drive this plane forward with rockets. All this now sounds simple, but prior to a year of actual training another year was passed in study and tests with models. But now the technical side is uninteresting.

Now, I suppose it's my emotions that count—what this poor mortal

STORY OF FORTY-YEAR WAR FOR A FREE CITY

Today Is Anniversary of "Times" Dynamiting, Turning-Point in Long Open-Shop Struggle

This is the first of a series of articles on Los Angeles' war for the open shop. Others will follow daily.

Nineteen years ago today, at seven minutes past 1 o'clock in the morning of October 1, 1910, the Los Angeles Times Building was completely destroyed by a clockwork bomb of high-power dynamite planted by an agent specifically assigned to the task by responsible officers of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers.

Of the twenty Times employees who lost their lives in the explosion, only a few were mercifully killed outright. The position of many of the charred bodies, taken from the ruins days later, showed that, frightfully injured, others had dragged themselves to the elevator shafts and other exits, found them blocked by fallen timbers and masonry, and had slowly burned to death in the holocaust that followed the dynamiting.

Churchill Harvey-Elder, assistant city editor of The Times, escaped from the building so horribly burned that he died in agony six hours later. Seventeen were more or less seriously injured, some of them maimed for life. The value of the property destroyed was in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Of the "Crime of the Century," as the dynamiting of The Times came to be known, the detailed story and its sensational sequels will be told in other articles to follow this. This, its anniversary, appears an appropriate time to draw attention anew to the immense significance of the event, and of the long chain of circumstances which led up to it, in the history of the development of Los Angeles. That significance lies not in the magnitude of the crime itself but in the fact that, through it, the real character of the sinister forces long aligned against the peace and welfare of Los Angeles ultimately was dragged to light. It was the turning point in a war of forty years for a city's freedom.

In this series of articles it is the purpose of The Times to set forth, for the first time in complete and connected form, the whole story of the long fight to establish and to maintain the open shop as the basic principle of Los Angeles industry and, consequently, as the foundation stone of the city's prosperity. Not because of the leading part which circumstances and abiding conviction have caused The Times to play therein but because it is only through a general understanding of the facts and their underlying principles that the results hard bought in forty years of unrelenting warfare can be preserved.

WAR NOT YET WON

For the war is neither over nor won. The forces which for four decades have sought by strategy and violence to enchain the industries of Los Angeles are far from being beaten or even discouraged by their long series of reverses. While their major attacks have met defeat on all fronts, they have made formidable progress in the "organization" of many key industries—holes in the dike which, in the absence of constant vigilance, can easily spread till the whole protective barrier is swept away.

By a coincidence, it is almost ex-

BANK LAWS ASSAILED

Congress Asked for Revision

Division of National Body at Bay City Wants Act on Mergers Changed

Speakers Say Regulations Peril Reserve System; Gavel Falls Today

Additional news of the bankers' convention will be found on the first page of the financial section of this edition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—A resolution to petition Congress to modify Federal laws so as to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions was adopted here today by the national banking division of the fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association. The first general session of the association convention will be held tomorrow.

The national banking resolution was adopted after George H. Hamilton, Wichita, Kan., had told the bankers in one of the leading addresses of the day that national banks are surrendering their charters at a menacing rate and thereby tending to undermine the Federal Reserve system.

LESS RESTRICTIVE

The reasons for this, Mr. Hamilton said, are mergers which have profited State banks more than national banks because "they have more clearly defined rights in trust departments" and advantages from an operating standpoint "under less restrictive State laws."

As a result the Kansas banker said he foresaw the list of national banks declining to a point where the Federal Reserve system will have only its own member banks as centrally controlled financial agencies unless laws are modified to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions.

Hamilton recommended that Congress strengthen the Federal Reserve Act and the McFadden law so there will be no question as to the right of the national banks to acquire trust company business through mergers. The division conference, after Hamilton finished speaking, approved his recommendation by resolution.

REVIEWS DIFFICULTIES

Previously an address by E. H. Sensenich, Portland, Or., had prepared the way for Hamilton's discussion. Sensenich reviewed the difficulties besetting national banks and recommended consideration of

REMEMBER THIS

You can't make trouble for others without having some left over for yourself.

Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, Sept. 30. [To the Editor of The Times:] The Democrats have issued an appeal to the country to help them in their fight against Mr. Hoover and the flexible tariff. They claim that it is putting too much authority in the hands of the President. The Republicans think that it is all right as long as it is a Republican President (and Mr. Hoover is just about the last Republican there is.) The whole thing just proves that the Democrats have very little confidence of ever getting a President, otherwise they wouldn't want to take away any of his authority. The way they feel about their chances they would just as soon abolish the office entirely.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

GENEVA JOB DESCRIBED

Shearer Recital Proves Lively

Spreading of "American Side of Story" Declared His Task at Parley

Clashes Mark Questioning; Shortridge, Presiding, Applies Curb

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Aggressive and voluble, William B. Sherer, the $25,000 observer for American shipbuilders at the unsuccessful 1927 naval conference at Geneva, told the Senate investigating committee today his job was "to get out the American side of the story."

"The strongest thing I ever said at Geneva was 'a treaty of parity or no treaty; 10,000-ton cruisers with eight-inch guns and no compromise,'" the naval propagandist asserted in denying flatly that he had broken up or asserted to have broken up the Coolidge parley.

For four hours the one-man torpedo-boat inventor and former night club promoter of London told his story, between sharp exchanges with the Senate investigators. Tomorrow he goes on to complete the picture of his work at Geneva and his subsequent quarrel with the shipbuilders, after which he filed suit for an additional $250,000.

CLASH MARKS START

Describing the investigation as "my own party," Shearer clashed at the outset with the Senators as he sought to tell his own story in his own way. Chairman Shortridge, who did most of the questioning, refused to give him command.

Shearer took issue with a number of witnesses whose testimony he has listened to for days and his use of descriptive adjectives again and again brought the crowded committee room into uproars of laughter.

Asked about statements by Drew Pearson, a newspaper reporter at the Geneva conference, quoting him as having said that the conference must not succeed, Shearer declared "I will say Pearson is a liar."

Shearer said he was for the success of the conference, provided there was parity with Great Britain, and that all members of the American delegation, so far as he knew, hoped for an agreement. He added that he knew of no member of the delegation who had worked against the success of the conference.

REEVES IN DENIAL

Earlier in the day Rear-Admiral J. M. Reeves, one of the American naval experts at Geneva, took the stand to deny the statements by Pearson that he had "frequently expressed the hope that the conference would not succeed."

"Any thinking, experienced American naval officer favors an agreement," said Admiral Reeves, "for a fair, just and equitable limitation of navies. I never expressed the hope that the Geneva naval limitations conference would fail. I never entertained such a hope.

"American naval officers in the event of war want an equal chance in battle. They recognize that a naval limitations agreement is the only means by which this equality can be realized."

For the first time the committee received today the much-talked-about document purporting to be Scotland Yard's record of Shearer. It also heard for the first time the story of the quarrel in 1928 between Shearer and the shipbuilders.

STORY OF SUIT THREAT

Shearer said that then Clinton L. Bardo, president of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation and one of his Geneva employers, told him that Frank B. Kellogg, then Secretary of State, had sent word to the Bethlehem shipbuilding officers that unless they got rid of Shearer the Department of Justice would go to court with its $15,000,000 war claims suit against the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Questioned by Chairman Shortridge, the witness sometimes would reply almost with a speech. He mentioned freely the names of

TEMBLORS CONTINUE IN HAWAII

Number Recorded in One Day 480 With Severest Lasting Hour and Half

HILO (Hawaii) Sept. 30. (AP)—Seismic activity, which has rocked the Island of Hawaii for twelve days and is declared to be the forerunner of eruptions of one or more of the island's volcanoes, shifted to the western slopes today where 480 quakes were recorded during the last twenty-four hours.

Thomas A. Jaggar, volcanologist, announced that his portable seismograph at Puu Waawaa, a village almost within the shadow of the volcano, Hualalai where Jaggar has been observing the activity, had registered the large number of tremors.

At Holualoa, between Hualalai and the volcano Mauna Loa, the heaviest earthquake since the activity began on the 19th inst. was felt. The shocks starting just before noon lasted an hour and a half. Although everything in the district was badly shaken, no great amount of damage was reported.

Prof. Jaggar discredited reports that lava was already flowing in one of the volcanoes, saying that he is having all three mountains closely watched for appearance of a flow or an eruption. Jaggar previously said that lava may appear either in Mauna Loa, Hualalai or Kilauea or in all three following the earthquakes, which he explained are caused by movement of lava beneath the earth's surface.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Radio station KNX at Los Angeles was granted a permit to increase its power from 5000 to 25,000 watts by the Federal Radio Commission today. The increase in power will make station KNX among the most powerful in the country.

The station, operated by the Western Broadcasting Company, will continue its present frequency of 1050 kilocycles.

MRS. GANN WINS SEAT ROW

Half-Sister of Curtis to Have Coveted Rank at Hoover Dinner for Premier MacDonald

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Mrs. Dolly Gann has won her fight for official recognition as second ranking lady of the land.

State Department officials announced today that Mrs. Gann, as official hostess for Vice-President Curtis, will outrank every American feminine guest at the formal White House dinner to be given next Monday night for Ramsay MacDonald, the British Premier.

Only Mrs. Hoover and Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the British Ambassador and doyenne of the Diplomatic Corps, will outrank Mrs. Gann at the dinner. According to Secretary of State Stimson, Lady Howard was placed above Mrs. Gann after Vice-President Curtis had "graciously" waived the rights of his official hostess to the second-best feminine position for this particular party.

Vice-President Curtis, State Department officials said, not only waived the rights of his official hostess in the interests of harmony, but informed Secretary Stimson of his willingness to accept any position at the dinner table which would help in making the occasion a success. As a result, Prime Minister MacDonald will be seated on the right of Mrs. Hoover, the place which normally would be assigned to the Vice-President.

The seating arrangements, as prepared and approved by the President and Mrs. Hoover, place Lady Isabella Howard on the right of Mr. Hoover and Mrs. Gann on his left. Mrs. Hoover will be seated directly across the center of the horseshoe-shaped table from her husband. On her right will be the British Premier, on her left the Vice-President.

No announcement was made to where Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the British Premier, will be seated. State Department officials explained that the Prime Minister had asked that no official precedence should be accorded Miss Ishbel. As a result she probably will be seated well down the table, but not so far down as Edward Everett Gann, husband of the Vice-President's half-sister.

Mrs. Gann's victory in her long

Craft Put Through Stunts Fatal to Most Machines in Ford Field Demonstration

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) Demonstration flights of what is pronounced by the designer and his associates as a "fool proof" airplane were made at the Ford Airport at Lansing, Ill., today. V. C. Babcock, an Akron (O.) engineer and a former war pilot, who designed the plane, brought it from Cleveland, and the flights were made before Maj. Ralph Royce, recently appointed Cook county aviation supervisor, and Capt. E. E. W. Duncan, air officer of the Sixth Corps Area. The ship was piloted by Ralph Thomas.

The officers and a large number of spectators watched the small ship, designed as a training and sport plane, crab fly, recover from stall positions, go into vertical banks at stalling speed a few feet from the ground, do stalled climbing turns and mush in for landings from a height of 500 feet and land without bouncing in approximately 100 feet to a standstill, all of which maneuvers usually are disastrous to the average ship or pilot.

The ship is a two-seater, semihigh wing monoplane weighing only 625 pounds with a wing spread of thirty feet and a total wing area of 120 square feet. It is powered with a 60-horsepower Lablonda motor. a 60-horsepower Lablonde motor. an hour and a cruising speed of 90 miles and a normal landing speed of 35 miles. PENSACOLA AREA HIT

Storm Sweeps Over Gulf

High Wind and Rain Level Trees and Wires, Driving Out Shore Residents

Gale Trails Into Alabama; Train Marooned and Shipping Halted

PENSACOLA (Fla.) Sept. 30. (AP)—The West Indian hurricane which has been sweeping out of the Gulf of Mexico from the Bahama Islands struck the mainland twelve miles east of here this afternoon. The hurricane attained a velocity of 102 miles an hour and averaged seventy-four miles an hour before it passed inland tonight over Northwestern Florida into Alabama. Whether the storm will diminish in force as it proceeds is problematical, although Observer E. W. Holcombe at Pensacola believed it will retain its intensity for several hours at least.

No deaths or injuries had been reported late tonight and the damage chiefly is confined to trees and telephone poles.

The city had been warned early in the day of the storm and precautionary measures were taken. Boarding up of store windows and other preparations were believed to have cut down the damage by the roaring gales.

Concern increased tonight for the safety of the cities and towns to the immediate east of Pensacola. Indications are that communication with that area will be impossible before morning.

WATERS BACKED UP

High tides and wind-blown waters backed up into the harbor of Escambia Bay and forced many residents of the fashionable bay shore section to seek safety. Numbers of persons living about the water front were moved by police to higher ground as the city took every precaution against casualties.

Rail and highway communications were precarious, with a Louisville and Nashville passenger train marooned at Milton, thirty miles east, where a stiff gale blew. Rising waters threatened to cut highway traffic from the city.

Little communication was had with several towns scattered through Northwest Florida on the western side of the Chattahoochee River, but all reports said winds of near-gale force prevailed and that drenching rains were falling.

Meanwhile, a fuller story was written of the havoc this peculiar storm wrought with shipping, especially in the Atlantic Ocean, where it beat over the Bahama Islands for nearly three days. Twenty-eight men of the crew of the Danish ship Scandia were landed at Miami by the Coast Guard which rescued them from their vessel. Seven men remained aboard the ship.

ISLAND BOATS SAFE

Both the Bahamian, Jacksonville to Nassau boat, and the Isle of June, Miami to Nassau, first believed foundered in the gales, are safe at Nassau. The Isle of June came into harbor after riding out the storm on the Bahama Bank with a broken rudder.

Coast Guard cutters plowed toward the Salina, Italian freighter, aground somewhere southeast of Jupiter, Fla., which still was reported in distress. Other craft were aiding the three men who remained, with the British steamship Dumira, aground off Great Abaco. The Garnet Hullings, which slipped off the reef at Gun Cay Sunday, is proceeding to Baltimore under her own steam.

Revised and official figures of the deaths taken by the hurricane at Nassau and New Providence Island, in which Nassau is situated, said only seven lives were lost. Destruction of property was restricted to the island of New Providence, said an official statement from the British colonial government at Nassau. The deaths did not include persons lost at sea in ships. The colonial officials declared that the only relief needed was for restoring

CHICAGO MAY DRAFT DAWES

Washington Hears Plan to Make Him Mayor to Clean Up City and Aid With World's Fair

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Washington heard today of a movement to draft Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to Great Britain, as a candidate for Mayor of Chicago in a spectacular campaign to clean up the Windy City.

It heard also that the sponsors of the movement seriously believe there is a good chance of inducing Mr. Dawes to give up his post in London, return to America and enter the Mayoralty race when the proper time arrives.

In some quarters there is a tendency to view the report as an absurdity. In others long accustomed to seeing the unbelievable happen in politics, there is hesitancy about dismissing it too lightly.

Those who have watched Gen. Dawes's colorful career and who know his impulsive nature pointed out that it is just the sort of thing he might do.

The Chicago Mayoralty campaign is more than a year off but the far-sighted citizens of the city of racketeers and "pineapples" already are planning for it. Political contests in Chicago have to be planned far in advance, and there are several reasons why the next one may call for more planning than usual.

For one thing Big Bill Thompson's regime virtually has bankrupted the city government.

It can't even meet its pay roll. There is a desire to remedy that condition. For another thing Chicago has become a by-word throughout the civilized world for lawlessness. Its picturesque gang wars and murders have advertised it in the most remote regions of the earth. They are getting ready for another world's fair in Chicago in 1933. They want to make it the greatest world's fair in history. But there is a widespread feeling among Chicagoans that a necessary prelude to the fair would be a thorough clean-up of the city so that prospective visitors may be assured that they will not be taking their lives in their hands in attending the exposition. And Dawes, they say, is just the man for the job of making the clean-up thoroughgoing and effective.

Father Ricard Sees But One Unsettled Period

Northwest States Facing Storms, Cleric Says

New Mexico and Arizona Rains Predicted

SANTA CLARA, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The Pacific Northwest and States adjacent to California on the east will experience storms of varying intensity during October, but California will enjoy fair weather all month, with one possible exception, according to the monthly forecast of Father Ricard.

His predictions:

October 1, 2, 3—A slight disturbance entering over British Columbia and the Northwest generally, which will simply pass to the eastward without affecting the weather on the balance of the coast. Arizona and New Mexico may see some sprinkles around the 2nd.

October 4, 5, 6, 7—Clearing and cold in the Northwest with a continuance of fine weather in California. Arizona and New Mexico will see some more heat.

FOGGY MORNINGS

October 8, 9, 10—Cold and foggy mornings in California, but a bit stormy in the North Pacific. Arizona again to be slightly disturbed.

October 11, 12, 13, 14—The storm in the north will continue to have its way without disturbing the fine weather in California. Arizona and New Mexico will continue to be proportionately disturbed on these dates.

October 15, 16—The storm over the Northwest will increase in violence and bring rain and even snow, especially over the mountains. The same for Arizona and New Mexico, as regards the rain. Still fair and cold in California.

October 17, 18—Still fair in California, but no change from the above conditions in the places mentioned.

October 19, 20, 21, 22—The above storm over the Northwest may find its way into California, either directly or via the Pacific. Low areas may enter from the south, threatening rain and with snow over our mountains. Arizona and New Mexico will again be intermittently disturbed.

INDIAN SUMMER

October 23, 24, 25, 26—Clearing over all the Pacific Coast and in Arizona and New Mexico, but with cold evenings and mornings.

October 27, 28, 29, 30—Another storm of moderate strength will enter over British Columbia and the conjugate of it over Arizona and New Mexico. California's weather will continue to be ideal for football.

October 31—Indian summer along the whole coast.

ARIZONA TRAIN-LIMIT SUIT BEING ARGUED

Where Hurricane Visited in One Florida Town
Although there have been few human casualties reported, the hurricane blowing from the Bahamas over the lower tip and up the east coast of Florida left its savage mark in extensive property damage. This is a view in Goulds, Fla., after the worst of the storm had passed over.

NASSAU (Bahamas) Sept. 30. (AP) (By Radio.) Broken in two by the hurricane, the British tanker Potomac, with a full fuel cargo, foundered off Northeast Andros Island Thursday, but her crew was saved. The mate of the Potomac arrived here by boat this morning. The crew is safely ashore at Adros, he said.

HEAVY GALE HITS PORTION OF ALABAMA

BREWTON (Ala) Sept. 30. (AP)—This South Alabama city experienced a fifty-mile-an-hour gale this afternoon, which uprooted several trees and damaged communication facilities. Torrential rainfall followed the blow. The wind had subsided to a fifteen-mile gait by nightfall.

The heavy wind and hard rain also were reported from Flomaton, twenty miles to the southeast.

STORM AREA TAKES STOCK OF DAMAGES

MIAMI (Fla.) Sept. 30. (AP)—The southern coast of Florida from Fort Lauderdale down to the island-studded straits which have Key West as their terminus today tabulated comparatively light property losses, some crop damage and temporary disruption of communication and transportation facilities as the aftermath of high winds attendant to the progress of the West Indian hurricane.

Weather conditions again were normal and business was being carried on as usual throughout most of the territory today. Known casualties in the entire area were limited to minor injuries received by approximately a score of persons from which most of the victims had recovered. The drowning of an aged negro woman in the keys was reported from several sources, but rumors of other fatalities remained unverified.

Fishermen, laborers, and some negroes living between the mainland and Key West are said to be in need of food and shelter, but relief expeditions are rapidly supplying their requirements.

Homestead, thirty miles south of here, and Fort Lauderdale, a short distance north of Miami, are the chief sufferers, although repairs to the damage at Fort Lauderdale are well under way today.

Damage caused by a freak cyclone which swirled out of the Atlantic at Fort Lauderdale Saturday affecting twenty-one buildings and inflicting cuts and bruises on more than a dozen persons, today is estimated at $150,000 by J. K. Huey, city building inspector.

It is feared that the crops in South Dade county and the Homestead sector have undergone heavy losses, but no accurate estimates of the damage are available. The hope of finding an immediate market for mature grapefruit and avocadoes blown from the trees encouraged growers.

DOCKS DESTROYED AT PANAMA CITY, FLA.

MOBILE (Ala.) Sept. 30. (AP)—The Mobile register's Dothan correspondent tonight reported the destruction at Panama City, Fla., of all docks, a wholesale grocery company's building, several fish houses and an ice plant by a storm which swept that section of St. Andrew's Bay and the Gulf of Mexico last night. No loss of life was reported.

The telephone company here reported all communication lines down to points east of Pensacola, Fla. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad announced the suspension of all traffic on its Pensacola to River Junction (Fla.) division because of the uncertainty of conditions of the tracks and lack of communication facilities. The hurricane crossed the railroad's line when it struck the main land approximately twelve miles east of Pensacola late today.

SENATE GRINS AT SHEARER

Propagandist's "Wisecracks" 'Amuse Inquisitors; Finds Bond With Shortridge in Career

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—William B. Shearer, pictured as the master propagandist in the disrupted 1927 Geneva naval limitation conference, began his day before the Senate court of inquiry today and held a continuous spotlight by his vigor and wisecracks.

He frequently ruffled the three Senatorial investigators by running far afield in his answers to simple questions, but just as frequently he had them roaring with laughter by his picturesque characterization of some of his accusers and his odd turns of expression.

Wearing a double-breasted blue suit, a blue necktie crossed with red stripes and tan shoes with inlaid cloth tops, the swarthy, stockily-built, big-navy advocate took the witness stand apparently keyed to a high pitch by his days of silent listening to the many who had told their versions of the story.

"William Baldwin Shearer, American, Christian, Nationalist and Protestant," was his machine-gun answer to Chairman Shortridge's first question asking for his name.

SHORTRIDGE SHOCKED

The dignified California Senator put his head slightly to one side in characteristic pose and looked up at Shearer over his thick-lensed glasses with a rather shocked expression. Then to the official reporter he snapped out the command: "Strike out all of that except the name."

Pointing an admonitory finger at the witness the chairman cautioned him to make his answer responsive.

"Quite, quite," the big-navy propagandist agreed, using a term which frequently was to fall from his lips during the more than four hours of his direct and cross-examination at the forenoon and afternoon sessions.

POSE ON STAND

Much of the time Shearer leaned forward with his left elbow securely planted on the edge of the long, green-covered table behind which the Senators sat with voluminous records piled before them. At other times he leaned even closer to his interrogators, gesticulating with both hands. Occasionally he puffed a cigarette and once or twice leaned far back in the soft-cushioned armchair.

Balked in his effort to tell his own story in his own way, Shearer questioned the fairness of the committee, remarking that everyone else had had the privilege of making a statement "including a stool pigeon for Great Britain."

Only a little later the witness, with a grin, was swapping experiences with Shortridge as embryonic Thespians. The Senator admitted the impeachment, saying he had been an actor "for one continuous night." Shearer lamented that he had essayed the "heavy" in "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" in a wet California town, and said with some show of pride that his audience not only asked him to come back, but "dared me to do so."

Acting was only one of many activities during his fifty years of life that Shearer told about. He was a night-club promoter and operator of a theater in London; a real estate dealer in the days of the recent Florida boom; a contractor; a mine operator; a Spanish-American War sailor; one-man torpedo boat inventor; lecturer, writer, and now, in his own words, qualified by the Senate investigation to be "a naval authority."

"PUMPKIN HERDER"

Referring to Clinton L. Bardo, one of his employers at the Geneva conference, as a "pumpkin herder," Shearer completely stumped the committee.

"What's that?" Senator Robinson of Arkansas was first to demand.

"Oh, this cowboy of the farm, as he told you about the other day," was the explanation.

Testifying about having had to post a $500 forfeit at New Rochelle, N. Y., when he visited a dock some years ago where a yacht was unloading whisky, Shearer observed ruefully:

GET FIRST PICK

"The police got the Scotch; they always get the good stuff."

Telling of his break with Bardo, Shearer said there had been some warm words and this prompted the inquiry whether he had ever threatened to kill anybody.

"I wouldn't threaten to kill anybody that owed me money," the witness retorted amid a roar of laughter.

Denying that he had ever referred to himself as the "bass drum," Shearer said that had been "pinned" on him by "the British secretary" of J. P. Morgan.

ROCKET FLYER TELLS OF TRIP

thought, say, ten seconds before he was shot into the air. I don't possess more courage than anyone else. I always have an uneasy feeling when I steer a strange car or boat. But gradually I gain confidence when my instinct follows my careful preparations and informs me everything is all right.

During the hour before this morning's start I inspected the course and personally went over every detail of the plane—cables, gears, fittings, rockets. I touched every single rocket and each wire. That was the most important of all. Two adverse ignition wires touching would mean the finish.

At last I gave orders to place the machine on the starting course. I climb into the narrow seat and am fastened thereto. I start the instruments, send the mechanics back and set the main gears. Now I've got the current in the wires and am ready to start. Sander runs to me and shakes hands once more. We have always co-operated so nicely. I can see he is worried about me. All will go well, I tell him—that's the great idea for which we have worked. Now my heart is beating, after all.

NOW HE'S OFF!

Visibility is not good. Clouds hang low over the valley. I must start right into that mist. I hesitate for a moment. Finally I draw a deep breath, then ignite. Tremendous pressure! I feel the machine racing forward. It tries to rear like a horse. I feel amidst the hissing of the charge that the wings may break under the immense pressure.

A short stroke and the machine jumps clear into the air. The suffocation and pressure relaxes and I can breathe again. I'm the master once more. I ignite and force the machine sharply upward. It mounts as if by giant forces. At the great speed I can hear only a distant, even roar. The landscape races beneath me. It's marvelous to fly like that driven by fire and gases only, which escape the nozzles at a speed of 8000 kilometers an hour.

When we are able to make full use of this gas we will fly around the world in less than five hours. I know that time will come and see like a vision the world traffic of the future which amalgamates all peoples of the globe into one.

Thus I race into space as in a dream, without any feeling for space or time. The machine practically flies itself. I scarcely need to touch the wheel. I only feel a boundless intoxicating joy of such flight as man never made before.

Suddenly—corresponding to the second with the time marked on my watch—every noise ceases. The force of the rockets has expired. Rough actuality—life—calls. I must return to earth. I press the machine to a steep gliding flight. Never before did pastures and meadows appear to me so earthly. I look for a landing place. I mount a row of trees in front of me with a reserve rocket, come into a slide, slip to within 150 feet of the ground, touch the ground, glide with terrific bumps along the ground—and stand still.

How curious is this feeling of standing still, quite still, immovable. I crouch into the seat numb and feel like crying. Is it the elementary joy to live or the joy of success or—regret that everything is over? Thus I sit still quite a long while. Then some people come, run around the machine, and pull me out like a moon calf. Where was my motor, they demanded. When I told them I flew with rockets they believed I was joking.

ROCKET CAR TEST AGAIN MADE BY VALIER

(Copyright, 1929, by New York Times)

ESSEN, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Max Valier, noted for his repeated tests with a rocket car, today made another attempt, using this time, however, liquefied gas instead of powder for the rockets.

The new vehicle consists of a long stretched carriage on four wheels on which three steel plates are fixed, behind which is contained the gas. Before starting the valves are opened and the gas escapes, thus driving the car far forward. Valier succeeded in developing a speed of sixty kilometers an hour which, according to his statement, was all he expected, his chief aim having been to test and demonstrate the new principle, which differs entirely from the old method.

Valier expects to beat all existing world records after the new method has been developed properly, especially with airplanes.

SHEARER GIVES DETAILS OF JOB

Clashes Mark Questioning; Crowd Gets Laughs

Story Slated for Completion by Witness Today

Charles M. Schwab and other men of prominence as among those he had been associated with or had talked with. He said he had discussed with Schwab employment with the shipbuilders for a merchant marine publicity campaign in November, 1926. The steel magnate previously had told the committee he did not recall any such meeting.

SPY REPORT ASSAILED

Asked about the report that he was a German spy, Shearer denied it and produced his life's history. He referred, however, to one of the witnesses before the committee as a "British spy" and as a "British stool pigeon." He was unsparing in his references to the shipbuilders—whom he charged with having used him and then having cast him aside.

Shearer said that he went to Geneva in 1926 "on my own" to attend the preparatory naval conference at the suggestion of naval officers in Washington, some one of whom sent to him in a franked Navy Department envelope information regarded as confidential and having to do with the prospective naval plans of Great Britain and Japan. This will be taken up by the committee later.

LOBBY QUERY ANSWERED

Asked if there was any American lobby at the triparty conference in 1927, Shearer said the "only American lobby I saw was that of Rockefeller trying to lobby us into the League of Nations." He added, however, that there were British and Japanese navy lobbies at the parley.

Shearer said he never disclosed at Geneva that he was representing the shipbuilders. When asked by Wythe Williams of the New York Times, and Henry Wales of the Chicago Tribune, whom he represented, Shearer said with some amusement that he told them he was there for a "Pittsburgh door-knob company."

"You know," Shearer added as the committee and the crowd roared, "the shipbuilders have to put doors on ships and the doors have to have knobs."

Shearer added that S. W. Wakeman, vice-president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, had maintained that Shearer's identity as a representative of the shipbuilders at Geneva should be kept secret.

RETURN FROM GENEVA

The witness said that on his return from Geneva he had told Douglas Robinson, then assistant Secretary of the Navy, that he had gone to Geneva for the shipbuilders.

Shearer produced, on request, the asserted Scotland Yard record of himself which he said he took from Albin E. Johnson, Geneva correspondent of the New York World. It read, in part:

"This man (Shearer) is a notorious associate of the international crooks and swell mosman, and is said to be well known to Pinkerton's Detective Agency, Chicago. He first came under the notice of the British police in 1904. He then was associated in betting transactions with one Baron Seidlitz, from whom he stole a check for £737. Shearer cashed the check by opening a banking account with it, immediately afterward withdrawing the whole amount. A warrant for his arrest was issued, but the loser was reimbursed and proceedings were withdrawn.

McCOY MENTIONED

"In 1912, Shearer was said to be associated with the boxer, Kid McCoy, and others in a theft of jewels from the Princess of Thurm and Taxis at the Royal Palace Hotel, Ostend. Shearer was arrested in Paris but escaped, like the rest of the accused, on grounds of insufficient evidence.

"Shearer's associates are said to have included the notorious crooks, 'Capt.' Arthur Hubert Allison James, alias Capt. Baby James' and Montague Noel Newton, who was recently very prominent in the 'Mr. A.' case. There are, however, no details as to his relations with these men or whether it was anything more than a friendship of thieves. He is said to have interested himself in gaming houses in the west end, and before leaving for America about the end of 1915 was largely interested in running a night club in Garrick street."

Asked by Senator Shortridge if he cared to answer the so-called Scotland Yard report, Shearer said he did not. He produced his life's history showing that his forefathers fought in the American Revolution. However, Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, asked Shearer about the report.

KNOWS KID McCOY

Responding to Robinson's questions, Shearer said he did know Kid McCoy, the boxer, and that he was with him in Belgium in 1912 seeking to arrange a bout with Georges Carpentier, the French fighter. He insisted, though, that he was not arrested in connection with the jewelry theft.

As for the theft of a check of Baron Seidlitz, Shearer said this involved a race track bet. He said the Baron was one of his betting commissioners. He went into a long explanation and said that when he was arrested in that connection in Paris upon the request of the British Embassy he made good £125 which he claimed another man had failed to deliver to Baron Seidlitz and that matter was dropped.

CAUGHT IN RAID

Shearer protested vigorously when Senator Shortridge asked him if he was arrested in New York for bootlegging and had forfeited $500 bond. The witness said he had been "taken" along with about sixty others at the dock at New Rochelle when a ship was unloading some Scotch whisky.

He said the word had gone about town that a ship load of Scotch was at the dock and that those who wanted some had gone down. He explained that he posted the $500 and forfeited it rather than go to trial because his family lived near by.

struggle for the best feminine position at Washington dinner tables is made particularly gratifying by the circumstance that the President himself arranged seating places. As a result of the White House decision Washington hostesses invited to the MacDonald dinner will have the choice of staying at home or accepting a position at the dinner table below that accorded their rival.

ALICE NOT THERE

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the Speaker and often mentioned as the most prominent critic of Mrs. Gann's social aspirations, is not now in Washington and probably will not be in Washington for the White House dinner. About ninety guests, including members of the Supreme Court, Cabinet members, Senators and Representatives, will be invited to the MacDonald function.

Mrs. Gann now has won all the major objectives set by the Vice-President last spring when he laid down the ultimatum to Washington society that his official hostess must be accorded the same rank as if she were in fact his wife, rather than his half-sister.

WINS WITH ENVOYS

"Dolly" Gann's first victory came on April 10, last when Sir Esme Howard, as dean of the diplomatic corps, announced that Ambassadors and Ministers would accord Mrs. Gann the same rank and privileges as if she were the Vice-President's wife. This decision came after Col. Stimson announced that the State Department would no longer act as a sort of "official secretary" for the hostesses of the capital. Official society generally followed the diplomatic precedent but Mrs. Longworth and a number of Senators' wives rebelled. As a result, the number of stag affairs and informal dinners mounted.

The society war smouldered this summer until announcement was made of the White House State dinner for Mr. MacDonald. Mrs. Gann left town and for a time it was thought trouble would be avoided. Mrs. Gann returned and this news thrust the disarmament angles of the MacDonald dinner into the background. James Clement Dunn, the President's adviser on matters of precedence, was overwhelmed with inquiries as to Mrs. Gann's status. But Mr. Dunn was not to settle this problem.

IMPORTANT NEWS

At this morning's conference with the press Col. Stimson said he had an important announcement—it was to the effect that Vice-President Curtis had waived the rights of his official hostess in favor of Lady Isabella. Col. Stimson expressed the opinion that the Vice-President had acted "graciously" in view of the fact that the diplomatic corps had decided in favor of giving Mrs. Gann a privileged position last spring.

The Secretary added that while he is not making a decision he assumes Mrs. Gann will outrank all other American hostesses at other functions when Mrs. Hoover is not present.

national supervision of all banks, possibly through the Federal Reserve System.

The national banking division acted on several other resolutions and committee reports. It also elected and installed officers for the coming year. John W. Barton, Minneapolis, Minn., was elected president. E. S. Wolfe, Bridgeport, Ct., was elected vice-president. Members of the executive committee also were chosen.

Taxation received attention at today's sessions, but a final expression of the bankers' opinions on that subject may await a general session of the convention beginning tomorrow morning.

SHOW NO PROFIT

The clearinghouse section heard a report of a committee on unprofitable services which declared that such services are costing the country's banks $300,000,000 a year. These services are given to include collection of subscriptions for charitable institutions, collection of school savings and fraternal dues, preparation of individual income-tax returns, free ticker tapes and weighing machines in lobbies, travel service and ticket bureaus and Christmas savings clubs.

The committee also listed as essential, but unprofitable services, the maintenance of armored cars, cashing of out-of-town checks for non-customers, check books, collection of notes, drafts and coupons, securing of credit information, investment advice, making up pay rolls, small checking accounts and safe keeping of securities for individuals and out-of-town banks.

The committee recommended service charges of various kinds as the best solution of the problem of unprofitable service.

The committee on standardization of checks reported progress in its campaign to eliminate waste by the use of uniform check sizes and arrangement of printed matter. It was noted that the United States Postoffice Department for the last six months has been selling window envelopes of a size suitable for the standardized checks measuring 3 and 3-8 by 8 and 3-8 inches, adding, "It also is significant that the government through its Treasury Department in adopting a new and smaller currency selected a size identical with that of the standardized bank pocket check."

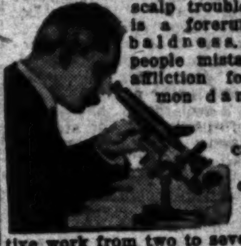
THOUSANDS FACE BALDNESS AND DON'T KNOW IT

Working Almost Secretly, Destructive Parasites of "Alopecia Pityrodes" Spread Disease Through the Scalp, Which Brings Baldness in From Two to Seven Years

Microscopic Examination Necessary to Determine Exact Cause of Hair and Scalp Trouble, Says Nationally Known Specialist

Records carefully kept over a period of 15 years show that a great percentage of people are afflicted with "Alopecia Pityrodes," a serious scalp trouble which is a forerunner of baldness. Many people mistake this affliction for common dandruff because the microbacilli quietly carry on their destructive work from two to seven years before any decided loss of hair is noticed and the first sign of baldness appears, says Prof. John H. Austin, over 40 years a bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist.



How Alopecia Pityrodes Destroys Healthy Hair

The trouble starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, commonly called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white dry or greasy scales—which leads to the falling of the hair.

This stage lasts from two to seven years, as a rule. At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated and the microbacilli multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald.

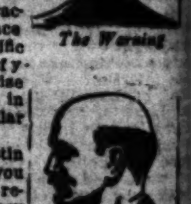
Science Has Discovered How to Stop Hair Destruction

Even when there has been a decided loss of hair, there are good prospects of staying the course of the ailment, and increasing the diameter and amount of the hair, provided the person troubled will persist in treatment. Prof. Austin has found that nature will fight long and well and if given help at the right time, will replace the lost hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair.

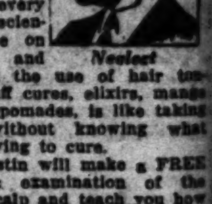
A Powerful Compound Microscope Reveals the Cause

The only way to tell the exact cause of hair and scalp trouble is by a microscopic examination of the hair and scalp. Prof. Austin, who has been with The Owl Drug Co. the past 15 years, has found that many people treat hair trouble without knowing what they are trying to cure, and, naturally, results are disappointing.

Prof. Austin does not trust to guesswork. A powerful compound microscope magnifies the microbacilli thousands of times and once the exact cause is determined it is then a simple matter to correct the trouble. Over 40 years of practical experience and scientific study qualify him to advise what to do in each particular case.



The Warning



Neglect

Prof. Austin says, and you will find it repeated in every important scientific treatise on the hair and scalp, that the use of hair tonics, dandruff cures, elixirs, mange cures and pomades, is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Prof. Austin will make a FREE microscopic examination of the hair and scalp and teach you how to treat your own case at home and save time and an expert's fee. Hours 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.—both men and women invited. Private Offices at The Owl Drug Co., Fifth and Broadway—[Advertisement.

WAR HISTORY OF FREE CITY

Forty - Year Struggle for Industrial Liberty

This the Anniversary of Its Crucial Battle

actly forty years since the first attack was made in Los Angeles on the open-shop idea, then little understood and less appreciated. Then industrially insignificant, Los Angeles saw little more than a local labor disturbance in the quickly defeated effort of the typographical union to dominate and control the printing industry here to a point where none but a union printer could get work.

It was not until the American Federation of Labor, smarting under a series of similar defeats, began to advertise Los Angeles throughout the country as the "scab city"—a place for union men and unionized industries to keep away from—that the potential significance of the open shop as a great industrial asset began to be appreciated. The boycott of Los Angeles, intended to blight the city's growth and to turn the westward tide of population and industry to the well-unionized city of San Francisco, had an effect exactly the opposite of that which its authors anticipated. It advertised the city, bitterly, contemptuously and effectively, as a place where unionism was in disrepute, where a worker need not be a member of a labor organization in order to get work and where employers were "unfair" in that they refused to bar skilled artisans from employment in their factories merely because they did not carry union cards.

THE BOYCOTT BOOMERANG

This campaign, carried on with venom and vigor, turned the eyes of industrial America on Los Angeles, especially in those eastern cities where the heavy hand of unionism had created serious disaffections in its own ranks. From these manufacturing centers commenced a steady drifting to Los Angeles of workingmen who were tired of being constantly called out on strike for inadequate reasons, tired of having union tribute arbitrarily deducted from their wages without their consent to pay large salaries to union officials and to maintain other workers in strike-idleness, tired of being "regulated" in every act by a walking delegate and especially tired of being told, as free Americans, where, when, how, for whom and for how much they could or could not work. They came to Los Angeles because this city was heralded as a place these things did not exist.

For the most part, these men were of exceptional qualities of character and sturdy American independence. They came to Los Angeles to escape what were to them intolerable industrial conditions and to gain personal freedom to work as they saw fit, much as the first settlers of New England came from the old country to escape religious intolerance and to gain personal freedom to worship as they saw fit. Like their hardy, selected forbears, these liberty-loving Los Angeles immigrants were the pioneers who laid the foundations for the future growth of their adopted land on lines of industrial independence and created a tradition from which their descendants have never departed.

There were a good many such and it was not long before Los Angeles acquired a reputation in national manufacturing circles as a city where there was a plentiful supply of desirable, skilled, free labor and where industry was largely exempt from the harassments of "labor troubles" and of unreasonable dictation of business conduct from extraneous, uninformed and usually unsympathetic sources. Manufacturers seeking locations investigated Los Angeles. When they found that, to these advantages, were added those of exceptionally favorable climatic conditions, cheap and abundant power, water and fuel, good transportation facilities, plenty of room and proximity to many basic raw materials, the industrial growth of Los Angeles began in earnest.

The story of that development will be told in greater detail in a later article. It is enough to say here that the record shows the open-shop factor to have been the one of chief importance in bringing about the phenomenal industrial growth of Los Angeles. It is obvious, for many other cities enjoy all our other advantages without having attained anything approaching a similar accretion of industry.

MENACE TO CLOSED SHOP

As this growth progressed, bringing every year new industries, more capital and greater population, Los Angeles advanced from the status of a mere irritation to that of an actual menace to the American Federation of Labor. Her wage scales were a convincing answer to the federation's declaration that her industrial prosperity was one attained at the expense of the workingman. Pay in all lines of industry not only matched the union scales but actually exceeded them in net return to the workers because unreduced by arbitrary levies in the form of dues, assessments and strike benefits. More important still, it was steady and unsubject to constant interruption by the growing frequency of strikes, sympathetic and otherwise. Artisans were contented under conditions which enabled each man to sell his labor in the best market and to earn as much as his individual ability permitted instead of being held down to the capacity of the least efficient, as the rule of unionism requires. Work was more plentiful because industry was free to take advantage of every opportunity for expansion, unhampered by an ever-present threat of labor tie-ups. Under circumstances assuring him of steady employment at good pay, the workingman was enabled to acquire his own home, to raise his standard of living, to provide for his dependents and to enjoy his share of luxuries.

Defections from the ranks of unionism to the open-shop conditions of Los Angeles increased. Union-ridden cities of the East grew constantly more restive under the iron rule of the Federation of Labor. They saw in Los Angeles a community free from the terrorism of strike violence and growing steadily and rapidly in population, wealth and industrial strength, largely by desertions from their own closed-shop factory districts by both workers and manufacturers. The example of Los Angeles has come to be a threat to the very existence of the conditions to the maintenance of which the American Federation of Labor is dedicated and upon which its own existence depends, together with the highly paid offices of a great number of union officials.

CAUSE OF THE WAR

Unionism early recognized the danger of the Los Angeles example to its cause and set about the task of removing the menace by unionizing the city. To that task it has devoted close to forty years of unremitting effort on the part of its ablest "organizers," a sum of money estimated at several million dollars and tactics which have stopped literally at nothing to gain their end. In turn, it has attacked every major industry of the city in an effort to bring it under the organization yoke, the principal ones repeatedly.

Each new assault Los Angeles has met and repulsed, more or less completely. It has never suffered a major defeat and today it is one of the few cities of America which is industrially free. Many local industries have among their workers considerable numbers of union members, but no industry is a closed shop—that is, one wherein only union men may be employed. The open shop—that industrial system which makes no discrimination between union and nonunion members—has been maintained as the industrial corner-stone of the city.

It has been war—war in which many lives have been lost, millions of dollars worth of property destroyed, other millions lost through suspension of production. The cost to the city has been great, yet its profit infinitely greater. The fruits of freedom will increasingly benefit the city—so long as that freedom is maintained. But, as in the past, the price of liberty will be unceasing vigilance.

The appalling tragedy of which today is the nineteenth anniversary was the turning point of the forty-year war because it brought home to Los Angeles the real meaning of misled unionism—the unionism of contempt for law and of rule by violence.

But since 1910 more than 1,000,000 new residents have come to make their homes in Los Angeles. Four-fifths of our present population, enjoying the benefits of the open-shop's guarantees of peace in industry, of prosperity and progress through community-exemption from industrial turmoil, has no knowledge from personal experience or observation of how this happy condition has been brought about or by what means only it can be maintained—through united, active support of the open shop by every element of the city's life.

It is to that four-fifths that this brief history of Los Angeles' industrial war is particularly addressed. In tomorrow's article The Times will seek to make clear exactly what the open shop is, what it means not only to Los Angeles but to industry everywhere and why the American plan, as it is justly called, is worthy of the support of every fair-minded American.

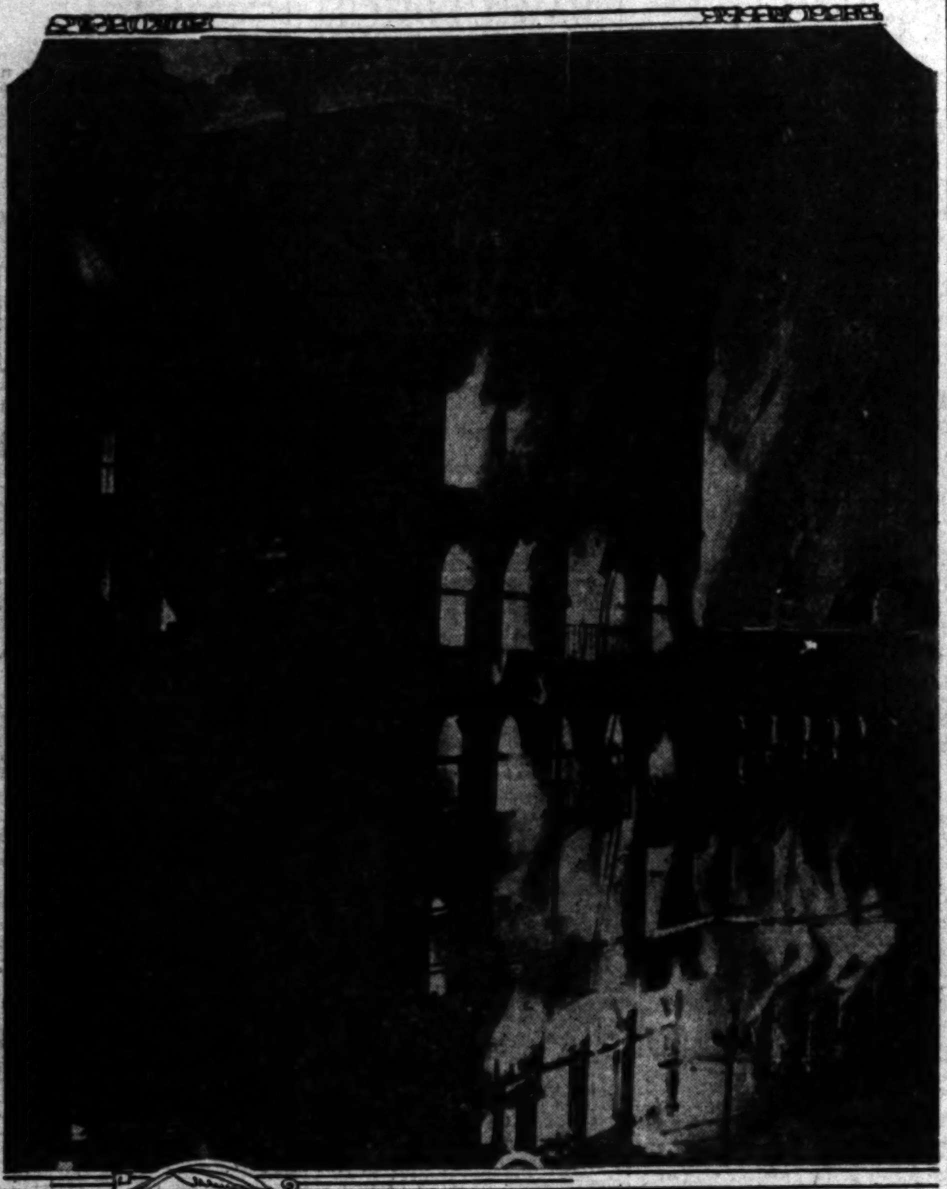
Turning Point in Long Struggle for Open Shop Here



The Times Building Eight Minutes After It Had Been Dynamited

This photograph, made from a point on North Broadway, above the Times Building, gives some idea of the incredible rapidity of its destruction from the combined effects of the dynamiting and fire caused by the bomb's breaking the gas mains. Five minutes after this picture was made the walls in the foreground collapsed due to the shearing through of the interior steel girders by the force of the explosion. At that time, 1910, the Times Building was three stories high, above the pavement, in front, and six stories high in the rear.

Bandits Tunnel Way Into Bank

OAKLAND, Sept. 30. (AP)—Two men stole $9500 today from the American Trust branch at East Fourteenth street and Seventy-third avenue after tunneling their way into the place, binding and gagging two janitors and then awaiting the arrival of officers, who were forced to open the vault.

Oakland police this afternoon arrested Adam Dacosta, who, they said, admitted he is one of the bandits who robbed the branch. He had $2000.

Police said he resembles some of the men involved in the Rodeo branch of the bank of Pinole hold-up.

GEN. BROWN ON LIST CONFIRMED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The nomination of Brig.-Gen. Lytle Brown to be chief of the Army Engineer Corps, with the rank of major-general, was confirmed today by the Senate. The Senate also confirmed William Graham Everson of Indiana as chief of the militia bureau with the rank of major-general. Other nominations confirmed included those of Clarence M. Young of Des Moines as assistant Secretary of Commerce, and William L. Cooper, as director of the Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bureau in the Department of Commerce. Young succeeds William P. MacCracken, Jr., and is in charge of aeronautics in the department.

BODY OF ENGINEER TAKEN TO OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Sept. 30. (AP)—The body of Charles Lincoln Carpenter, American engineer, who died unexpectedly on a canoe trip, is here awaiting transportation to his home in Andover, Mass. Mr. Carpenter, who was 62 years of age, entered the wilds of the upper Gatineau with a party intending to make a month's trip. He died of heart disease in camp Saturday. On a roughly made stretcher, five Indian guides transported the body to Maniwaki.

FALL IN CAPITAL TO STAND TRIAL

Accused ex-Secretary Fears Washington Climate

Plans to Ask Dismissal of Bribe Indictment

E. L. Doheny Also There as Defense Witness

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Physically tired but with eyes bright and voice strong, Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in President Harding's Cabinet and central figure in the naval oil leases cases, was back in Washington today to stand trial again after two years spent in the Far West in search of health.

The one-time Senator and Cabinet member said he looked forward with confidence to his trial next week, on charges of receiving a bribe from Edward L. Doheny in issuing the latter a lease to the Elk Hills (Cal.) reserves, but maintained a dubious attitude toward his health while away from the high, dry air of Texas and New Mexico.

FEARS CLIMATE

"I hope to get back soon," he said. "This Washington climate never did agree with me. The Congressional Record will show that I absented myself from the capital nearly every winter, but despite that I had one or two pleurisy attacks each year."

With Fall on his return to the capital were his wife and two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Chase and Mrs. Jouett Fall Elliott. His early arrival, a week in advance of his scheduled appearance before the District of Columbia Supreme Court, was explained today in a surprise move by his attorneys.

Fall will move the court for dismissal of the bribery indictment, Frank Hogan of his counsel explained, and the defendant confirmed the statement that he personally will ask Justice Hitz on Wednesday to set aside the indictment as one constituting double jeopardy.

Fall said his petition will be based on the acquittal he and Doheny received on their trial for conspiracy, when, he added, the full story of the $100,000 loan brought in the celebrated "little black bag" was threshed out.

DOHENY THERE

Fall's group in Washington is completed by his family physician, Dr. H. T. Stafford. At another hotel are Doheny and his wife who arrived today from Chicago. They will be defense witnesses, and next to Fall, Doheny probably is the most interested in the outcome of the trial, for whether he will be brought to trial on the same charge depends on the government's success or failure in the Fall indictment.

Other defense witnesses summoned include Secretary of the Navy Adams; George Curry, former Governor of New Mexico; Dr. H. Foster Bain, former Director of the Bureau of Mines, and a number of officers of oil companies and representatives of the Navy and Interior departments.

The prosecution has called Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General; Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post; Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad; Dr. George Otis Smith, head of the Geological Survey, and a score more of government office holders and others.

INTERVENTION PLEAS ON RAIL LINE GRANTED

COTTON RELIEF PLAN REVEALED

Senate Committee Hears Oklahoma Man

Farm Board Appaintee Faces Quiz on Ability

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Plans for another gigantic co-operative marketing corporation, this one to dispose of cotton, were presented to the Senate Agriculture Committee today by Carl Williams of Oklahoma, who represents cotton on the Federal Farm Board.

Such corporations have been advocated for other principal commodities by board members who preceded Williams during the examination as to their qualifications to hold office, illustrating the board's intention of developing and expanding the co-operative marketing movement.

TELLS OF PLANS

The Oklahoman testified that when the cotton co-operatives have banded together so that 50 per cent of the crop is marketed through a national sales agency, "a very decided progress" will have been made toward stabilizing cotton growing. He said that within five years he expected 25 per cent of the crop will be marketed co-operatively.

Williams told the committee of progress made by the American Co-operative Cotton Growers' Exchange toward becoming a sales agency as he advocated. He said only 10 per cent of the cotton grown now is marketed co-operatively, but he expected the association, through organization and financial assistance to be given by the board, to develop into a national sales corporation necessary to bring about higher and more stable prices.

REGULATE FLOW

If cotton growers succeed in organizing to handle a substantial portion of the crop, Williams said, it can regulate the flow, put it where it is needed, when it is needed, and in the quality desired and consequently command a profitable price for it.

In response to questions by Chairman McNary of the committee, Williams testified that he was without "actual" experience as a producer in farming or marketing cotton. He said he had devoted years of effort to building up co-operatives as editor of the Oklahoma Farmers' Stockman and was intimately in touch with the problems of cotton growers wherever the crop is grown.

Today's hearing was cut short by other engagements of committee members and Williams may resume his testimony tomorrow.

A Powerful Compound Microscope Reveals the Cause

The only way to tell the exact cause of hair and scalp trouble is by a microscopic examination of the hair and scalp. Prof. Austin, who has been with The Owl Drug Co. the past 15 years, has found that many people treat hair trouble without knowing what they are trying to cure, and, naturally, results are disappointing.

Prof. Austin does not trust to guesswork. A powerful compound microscope magnifies the microbacilli thousands of times and once the exact cause is determined it is then a simple matter to correct the trouble. Over 40 years of practical experience and scientific study qualify him to advise what to do in each particular case.

The Warning

Prof. Austin says, and you will find it repeated in every important scientific treatise on the hair and scalp, that the use of hair tonics, dandruff cures, elixirs, mange cures and pomades, is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Prof. Austin will make a FREE microscopic examination of the hair and scalp and teach you how to treat your own case at home and save time and an expert's fee. Hours 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.—both men and women invited. Private Offices at The Owl Drug Co., Fifth and Broadway.—[Advertisement.

OLDEN QUARREL MAY BE HEALED

British Look for Settlement of Ancient Dispute

Hope Hoover and MacDonald Broach Sea Freedom

Agreement Held Vital Step in Naval Reduction

BY EDWARD L. JAMES

[Copyright, 1929, by New York Times]

LONDON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) The hope persists in London that Hoover and MacDonald will attack the problem of freedom of the seas. Insistent hope is based on the opinion that they ought to; that in preparing combatant parity for the two navies it would be working toward peace to deal with the one cause likely to place their parity in combat.

In many quarters this idea is expressed, in spite of the discouragement the suggestion has received from MacDonald's silence since elections on the subject he was so emphatic about during the campaign, and also from Hoover's known disinclination to discuss the matter at a moment he apparently considers unpropitious.

TIME TO SETTLE IT

It augurs well for the relations of the two great sea powers that so many Englishmen think the rules of the sea in time of war should be considered by the two chiefs. Britain knows that for more than a century we have opposed what has been her conception of freedom of the seas. She must know that any negotiations on the subject cannot lead to out-and-out acceptance of her position. Wherefore she must be ready to go part way to meet America.

If it be true that increasing power on the seas has modified the United States view as to how fleets may be used in wartime, that ought to bring progress in the direction of what has been the British position, and, indeed, what Americans have chosen to make their position whenever at war.

Interestingly enough, MacDonald does not believe in the British historical claim to the right to exercise blockade on the high seas. He holds the seas ought to be free except when closed by agreement among nations in fulfillment of international commitments. He would be quite willing to assume the position that sea commerce should never be interfered with except in enforcement of the Kellogg pact. Whether or not such a proposition would interest Washington must remain to be seen.

QUESTION RECURS

Several times the suggestion has been put forward that England and America should agree that the Atlantic be free to the commerce of both nations in time of war, and—what is more difficult to realize—that the two countries co-operate in time of a crisis to see that the rule is observed. Thus we see the English backers of this suggestion would get in return for a concession on their position a sort of guarantee of the safety of their food supplies from overseas.

The Observer today says that Hoover and MacDonald "will handle a greater affair—nothing less than the whole meaning of sea law and sea power." It adds: "It is not an accident that the sea has been the theater for the most implacable rivalries. For the sea divides. It permits contradictory systems to grow up on opposite shores and when at last they reach out and meet on its waters they must needs clash because they are too well established to be flexible. So it was in the common history of Britain and America a century and a half ago, but so it will not be now."

RIVALRY ABSURD

The Sunday Times argues that in any future war—provided it is not between the two countries—England cannot be blockaded if her communications with America are open, and the same applies to America. Therefore, they should have identical interests. If that idea is so, competitive rivalry becomes absurd. What is important is that we should get together and have sufficient force to protect our common interest. Relative proportions are a matter of convenience and arrangement, not of controversy. The paper says then the two nations should agree on the freedom of their commerce on the Atlantic in time of war, "and make common cause against any interference with it."

It is not difficult to understand England's interest in this issue. It cannot be forgotten on this side of the Atlantic that American naval building, which now promises parity with England, started from the time of difficulties with England over sea commerce in 1915 and 1916. At that time Britain could have had her way, because her fleet was stronger. Should a similar dispute again arise and the American fleet be as strong as England's, a situation is foreseen of a nature which makes many Britishers think it ought to be dealt with in advance.

PART OF PROGRAM

Respect is shown here for Hoover's wish not to broach the subject in all its importance now, but as the Sunday Times says, "It is not, of course, suggested that MacDonald has gone to America to discuss freedom of the seas with the President. But discussions of naval disarmament with America cannot last very long without the subject arising in some form or other. And if naval disarmament is ever to become a civilizing and rationalizing force in international affairs, its strongest impulse would come from an agreement between England and America on this old subject of dispute."

And it may be taken for granted that the opinion of America's distinguished guest has not changed since last April, when he expressed the opinion that political co-operation between England and America can never be obtained until the issue of freedom of the seas is settled between them.

MacDONALD GRANTS REPORTERS AUDIENCE

S. S. BERENGARIA, Sept. 30. (AP) On the third noon hour of his voyage to the United States, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain granted his first group reception to the bevy of British and American newspapermen who are accompanying his party.

After an informal conference with them, all took lunch together.

Mr. MacDonald received with gratification a message of greeting and good wishes for his visit in America sent by the British Labor party conference now in session at Brighton.

The voyagers thus far have enjoyed good weather.

Sargon's Fame Spreads Over Entire Nation

When Sargon was first given to the world, well known authorities predicted it would become one of the great outstanding, health-giving remedies of the age. They knew that the new revolutionary discoveries on which it was based represented some of the latest findings of Medical Science.

They predicted it would be a great boon to humanity, but the men of science who labored for years to perfect it little dreamed that Sargon would become a household word throughout the country in so short a time.

Sargon is fulfilling its great mission. The marvelous results it is accomplishing cannot be questioned. According to the statements of people everywhere who have actually put it to the test, it is restoring literally hundreds of thousands of weak, rundown, half-sick, discouraged men and women by some of the latest and most advanced methods known to Medical Science. In short, Sargon is bringing a new era in the field of modern medicine.

The demand for this new epoch-making formula is probably without parallel in the history of the drug trade. In the State of California alone, it has required sixteen solid carloads of Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills in the past four months and, at the present rate, it will require over one million bottles to supply the people of California during the first twelve months after it was introduced.

One big New York firm, with wholesale branches in leading cities, is selling at the rate of more than one million bottles a year—or to be exact, they have sold and distributed 908,184 bottles in the past eight months.

Kansas City wholesale and retail firms have sold over 300,000 bottles within twelve months, or an average of almost one bottle for every family in the whole State of Kansas. Texas dealers required nine carloads the first four months. In the Northwest, the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been selling at the rate of over $100,000 per year, to say nothing of the immense wholesale distribution. Sales in other sections have been correspondingly large.

Back of Sargon's triumph in the drug stores is Sargon's triumph in the homes. When a suffering man or woman finds a medicine that helps them, they invariably tell their friends about it and, in this way, the fame of Sargon is spreading from coast to coast, sweeping the country like a great tidal wave.

No matter where you go—North, East, South or West—Sargon is bringing health to thousands and many foreign countries are now clamoring for it.

The special Sargon representative at the Owl Drug Store, 6th and Broadway, is explaining the merits of this revolutionary new medicine to hundreds daily. Sargon may also be obtained at all Owl Drug Stores in Los Angeles and other cities.—[Advertisement.]

Admiral Takarabe Sets Out Aims of Nation

Greater Cruiser Ratio Held Prime Requirement

Parity in Submarines Also Unshakable Tenet

[Copyright, 1929, by New York Times]

TOKIO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The Japanese government's naval policy today received the approval of the highest authorities of the empire. As outlined by Admiral Takarabe at a notable conference, Japan's policy corresponds closely with forecasts already cabled to America and Europe.

Takarabe described Japan's general aim as reduction of naval armaments coupled with maintenance of a ratio adequate to her defensive requirements. Japan's policy as outlined today follows:

First, she agrees to the postponement of battleship replacement, but desires arrangements which will prevent her dockyards from being crippled.

Second, she asks for a 70 per cent ratio in cruisers and cannot abate that figure in either class.

Third, she opposes the abolition of submarines and claims parity in this weapon.

Fourth, she considers that the conversion of merchantmen should be restricted.

Those who attended the conference included members of the Supreme War Council, past and present Ministers of the War and Navy present parliamentary Secretaries of the War and Navy departments, principal executive officers of the War Department and the admiralty officers of both general staffs.

After Vice-Admiral Sakonji explained the effect of the Anglo-American proposals the conference approved Takarabe's exposition of Japan's policy.

The Union Oil Company, backers of Miss Crosson's flight, was held to be in the capacity of employer and ordered to pay the award.

LOST BALLOON IN RACE LANDS

Capt. De Muyter Fails to Win Fifth Victory

Americans Take Three First Places in Classic

Distances Covered Less Than Previously

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30. (AP)—Capt. Ernest De Muyter, winner of four Gordon-Bennett races and only balloonist personally to win permanent possession of the trophy, failed in his quest for his fifth victory when he landed at 8 o'clock last night at Corydon, Ind., 230 miles from here, where the eighteenth renewal of the international classic started Saturday.

His balloon, the Begilca, was the last of the nine entrants to be reported down and left the three American entrants first, second and third. With the winner to be decided between Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear VIII, and twice winner of the race, and Capt. William E. Kepner, pilot of the United States Army balloon and last year's victor. On unofficial measurements Van Orman held a lead of a few miles.

Distances covered by the eight balloons reported ranged from 160 to 347 miles, which are less than in any previous international race. Heretofore the low figure was 384 miles from Paris, France, to Bridlington England, in 1913. The world's long distance record is 1334 miles established in 1912 by Maurice Bienamie of France in a flight from Paris to Moscow.

The United States entries, all of which landed in Ohio, finished one, two and three among the nine balloons reported.

[Copyright, 1929, by Chicago Tribune.]

CAPETOWN (South Africa) Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The menace of sleeping sickness carried by the tsetse fly among cattle and big game has caused the South African government to order Entomologist Harris to destroy thousands of head of big game in the Zuzuland reserves, according to messages received here.

Six hundred head of big game were slaughtered in August and since June, when Mr. Harris was appointed, 1500 have been slaughtered.

Many farms, the correspondent says, were ruined by the ravages of the fly, the settlers giving them up to the natives.

MEXICAN SAVANT HONORED

Biography Pays Belated Tribute to Man of Letters Much Slighted by History

BERKELEY, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Calling attention to one of the greatest scholars in the entire western hemisphere who has, to a great extent, been overlooked by historians, Dr. Irving A. Leonard, associate in Spanish at the University of California, has published a biography on Don Carlos De Siguenza Y Gongora (1645-1700) of Mexico City.

Dr. Leonard points out that in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Mexico City and the Royal University of Mexico were the centers of the highest culture in the new world, and that of the small group of scholars and scientists who contributed to this culture Don Carlos was one of the greatest.

He said:

"The few authorities who have discussed this interesting figure, who has been called by an eminent authority 'one of the most illustrious men that Mexico has produced,' have contented themselves largely with repeating one another; comparatively few of Siguenza's writings have survived which throw much light on his life, and other documents are equally rare. But from these scattered and fragmentary sources, including the works of contemporaries, it is possible to piece together a fairly clear picture of this man who must occupy a prominent place in any adequate treatment of the cultural history of colonial Mexico."

IT'S THE CUT OF YOUR CLOTHES THAT COUNTS

Better Health Through Better Sleep

When you arise do you feel "drugged?" Are you depressed at the beginning of the day, just when you should feel at your very best? Many people feel this way as the result of poor sleep, due to our modern nerve-taxing mode of living. What you probably need is some real sleep, and you can get it by folowing a simple, drugless plan which has now been discovered.

This new plan, like all worthwhile remedies, is the result of long study. No special treatment is required. You simply drink a certain kind of broth just before retiring. You can prepare this yourself by using the marvelous new food ingredient called Vegex. A hot Vegex broth will help you enjoy the most wonderful night's rest you have had in a long time. Then, in the morning what a surprise! You will see the vast difference between the healthful, relaxing sleep that nature intended and the poor makeshift which many people nowadays call sleep.

This safe and natural way to promote sleep marks the triumph of a new idea. Insted of drugging the system, Vegex merely supplies it with an important food element of which it is robbed by our modern diet, Vitamin B. By making up this deficiency, Vegex helps the system back to a healthier condition, reducing nerve tension and promoting normal sleep.

Before taking questionable tonics or medicines, first see what honest-to-goodness sleep will do. One week's trial with Vegex will show surprising results. A jar of Vegex, sufficient for this test, costs only 15c. Your leading grocer or druggist has it.

Department to Pigeonhole Results of Quiz

Secretary Says Policy Due to Fear of Suits

Legislation to Give Court Power Favored

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Secretary Lamont said today the result of the Commerce Department's investigation into the crash of the Transcontinental Air Transport plane, City of San Francisco, will not be made public. The transport ship fell several weeks ago in the mountains of New Mexico with a loss of eight lives.

The Secretary of Commerce said the policy of not making public findings after investigations of airplane mishaps is because the department is not protected by legislation against damage suits in the event the findings should be proved erroneous.

Secretary Lamont added he believed the public interest is better served under this procedure than if the results were announced.

Referring to the proposed legislation to give the Department of Commerce authority to hold hearings and to subpoena witnesses in its investigations, the secretary said that plan might be desirable and that a large number of persons believe it will be better than the present system.

The department investigates all airplane accidents as a measure of preventing future accidents, but has not made public findings. However, at regular intervals it issues reports giving the general causes of the accidents.

SENATOR WANTS I.C.C. TO CONTROL AIR TRAVEL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—Senator Bratton, Democrat, New Mexico, announced today in the Senate that he was preparing and will shortly introduce legislation to place air commerce under supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Bratton's statement was made after the Senate had failed to act on his resolution to investigate the crash in New Mexico of the Transcontinental Air Transport plane, City of San Francisco, in which eight persons lost their lives.

VILLAGE BURNS AS MULE BALKS

Blaze Sweeps Town When Temperamental Water Carrier Sulks

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 30. (AP)—Djelalier in the Province of Silivri, a small Black Sea town, depended upon a mule to carry water for its fire department.

Today, in a period of urgency, the mule balked and so delayed combating a small blaze. It developed into a conflagration which destroyed sixty-two houses, twenty granaries and many cattle.

STOCKTON LAWYER LOSES LIBEL SUIT

STATEMENT IN LEGAL BRIEF BY RIVAL ATTORNEYS CAUSE OF ACTION

STOCKTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—A. H. Carpenter, local lawyer, today lost his suit against two San Francisco attorneys and several firms in which he asked $75,0000 damages for asserted libel in a California Supreme Court brief.

Superior Judge Young on motion of the defense counsel ordered the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of the defendants, giving them each $100 attorney fees to be paid by Carpenter.

A total of $700 in attorneys' fees must be paid by the Stockton barrister. The defendants were Lasher B. Gallagher and A. E. Cooley and the law firm of Cooley & Gallapher of San Francisco; E. M. Evick as an individual, and E. M. Evick doing business as the Yellow Cab Company of Stockton; Pernau-Walsh Printing Company, which printed the brief and Cosgrove & Co., Inc., both of San Francisco. The latter had been eliminated through nonsuit.

Carpenter asserted that the defendants repeated in the Supreme Court brief the record of his being called a suborner of perjury by Gallagher in a crash trial in Superior Court here. He indicated that he will appeal from Judge Young's decision.

FORTY REDS JAILED IN BELGRADE RAID

BELGRADE (Jugo-Slavia) Sept. 30. (AP)—The police yesterday arrested forty persons, including two state officials, accused of being communists and having plotted to plunder the Belgrade postoffice. A communist named Brazan Brazanovitch, who had been in custody since last week, was shot dead by police as he was being escorted to a suburb of Belgrade for an investigation. The police said he attempted to escape.

LAWS IN MINING UNDER DEBATE

Blue Sky Legislation Topic at Spokane Convention

Illinois System of Regulation Assailed and Defended

Discussion Started by Stand of Oregon Delegate

SPOKANE, Sept. 30. (AP)—Blue sky legislation, by which States regulate the mining industry, was assailed and defended today at the joint convention of four American mining associations when Dr. James Hance, dean of mines at Oregon State College, advocated such laws for the betterment of the industry.

The discussion was carried to the floor, where several hundred delegates to the western division, American mining companies; the Northwest Mining Association, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, criticized the methods of the Illinois Blue Sky Commission as explained by Hance.

Dr. Hance, a former examiner for the Illinois body, affirmed that millions of dollars were saved each year by the blue sky laws—enough money, he said, to pay the cost of Illinois's hard road system once every three years.

"The blue sky laws encourage the honest investor," he stated. "The careful scrutiny which the States give to mine promotion enables the investor to choose good properties."

The policy of the British Columbia Department of Mines toward mining promotion had been explained by John D. Galloway, Victoria, B. C., an official of the department, as freedom to promoters so long as their representations are honest, and "pitiless publicity," by the department when false assertions are made.

"It is not believed possible," he said, "that mining promotion can be made 100 per cent pure by means of legislative enactments, but that the white light of publicity will effectively kill off palpably dishonest promotions."

Beet Workers Burned to Death

FORT COLLINS (Colo.) Sept. 30. (AP)—Three Mexican beet workers were burned to death in a two-room shack on a farm several miles south of here yesterday. They were identified today as Catarino Gonzales, 20 years of age, Fernandez Gonzales, 19, and Enastico Gonzales, 26.

Catarino and Fernandez Gonzales were brothers and Anastico Gonzales their cousin.

LOSS IN AUTO THEFTS RUNS INTO MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) A value of $81,200,000 was represented by 116,000 automobiles stolen in the past year, according to figures compiled by the Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Insurance Company. Of the total approximately 85 per cent were recovered, leaving a net loss from theft in the neighborhood of $12,000,000. Reducing this figure to averages it means that the loss from theft, apportioned equally among all the automobiles in the country, is less than $1 a car a year.

Are you an "Individual" ... or an "Average" Person?

LAWMAKERS, in devising the rules which govern the disposition of the estates of persons deceased, have necessarily taken into consideration the "average person".

If you make no Will, then the law will govern the disposition of your Estate, under the assumption that what would suit the average man or woman would suit you ...if you still had any voice in the matter.

Most people, who have acquired any considerable amount of property, are not average persons. They have their own ideas as to the uses of their money, and the purposes to which it should be devoted. They want to make a Will, and they want to name an Executor who will carry out their wishes and intentions.

Have a lawyer draw your Will. Have that Will name Security-First National Bank as your Executor, and as Trustee and Guardian of property if such provisions seem necessary. Then you will have achieved something above the average, both in the manner of doing, and in the certainty of proper accomplishment.

BORGER TROOPS JAIL OFFICERS

Texas Guardsmen Patrol Oil Town Streets

County Seat and Sheriff's Office Taken Over

Clean-up Action Follows Murder Sensation

BORGER (Tex.) Sept. 30. (AP)—Under somber skies, martial law rode into Borger today on a seven-car troop train from Fort Worth, carrying eighty-four Texas National Guardsmen. Thus climaxed the State's investigation in the assassination of District Attorney John Holmes here the 13th inst.

Alighting from the train at 8:3[illegible] o'clock this morning, Brig.-Gen. Jacob Wolters announced that Borger and Hutchinson county were under military rule. Snappily, the guardsmen lined up against their coaches as the general read two proclamations by Gov. Dan Moody and issued two general orders.

In the proclamations, which Gen. Wolters gave to newspaper men, only one mention was made of the crime which led to an investigation and the declaration of martial law, the slaying of Holmes. In that instance the Governor said: "That witnesses who have been questioned concerning law violations, including the assassination of the District Attorney, have been threatened and driven from the county."

OFFICERS ARRESTED

Within slightly more than half an hour after issuing the proclamations the military had taken over the combination city hall, police and fire station. All officers were disarmed, and two officers of this three-year-old oil town were arrested. Sam Jones, deputy constable, and Clint Melholland, policeman, were ordered held for investigation.

While the Borger City Hall was being occupied, another detachment of guardsmen and Texas rangers hurried to Stinnett, the county seat, twelve miles away, and at 10 o'clock it was announced that martial law had been declared there. Sheriff Joe Ownbey was relieved of all duties except those of tax collector.

Mayor Glenn A. Pace of Borger, arrested yesterday, charged with having caused a witness in a murder case to leave town, was waiting at Stinnett for his preliminary hearing when the military took over the Courthouse. He waived preliminary hearing and his bond was reset at [illegible]000. It was signed by several persons, including John R. Miller, first Mayor of Borger, and Pete Borger, a brother of the man who founded the town.

The case against Pace is to be presented to a grand jury which convenes October 14.

JURY LIST MISSING

Gen. Wolters expressed belief that a missing grand-jury list, apparently stolen from the County Clerk's office by lawbreakers, formed one of the motives for the assassination of Dist.-Atty. Holmes. Gen. Wolters explained that the custom of selecting a grand jury by a jury commission had not been followed in Borger, but that grand juries had more or less been picked up when they were needed. Just before Holmes's assassination, Wolters said, the District Attorney had asked Judge Willis to appoint a jury commission and a grand jury had been named in the legal manner.

Gen. Wolters's theory is that lawbreakers stole the list of the grand jury sent to the County Clerk, found that it was made up of straight-forward law-abiding men, and assassinated Holmes to avoid prosecution.

Gen. Wolters's announcement came after his military court of inquiry had examined eleven of thirty witnesses who have been subpoenaed.

TREASURER'S SON DIVORCED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—An interlocutory decree of divorce was awarded Mrs. Harriet F. Johnson from Lester B. Johnson, son of State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, in Superior Court here today. Cruelty was charged. Mrs. Johnson was given the custody of a 5-year-old daughter.

IT'S PERILOUS TO REACH FOR YOUR HIP IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—In Chicago it sometimes has been known as suicide to reach for the hip pocket, even for a handkerchief. Paul Heller, 22 years of age, with a bullet in his leg, is thinking about it today.

Heller was singing "Sweet Adeline" out on Clark street last night and Policeman Albert Rickert had no ear for the tune. He told Heller to move on and shut up.

Heller's hand went to his hip pocket. The officer had an idea that this was no idle gesture. He knew what sometimes is kept in hip pockets—guns. He decided to fire first, and he did. With a bullet in his leg, Heller dropped, and when he fell the bottle of liquor in his hip pocket was smashed.

"Such gratitude," he said, sadly. "I was only going to offer you a drink."

MEXICANS HAVE SCHOOL CHOICE

Webb Rules Against Plan of Separation

His Opinion Addressed to State Board

Special Hours May be Set for Children

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Establishment of separate schools for Mexican children in California was held illegal in an opinion by Atty.-Gen. Webb, addressed today to the State Department of Education at Sacramento.

The Department of Education had informed Webb that the governing board of a Southern California school district maintains a separate school for Mexicans in addition to the regular schools.

Webb ruled that schools with special class hours could be established legally for the convenience of Mexican or other children who work on farms, but that children must be permitted to select the schools they wish to attend and that such schools must not be limited to Mexicans only.

He held there is no authority in the laws of California for the establishment of separate schools for Mexicans.

embodying the vital features of superiority which, in the household models, revolutionized refrigeration.

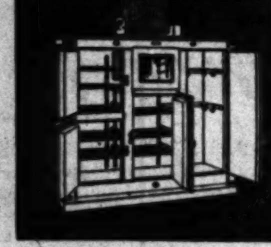
THIS announcement is of paramount importance to firms or individuals confronted with the problem of preserving perishable foods in large quantities. After years of research in its laboratories, General Electric has perfected a line of commercial refrigerators radically different and more efficient.

An entirely new type. Now, for the first time it is possible to buy as one complete unit a cabinet and refrigerating mechanism specifically designed for each other—working together for greatest efficiency at lowest operating cost.

These new refrigerators embody all the vital features of superiority found in the General Electric household models—of which more than 350,000 are in use today, and not one owner has spent a single dollar for service or repairs.

This is an unequalled record, made possible by the scientific design and the trouble-free operation of the mechanism.

Merchants and architects are invited to become acquainted with the various models of the new General Electric Commercial Refrigerator and their outstanding merits.



Model C-451 is similar to Model C-450 except that the right-hand portion of the cabinet is furnished with hooks instead of shelves and has a single full length door.

SEVEN VITAL POINTS OF SUPERIORITY

1 Easy to install—because the cabinet and the refrigerating mechanism are completely combined in one unit.

2 Greater storage capacity per square foot of floor area because all the mechanism is on top, out of the way, instead of taking up valuable space elsewhere.

3 Requires no attention. The mechanism is simple, quiet, hermetically sealed in a steel casing . . . trouble-free, dust-proof, self-defrosting, never needs to be oiled.

4 Maximum efficiency and greatest economy of practical operation.

5 Completely sanitary and easy to clean.

6 Self-defrosting evaporator which minimizes dehydration, reducing shrinkage of meats and other foods.

7 An unqualified two-year guarantee.

TARIFF ARBITER MAY BE JOHNSON

Events Shaping So Hiram's Vote May Decide

California Senator Torn by Balanced Hatreds

Dislike of Hoover Probably Will Sway Choice

BY LAWRENCE M. BENEDICT
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—With a showdown on the all-important question of retaining or junking the flexible tariff provision near at hand, the Senate today was in the throes of the most strenuous scramble for votes since the test on the debenture farm-relief plan last spring.

In the debenture fight President Hoover, after a dramatic struggle, finally was upheld by a margin of one vote. Indications are he will win or lose on the flexible tariff issue by a vote just about as close and with virtually the same line-up. The roll call which may determine the entire ultimate fate of the tariff legislation now is expected to come Wednesday.

SAVE THE MARK!

It appeared tonight that the outcome rests with three or four Senators whose position remains in doubt, among them President Hoover's most cordial personal enemy from his own State of California, Senator Hiram Johnson.

Johnson's vote may decide the issue and it was being counted upon confidently today by the Democratic-insurgent coalition bent upon destroying the President's tariff powers. At the same time Republican leaders, while fearful, were unwilling to believe that Johnson would desert his party on this vital question.

The California Senator would not tell newspaper correspondents today how he intended to vote or whether he had made up his mind. The word passed around in the press gallery was that he was "between the Devil and the deep sea," as he usually votes his personal feelings and in this case he despises both President Hoover, who has championed retention of the flexible clause, and Senator Borah of Idaho, who has led the Republican insurgent band into a coalition with the Democrats against this provision. The belief of most observers is that he finally will decide he dislikes not Borah less but Hoover more, and so will cast his vote to knock out the flexible section.

HE WOULD DO IT

Although such action would be an affront of the worst character to the President, Senator Johnson would no doubt feel secure in a reelection which came to him last fall only because the Hoover forces in California decided in the interest of harmony not to oppose him.

Believed holding the key to the situation along with the Californian are Senator Schall, Republican of Minnesota, and Kendrick, Democrat of Wyoming. The Democrats believe they can win the rather radical Schall over to their side on this administration feature, and they have hopes that by making a strong partisan appeal to Kendrick they can get him to vote with the party on the flexible provision, although they have long since given up any idea they can argue him into opposing the tariff bill on the final roll call on passage.

Kendrick, whose interest is wool, is one of the five Democratic Senators who are out-and-out for the tariff measure. The other four are Ransdell and Broussard of Louisiana and Fletcher and Trammel of Florida. Steck, Democrat of Iowa, made a speech today for the flexible provision but it is not known that he favors the tariff bill on final passage.

FENCE SITTERS

Still other Senators contributing to Democratic hopes in the flexible provision contest are Pine, Republican of Oklahoma; Copeland, Democrat of New York, and Dill, Democrat of Washington. Pine is said to have been nurturing a general grudge against the administration harking back to some action he did not like early in the Hoover administration relating to Indian reservations in his State. Copeland, under strong pressure from New York business and agricultural interests to support the bill, has never quite definitely made up his mind where he will light. The Democratic leaders hope they can get his vote against the flexible administrative section, even if they lose him when it comes to passing on the rates in the bill.

CURE FOR SHINGLES

Dill's weak spot is shingles. He wants them protected to the hilt and it is reported both the Republicans and Democrats have been attempting to bargain with him on that basis in connection with the flexible clause struggle.

With the division so close the vote of any one of these Senators now sitting on the fence may prove decisive.

Although the basis for it is extremely nebulous there is an understanding in Senate circles that if the flexible scheme is retained, President Hoover will sign the tariff bill, with the idea that he can gradually correct any discrepancies or injustices he finds in the measure. By the same token there is an intimation that if this flexible power is denied him he will veto the bill, with the probable result that there will be no tariff revision at all and that all the scrapping and effort of the last few months would be just so much lost motion.

PRESIDENT CAPABLE

It is difficult to believe that a Republican President would veto any Republican protective bill sent him, but many believe Hoover capable of just such action and this illustrates the vital importance of the test of strength approaching in the Senate.

The debate today was routine and uneventful. There was a promise that it would be enlivened by Senator Allen of Kansas, who has prepared a speech taunting the Democrats for repudiating the tariff leadership of their national party chairman, Mr. Raskob, but the Senate adjourned before Allen could get the floor. He now plans to go on tomorrow. He will prod the Democrats with Raskob's statements in the last campaign committing their party to the protective tariff theory and ask whether they now have deserted the protective standard.

TAMMANY TAX DODGE CHARGED

La Guardia Makes Issue of Realty Racket

Republican Candidate for Mayor Battling

He Promises to Cite Names and Block Numbers

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) A new "racket" in tax dodging, whereby a small group of real estate operators having the proper connection with Tammany and the city administration escape some $75,000,000 in taxes is one of the political enterprises which must be ended, Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican nominee for Mayor, charged today in a new indictment of Tammany methods.

All the fundamental principles of equality in taxation have been frustrated by this systematic method of beating the city assessments, La Guardia asserted. The saving to the real estate ring is at the expense of the smaller rent payer and taxpayer.

With the publication tomorrow of the new assessment rolls, La Guardia said he will give names and block numbers to back up his charge, showing how in every case the property benefited has an owner with the proper Tammany connection. This is a science, he said.

"The asserted value of New York real estate is $16,000,000,000," Mr. La Guardia said. "That is a happy hunting ground of the Tammany racketeer."

MINISTER KILLS SELF AS BANDIT

Suspected in Robbery of Sioux Center Bank

"I've Done Terrible Thing," His Last Words

Leaves Money With Tenant to be Returned

LEMARS (Iowa) Sept. 30. (AP)—Rex Frolkey, an ordained minister and former owner of radio station KWUC, shot and killed himself on the farm of one of his tenants near here late today, after giving the tenant, P. Dickman, $360 which Frolkey said he had taken from the Sioux Center State Bank earlier in the day.

Frolkey's automobile was recognized in Sioux Center this morning by two vigilantes of Sioux Center, who, after hearing of the robbery of the bank, followed him home on suspicion that he was the robber.

Accompanied by Frank Smith, police chief, the vigilantes questioned Frolkey at his home but he denied all knowledge of the robbery. Shortly afterward, however, Frolkey left the house, got in his car and drove to his tenant's farm, where he handed Dickman the money, telling him he had done something "terrible" and that the cash should be given to those who were chasing him. He then ran to a garage and shot himself.

OILUS WIND UP ATCH ON RHINE

ench Army Units Leaving Occupied Region

itish and Belgians Also on Way Home

ermans Show No Emotion as Troops Depart

BY HENRY WALES

AYENCE (Germany) Sept. 30. usive)—The actual evacuation military units of the French army the second zone they have oc—Coblens bridgehead and a of territory running north as far as the Dutch border— next week.

the early days of September advance detachments have marching out, proceeding to various military centers of ce, preparing barracks and get new depots in readiness to re the units when they withdraw. itish and Belgian units have retiring for a fortnight, pro down the Rhine toward Aix-Chapelle by boat and train.

The French will withdraw almost troops from the second zone, will be entirely liberated by ber 1, next.

Then the remainder of the 42,000 ps now occupying the third —Mayence bridgehead, Wies and the Palatinate — begin back.

According to the present plans, entire evacuation will be com three months later, or about h 1, 1930.

The retirement of the foreign troops and their material of war is causing some curiosity, but no excitement or hilarity among the local population as far as this observer can note. This morning I saw a trainload of French artillery lumbering across the Rhine bridge from the Wiesbaden sector, en route for the center of France. The train was handled entirely by German railway personnel, and not a single French uniform was discernible. There were not even gunners on the flat cars to watch over their field pieces.

German civilians, watching the train rumble slowly by, did not betray any emotion and were seemingly indifferent. Fraternization between the poilus and the frauleins has cooled off considerably recently, because, it is explained, the Rhine maidens do not want to be left in the lurch by the local swains they have ignored for the favors of the visiting soldiers when the army leaves.

The local population is beginning to show anxiety over the economic problem resulting when the evacuation is completed. It is estimated that 10,000 houses, flats, apartments and lodgings will be empty and there is no valid reason why 60,000 additional inhabitants will come to take the places of the soldiers who will have withdrawn.

Shopkeepers and retailers in all branches will feel the departure of the troops as the Allied armies purchased enormous quantities of perishable supplies of foodstuffs for men and animals, and individual officers and men expended appreciable sums for green vegetables, fruit, eggs, milk, chickens, wine, beef and cigars. Statistics show that the average French poilu spent 1000 francs per annum. This makes a total of $2,500,000 which was disbursed by the French army yearly.

OLD BLOOD REJUVENATED

Paris Specialist Says Transfusion from Veins of Youth Accomplishes Benefits

PARIS, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The blood of young people injected into the veins of those who have lost the elasticity of youth has a rejuvenating effect, according to Dr. Helman Jaworski, practicing specialist with offices in Paris. Each month on the average twenty men and women to whom the years have brought fatigue undergo what is intended to be an invigorating treatment at the hands of this physician.

Dr. Jaworski today told something of his discovery and work.

He conceived the idea in 1927 of injecting the blood of youth into that of age. Under a process which he has now developed a citrate is added to the blood stream of a person about 20 years of age and the mixture whirled in a centrifugal machine to form a plasma. This plasma, sterilized, is injected into the subject.

"The stimulating effect will last three or four years," Dr. Jaworski said.

"Scientists are against the word 'rejuvenation' because they say it holds out more hope than is fulfilled. Therein lies a certain truth. It must not be thought that rejuvenation is to become young; it is only to become younger, to have less of the old blood.

"The blood of the young folk has something that has gone from that of the aged. This unknown quantity has not been isolated. In time we will find out what it is."

TREATY FAILS OF RATIFICATION

Pact to Simplify Trade Rules Loses

GENEVA, Sept. 30. (AP)—The international treaty for the abolition of import and export prohibition and restrictions, which recently was ratified by the United States Senate, had failed today to receive the necessary ratification of eighteen countries.

It was provided in the treaty that eighteen states must ratify it by the 30th inst.

The Italian and Jugo Slavian governments deposited their instruments of ratification today and Portugal intimated its ratification might be considered as taking effect today.

Counting these three, the total number of ratifications was only seventeen. Even if there had been eighteen the treaty could not have come into effect because three countries whose ratification was essential have not approved it. These are Germany, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

The move followed a controversy in which charges were made informally that some judges are spending too much time away from their judicial duties. Chief Justice Waste of the Supreme Court, who is chairman of the Judicial Council, which assigns outside judges, has announced San Francisco cannot expect as much outside aid in the future as it has been getting.

WOMAN CABINET MEMBER LACED

Union Speakers Hurl Charges at Labor Minister

BRIGHTON (Eng.) Sept. 30. (AP) Britain's first woman Cabinet member, Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor, was attacked at the opening sessions of the Labor party convention today in speeches by members of the miners' and workers' unions. Northern delegates charged in the Labor party conference that Miss Bondfield had permitted continuance of the administrative system at employment exchanges which "almost amounted to brutality."

J. R. Clynes, Home Secretary, came to Miss Bondfield's defense by pointing out it was not very easy immediately to remove all abuses affecting a million people. A committee was considering the facts and when the report was available the government, he promised, would not hesitate to remove any grievance.

Miss Bondfield was not able to defend herself. A few weeks age she suffered a broken ankle while spending a holiday in Cornwall.

The convention unanimously approved messages to be sent Premier MacDonald, aboard the Berengaria, assuring him of continued confidence in the wisdom of his leadership.

What kind of teeth is your baby building?

Will they be hard..sound..straight ..even..uncrowded?

Or will they be soft and subject to early decay...menacing his health and detracting from his appearance in later years?

You can help your baby build good teeth for life by seeing now that he gets a plentiful supply of one essential tooth-and-bone-building factor. Vitamin D!

There are two common sources of this protective element. Sunshine and good cod-liver oil.

Sunshine would protect your baby but it is almost impossible to get enough sunshine on the bare skin to be of benefit. Clothing, clouds, fog and smoke prevent it. Even ordinary window glass filters out the protecting ultra-violet rays.

Authorities urge Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil—as the surest protection. And many of them insist on Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil.

They prefer Squibb's because they know they can depend on its high vitamin content. It is not only very rich in Vitamin D, which helps to build good bones and teeth, but also in Vitamin A which promotes growth and increases resistance to many infections.

Your physician knows the importance of good cod-liver oil for your baby. Use the vitamin-tested, vitamin-protected oil—Squibb's. All good drug stores have Squibb's Plain and Squibb's Mint-flavored Cod-Liver Oil.

FACTS about the prices of new cars which every car buyer should know

In the interest of the public and of our dealers, all advertisements of General Motors cars carry this statement:

"Consider the delivered price as well as the list {f.o.b.} price when comparing automobile values. Our dealers' delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery, and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired."

WHEN you buy a new automobile, it is the delivered price that you actually pay.

The delivered price consists of the list price of the car—the f.o.b. price advertised by the manufacturer—plus certain other charges which the dealer makes.

You are entitled to know what those charges are and what they are for. This information is necessary to properly compare motor car values.

In keeping with General Motors' policy of frankness, General Motors dealers have adopted a standard price tag which explains exactly what their charges are. The tag is attached to the steering wheels of new cars on display in their showrooms. It shows the list price of the car and the following other items:

1. Freight and Delivery. An authorized amount to cover the freight charges paid by the dealer and the cost of unloading, inspecting, supplying fuel and oil—preparing the car for delivery to you.
2. Accessories. A charge for any additional accessories that may be purchased.

The price tag tells all. No other items are added. Nothing is hidden. There is no extra charge to permit a seemingly better trade-in offer. No extra charge to cover advertising, etc. Each charge is fair and reasonable.

General Motors dealers invite you to make their tag your guide in comparing automobile values. The real measure of value is the delivered price—for that is the price you pay.

If you wish to purchase on time payments, find out and compare the finance charges. General Motors dealers offer convenient terms at reasonable cost.

WAR TUNES ECHO AT LOUISVILLE

Forty Thousand Veterans Make Whoopee

Landis and McNutt Given Rousing Cheers

Defense and Naval Parity Speakers' Themes

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Sept. 30. (AP) Martial music and the roll of drums mingled with the rumble of thousands of shuffling feet that a few years ago responded with alacrity to the shrill bugle call, as the eleventh annual convention of the American Legion swung into action today.

Fourth avenue, Louisville's main business artery, shunted all its vehicular traffic elsewhere and was given over to the roar of high-stepping drum and bugle corps, bands, cannon and the good-natured repartee of the World War veterans.

A decided drop in temperature bolstered up the spirits that were left fagged by an all-night of merry-making and the carnival increased in intensity. Eleven years have added streaks of gray to most of the Legionnaires, but apparently have not dimmed their enthusiasm.

Starting off the day with a meeting in the Armory, the veterans loudly cheered their commander, Paul V. McNutt, and the other speakers who emphasized the need for adequate national defense and for increased aid for disabled service men.

LANDIS CHEERED

They shouted their approval when Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, charged the government with neglect of those rendered mentally unfit and blamed his own party for the failure of Congress to pass a bill that would have increased hospital facilities for the mental-shocked veterans.

Charging that the Republican leaders in Congress had blocked the bill and prevented its consideration by the House, Mr. Landis waved his hands high above his head and declared that if this happens again, "there will be hell to pay in Republican politics."

"I want the responsibility for this infamy to rest where it belongs," he added. During his reference to Republicans, he turned to the Republican Governor of Kentucky, Flem D. Sampson, who was seated on the platform, and shook his hand.

McNUTT REPORTS

Commander McNutt said, "The determined stand of the American Legion for adequate national defense is based upon the experiences of the past and actuated solely by sound patriotic motives." Adverting to disabled veterans, he declared that "the fight for justice to the disabled, to the widow and child of the war veteran and to the veterans generally, will continue as long as we live."

Asserting that the Legion stands for movements to make permanent peace more certain, Commander McNutt said that until such methods are found and accepted by all nations "this nation must provide a complete defense in any contingency."

"Under present conditions," he continued, "the policy of parity with other powers is essential to complete defense. Such parity must be real parity rather than apparent parity. If it is possible to achieve such parity by agreement rather than by competitive armament, the policy of the American Legion is to support such a move. Until such an agreement is reached the cruiser building program should be continued."

HOSPITAL BILL

The American Legion, the commander said in another part of his report, must confine itself to those matters which affect veterans of the World War and their dependents and to "frown on partisan questions of national policy." He said the Legion had been asked to further many causes which, although worthy, did not concern the veterans as such, directly.

Discussing the failure of the national hospital bill, the report pointed out that more than 52,000 World War veterans are receiving compensation for neuropsychiatric disability. "We are told by experts," it added, "that the peak of the neuropsychiatric load will not be reached until 1947." Government hospital facilities, he said, are inadequate.

No one is a more sincere believer in peace than the man who has known, personally, the horrors of war," declared Gen. Peyton C. March, former Chief-of-Staff of the Army. "We all rejoice in the signing of the Kellogg treaties renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, but it would be foolish to imagine that wars were abolished by those treaties."

The address characterized as particularly unfortunate "the propaganda now prevalent that war has been made impossible by modern inventions," and added nothing could be further from the fact. "And nothing could be more dangerous than for the nation to be lulled into a false sense of security by such talk as this. We need, and always will need, an army and a navy of a suitable strength for national defense."

Another speaker on today's program was Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, Jr., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, who brought greetings from the 330,000 members of her organization. She said the auxiliary had been denounced as a militaristic organization because of its firm stand for the maintenance of the country's defense.

RODMAN HEARD

"Nothing could be more absurd than this charge," it was added. "We have seen our men march away to the most terrible war in history and we have a clearer understanding of what war means than any other group of women in America. We will not let our love of peace blind us to the fact that the possibility of war has not yet been banished from the world."

Rear-Admiral Hugh Rodman, a native Kentuckian, also brought to the convention a plea for parity in naval strength. His tenet, he said, is "faith, hope and parity, and the greatest of these is parity."

CITIES COMPETE

Caucuses of the State delegations went on apace with California and New England lining up support for their respective choices for the 1930 convention. Los Angeles and Boston are the only bidders, the former niquiring in slogans, "Orange Juice or Beans?"

The New England conference threw its entire support to Boston, while California expected to draw heavily from the western States. Both delegations came with samples of their products, with musical organizations, banners, large numbers of members and promotion funds of around $100,000 each.

The convention's highlight will be reached tomorrow in the all-day parade of most of the 40,000 Legionnaires and their families who are here. Approximately 100 musical organizations will be in the line of colorful-dressed marchers.

OROVILLE, Sept. 30. (AP)—Mrs. Pearl Baldwin today was ordered held for trial on a murder charge growing out of the shooting ten days ago of her husband, William C. Baldwin, son of Oroville's Mayor. Mrs. Baldwin did not testify in her own defense.

One new development was produced in today's testimony when John Sobrero, friend of Baldwin's, testified Mrs. Baldwin accosted her husband on the street a week before the shooting, reviled him, and attempted to engage in a quarel. Baldwin's dying statement was that he accidentally shot himself.

Although her allowance is 10 cents a day her husband spends $12 for liquor, the bill asserts.

CAPITAL POLICE SHAKE-UP PENDS

Young McPherson Indicted as Wife's Slayer

Jurors Severely Rebuke Officials in Case

Washington Excited Over Murder Sensation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—A shake-up in capital police circles impends as a result of a sensational grand jury investigation which culminated today in the voting of murder indictments against Robert J. McPherson, Jr., young husband of a pretty nurse found strangled to death two weeks ago with a pajama cord knotted around her throat.

McPherson, who has been at liberty since he found his wife, Virginia, dead in her apartment, was immediately taken into custody by members of the homicide squad and placed in the district jail. Although he protested his innocence, McPherson was formally charged with the murder of his wife. He is 21 years of age, and his wife was a few weeks is junior.

OFFICIALS REBUKED

After returning its indictment, the grand jury scathingly rebuked the police and local authorities for bungling the investigation of the murder, and recommended that Inspector William S. Shelby, chief of the detective bureau, and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, head of the homicide squad, be suspended from duty until their activity in the case has been investigated.

Both Shelby and Kelly had maintained from the beginning that Mrs. McPherson had committed suicide. A Coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the death of the young woman, decided that Mrs. McPherson had strangled herself to death and in commenting on the Coroner's inquest, the grand jury asserted that it apparently was held merely as a matter of form. Important witnesses were not allowed to give testimony, it was charged.

CITY EXCITED

No police investigation in years has so excited the citizens of this blase city as have the daily developments following the finding of the half-clad body of the young wife lying on the floor of her bedroom in the Park Lane apartments a few blocks from the White House.

Washingtonians awoke each morning to find the front pages of the local newspapers plastered with black type regaling the latest developments in the investigation. One morning they were told that witnesses had been found who heard groans and moans on the morning of the murder. Last Saturday morning's newspapers told of a taxicab driver who had driven a man to the Park Lane apartments a short time before the nurse is believed to have died.

Fifteen witnesses, including the husband and several police officers, went before the grand jury Saturday and today.

HAND AT BRIDGE MURDER CAUSE

Missouri Wife Accused of Slaying Spouse

Quarrel Over Play Leads to Blows, Then Shots

Guests Find Host Dead and Summon Police

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Terminating an altercation which arose during a bridge game in which they were partners, Mrs. John G. Bennett shot and killed her husband at their home here last night, while guests were in an adjoining room preparing to depart, according to police, who have lodged a charge of first-degree murder against the wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, according to Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman, were partners in a bridge game, playing against the Hoffmans. On what proved to be the last deal Bennett opened the bidding by calling one spade. Mrs. Hoffman, sitting next to the dealer, bid two hearts. This bid was followed by a four-spade bid by Mrs. Bennett. All hands passed and Mrs. Bennett laid down her hand as the dummy.

BENNETT SET

Whether or not her hand was worth a four-spade raise has not been determined, but, at all events, Mr. Bennett went "set." Mrs. Bennett, it is said, criticised his playing. Mr. Bennett defended his ability and one word led to another, according to Hoffman, until Bennett reached across the table, seized his wife's arm and slapped her two or three times.

The bridge table was upset. Everybody stood up and Mrs. Bennett asked the Hoffmans to excuse themselves so the quarrel could be settled. Bennett folded up the table and put away the cards. The Hoffmans tried to smooth things over and to cool the feeling displayed in the bitter words of the Bennetts.

"Only a dirty cur would strike a woman in the face in the presence of friends," Hoffman quoted Mrs. Bennett as saying. Bennett tried to laugh the matter off in a casual way instead of apologizing.

PLANS TO LEAVE

Bennett had planned to make a business trip to St. Joseph today. He announced he would leave immediately and would stay in a hotel the remainder of the night. He began to pack his grip.

The Hoffmans again were requested to leave by Mrs. Bennett. Mrs. Hoffman walked toward the hall door. Hoffman stepped into the bathroom and Mrs. Bennett went into a bedroom.

A moment later the guests heard four shots. Rushing to the living-room they found Bennett dead on the floor and his wife standing over him.

Mrs. Bennett was taken to jail in the sports dress and shoes in which she played golf yesterday.

Judging an Investment by the Institution Back of It

In these days of speculative tendencies, it is important for the investor seeking a sound security to consider not only the strength of the institution back of an offering, but also the motives involved in the marketing thereof. For example:

1—Does the offering represent an economically sound operation?

2—To what extent does the sponsoring institution stand back of the offering?

3—What is the nature and ratio of the tangible security?

4—Is there an established and demonstrated earning capacity of sufficient volume to pay a fair return on the capital represented, plus a reasonable margin of safety?

5—If the offering is guaranteed in any respect, is the guarantor of sufficient financial strength and moral responsibility to insure the efficacy of the guarantee under any and all conditions?

We invite critical application of these tests to our offering of Insured First Mortgage Certificates.

First, the economic soundness of the loaning operations of which this financing is a part, is conclusively shown by the steady and healthy growth of the Company's business over a long period of years.

This company was founded sixteen years ago with an initial capital of $2,500,000, and, without the aid of absorptions or consolidations, has grown steadily and consistently year by year, never failing to show a substantial gain, even during the period of the World War and subsequent readjustment period.

The following table indicates the capital increases and growth of profit and surplus, and resources:

Year	Capital Stock	Undivided Profits and surplus.	Total Resources
1923	April 1, 1923 3,000,000	$ 886,123.41	Dec. 31,1923 $28,412,119.39
1925	July 1, 1925 4,000,000	1,255,051.30	Dec. 31, 1925 41,314,230.14
1926	Jan. 1, 1927 5,000,000	1,558,197.66	Dec. 31, 1926 52,858,177.94
1929	Oct. 1, 1929 6,000,000	June 30,1929 2,263,281.57	June 30,1929 84,700,306.31

The full proceeds from the sale of Certificates, without any deductions for underwriting profits or commissions, are utilized for conservative loans on select California real estate.

Second, the Company stands back of these Certificates at all times, even to the extent of insuring the holder against any loss of either principal or interest.

Third, the tangible underlying security is in the form of improved, diversified real estate having an aggregate value, as established by State-approved appraisers, operating under the most conservative policies, of more than twice the amount of outstanding Certificates.

Fourth, that there is an established source of income sufficient for all interest requirements plus a liberal margin of safety, is attested by long experience under all conceivable conditions, and by the Company's substantial earning capacity and constantly increasing surplus.

Fifth, the liens which these Certificates represent are protected not only by the soundest of all forms of security but also by policies of insurance issued under the Mortgage Insurance Act of California. Back of these policies, which effectually protect the investor against any loss of either principal or interest, is the full strength of the Company as shown by resources of more than $80,000,000.

Thus, it is evident that every test is fully and effectually met.

Not only is the financing which these Certificates represent, sound and constructive in every respect; not only is the sponsorship unqualified; not only is the ratio of sound security better than two to one; not only is the income for the payment of interest ample and dependable, but the investment is also guaranteed, principal and interest, and the strength of the guarantor is beyond question.

Those are the reasons why these Certificates are in such widespread demand among thinking investors, being held by banks, insurance companies and other institutions, as well as by executors, administrators, trustees and private investors in thirty-eight States and several foreign countries.

These Insured First Mortgage Certificates are issued in denominations of $100 and multiples thereof, in maturities of two to five years, and yield 6%. They are ideal for purposes of systematic investment, and the experienced buyer knows that the sure and regular returns from an investment of this character, when compounded semi-annually or quarterly over a period of years, far exceed the spasmodic returns, if any, from speculative holdings.

These Certificates are described in detail in a booklet which will be gladly mailed upon request. Telephone TRinity 0831 or use the coupon.

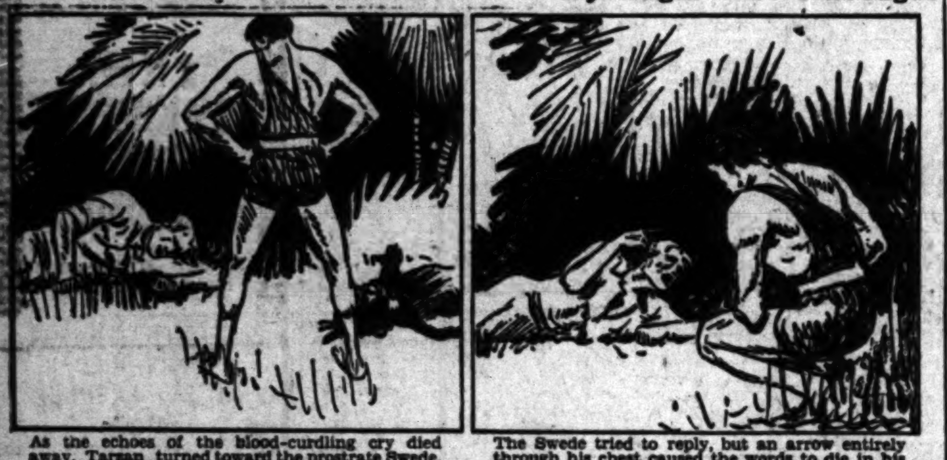
A CHUCKLE FOR EVERYBODY

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



As the echoes of the blood-curdling cry died away, Tarzan turned toward the prostrate Swede. His face was cold and cruel, and in the gray eyes the Swede read murder. "Where is the woman?" growled the ape-man. "What have you done with the child?" Like a bronze image—cold, hard and relentless—he stood over the helpless man, waiting to wring such information from him as he needed, and then to kill.

The Swede tried to reply, but an arrow entirely through his chest caused the words to die in his throat. Presently the paroxysm passed and again the wounded man's lips faintly moved. Tarzan knelt down and again demanded: "Where are they?" The Swede pointed up the trail. "The Russian—he got them," he whispered. "They catch us. I fight, but they wound me and leave me. He take your wife and kid."

Tarzan started in amazement at the words! So the fugitives were his own wife and child! His fierce eyes blazed with the passion and vengeance that with difficulty he controlled. "Why were they with you? What have you done to them? Speak quick. Tell me the worst, or I will tear you to pieces with my bare hands!" A look of pained surprise came over the Swede's face. "Why," he whispered, "I did not hurt them."

"I try to save them from dot Russian. Your wife vas kind to me on dot ship. I hear dot little baby cry sometimes. I got wife and child, too, in Sweden." Something in the man's tone convinced Tarzan he was telling the truth. Quickly his mood turned from hate to pity. "I am sorry," he said very simply. He lifted the Swede tenderly in his great arms, comforting him as the wounded man breathed his last.

SSION TOPICS

Paul Shoup, western vice- of the national Chamber presiding, today's included a discussion of industrial development by J. Koster, vice-president California State chamber, Wesley O. Ash, district man- of the Bureau of Foreign and Commerce of San Fran- in which they pointed west- men to larger opportunities in foreign commerce and development of their States to satisfy that demand.

Two Portland men, Raymond B. Wilcox, president of the Chamber Commerce of that city, and W. D. B. Dodson, its general manager, spoke at the luncheon meeting on "Water Resources of the West." In the afternoon Prof. Walter Mulford of the University of California Forestry Department and R. H. Rutledge, district government forester at Ogden, spoke.

Necessity of a forest cover on the western watersheds to prevent destruction of the soil and dissipation of the water supply was urged by Prof. Mulford, who is a member of a forest study committee of twelve named by the California State Chamber of Commerce.

FOREST PROTECTION

With most of its agricultural valleys bordered by high, steep mountains, California's agriculture is dependent upon a protective forest cover to prevent a quick run-off of rainfall which, conserved, is sufficient for crops, the speaker said. Because of its importance to agriculture, a group of ranchers recently planned to ask the State Legislature to prevent the cutting of all timber.

"Another force which is at work to keep forest covering intact is our particularly effective public opinion which demands maintenance of the beauty of our mountains," he continued. "This sentiment is becoming so pronounced that the lumbermen are coming to be regarded almost as public enemies."

The live-stock man takes his place beside the raiser of wool in saying that our forest areas shall be actively used, not locked up. With this conflict of interests as regards the forests, the speaker concluded, it is necessary that a sound forest policy shall be worked out that will be fair to all. With such a purpose in view, the California forest study committee was named, including representatives of affected interests.

BANQUET SPEAKERS

Speakers at the annual banquet of the chamber tonight included Gov. H. C. Balbridge of Idaho and William Butterworth, president of the United States chamber.

Gov. Emerson of Wyoming was introduced to the convention this afternoon and spoke briefly on the need of united action by Western States for the solution of their problems. He commented on the fact that while Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and New Mexico had been transferred from the western division of the chamber, they were liberally represented at the present conference.

Other speakers this afternoon included William M. Wheeler, president of the California Protective Association, who urged more effective fire protection in forests; E. W. King of Yerington, Nev., who commented on the large area of unappropriated public lands in the West, and Sinclair Wilson of Portland, who declared that government appropriations for the West amount to capital investment in Federal holdings here.

SPEED EXPERTS COLLIDE

Hoffman, at Safety Council, Advocates No Limit; Statistician, in Reply, Predicts "Hell to Pay"

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The speed of modern traffic was denounced as a serious menace to society and was praised as a contributing factor in the growth of civilization today as experts clashed at the opening of the eighteenth annual congress of the National Safety Council.

Paul G. Hoffman of South Bend, Ind., vice-president of an automobile manufacturing corporation, declared that the rise of civilization can be measured by the speed of its transportation and that in ten years improvements in highway construction and automobile engineering will make it possible to tour with safety at 100 miles per hour.

"In the last fifteen years," he said, "the average speed of traffic has doubled and the number of accidents per car has almost been halved.

"For generations speed has been a bugaboo. Whether you like it or not the public wants speed, and it's going to have what it wants. What we must do is build streets, highways, automobiles and laws that will accommodate the demand with safety. Speed does not mean recklessness. A driver can be a menace to society going twenty-four miles an hour, under certain circumstances, and he can be a safe man at the wheel of a car going eighty miles an hour.

SLOW DRIVER MENACE

"The slow driver who blocks the flow of traffic, who forces others to go around him at a risk, is becoming recognized as one of the greatest nuisances on the highways.

"This council can save lives by urging States to remove their maximum speed limits so that motorcycle policemen will stop chasing fast cars that are imperiling no one and devote themselves to removing the reckless driver from the highways."

These words aroused the ire of the next speaker, Dr. Louis I. Dublin, a New York insurance statistician, who is chairman of the statistics section of the safety council.

CALLS IT OUTRAGE

"That was the most outrageous and unconscienable talk I ever heard," he declared. "Mr. Hoffmans doctrine is at the bottom of our troubles, and, if believed, there will be hell to pay. I have known that automobile manufacturers had such thoughts in their heart but this is the first time I ever met one who dared to preach such a dastardly theory. It shows the low moral code to which we have fallen.

"There is no earthly reason for speed higher than thirty-five miles an hour. The statistics show that as the speed of traffic is growing the number of deaths from automobiles is increasing until last year the toll was 27,500."

Judge Hugh A. Locke of Birmingham, Ala., another student of the traffic problem, advocated more laws. He pointed to deaths caused by drunken drivers and urged the universal adoption of legislation to revoke the driving license of such offenders.

LAWLESSNESS BLAMED

Frederick E. Schortemeir, president of the Indianapolis Safety Council, declared that a general disrespect for the laws and for the common decency are responsible for the large number of accidents.

Approximately 7500 delegates are attending the national conference of safety experts, coming from all parts of the United States and with a few from abroad. It is a five-day convention, dealing with industrial and home accidents as well as traffic. Their statistics show 96,000 persons met death through accidents in the United States last year—27,500 from automobiles, 24,000 through accidents at home, 24,000 industrial fatalities and 20,000 accidental deaths in public places other than on streets and highways.

YOU WILL NOT SEE VOLCANIC ACTIVITY AT HONOLULU

THERE have been no active volcanoes on on the island of Oahu, where Honolulu is located, for over 5,000 years. All volcanic activity in the Hawaiian group of islands centers around three age-old craters or vents—situated 30 to 100 miles by motor from Hilo, on the big island of Hawaii. And Hilo is 192 miles by steamship from Honolulu.

On the same LASSCO liner you take from Los Angeles to Honolulu, you can make the 3-day Wonder Trip from Honolulu to Hilo and "Volcano-land." This trip is one of the outstanding features of LASSCO's

MEXICO'S OIL ILLS OUTLINED

Americans Tell Congress Group of Plight

Heavy Taxes and Decrease in Production Cited

New Labor Laws Seen as Final Step to Ruin

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The Mexican petroleum industry, of which American capital composes the greater amount of money invested, laid its case before Congress today at a meeting between the committee of oil men headed by H. N. Branch, chief legal counsel of the Mexican interests of the Standard of Indiana, and the subcommittee of the Chamber of Deputies on petroleum charged with hearing the oil men's objections to the new proposed labor law now under discussion by Congress.

A dark picture of the present Mexican petroleum industry is painted by Branch in a report, furnished the subcommittee, subdivided into the following five chapters: Production, taxation, refinery, labor and profits, indicative of the "depressed condition" the industry now finds itself in and its "condition of decadence."

The subcommittee was told by the oil men that oil from all other fields can at present be laid down in New York cheaper than from the Mexican fields. Branch expressed the belief that the government feels the urgency of alleviating at once the general depressed condition of the oil industry in this country which "so far as its export business is concerned soon will disappear" unless there is a change.

ADDITIONAL BURDENS

Additional burdens on only two provisions that the new law calls for would amount to $6,000,000 yearly on the oil companies, Branch asserts. The report shows that the production of petroleum in Mexico which began in 1901, increased until it reached its peak in 1921 when 193,000,000 barrels were produced, but has decreased since that date to 50,000,000 barrels produced in 1928.

All other oil-producing countries are named in the report as showing a steady increase during this period. The report, basing its statement on figures it presents, argues that this decrease in Mexican petroleum is not due to world overproduction.

Dealing with taxation, the report declares that production taxes paid by the oil companies in 1922 amounted to $29,000,000, the export taxes $13,000,000 and that last year the companies paid production taxes to the amount of $3,500,000 and export taxes of $2,000,000 in almost direct proportion to direct taxation, the report states. There is a noticeable increase in indirect taxation.

REFINERIES CLOSE

As to the situation in oil refining the report declares that in 1922 fifteen refineries were operating in Mexico with a total capacity of more than 400,000 barrels daily. Seven have been entirely dismantled. Four of the remaining eight are now idle and the other four with daily total capacity of 48,000 barrels are operating barely 30 per cent of their capacity. According to the report, 50 per cent of the total oil employees are engaged in the refineries.

Reporting on labor, the report says that in 1921, 50,000 men with a yearly pay roll of $60,000,000 were employed by the oil companies. At the end of June this year there were 14,000 men employed with yearly pay roll of $17,000,000.

LOSSES SUFFERED

Advising the subcommittee on profits and losses, the report declares that in 1922 there were twenty-one companies actively engaged in the export of petroleum representing 92 per cent of the total production of oil that year. Of these, seven have gone out of business entirely, and three are in process of liquidation. "All without exception have suffered heavy losses on their investments in Mexico." Of the remaining eleven export companies operating today only five show any profits whatsoever on their operations, according to the report.

The report ends with: "Of four principal companies that produced approximately 25 per cent of the total production during the years 1925 to 1928 show net losses for these years as follows:

In 1925, $5,000,000, having produced 29,000,000 barrels; in 1926, $8,000,000, having produced 23,000,000 barrels; in 1927, $4,000,000, having produced 17,000,000 barrels, and in 1928, $5,000,000, having produced 25,000,000 barrels.

PARIS, Sept. 30. (AP)—A Havas dispatch sent from Moscow at 10 o'clock tonight, reported that Dieudonne Coste passed Novo-Sibirsk, Siberia, today flying in the direction of Irkutsk.

With Maurice Bellonte, Coste left Le Bourget at 8:16 a.m., last Friday in the sesquiplane Question Mark to seek a new world's distance record by a flight to the Far East. Their progress was followed as far as Cologne, Germany, and then the great spaces of Eastern Europe and Asia swallowed them up.

More than eighty hours elapsed during which no word came from the flyers, and fears for their safety increased.

Coast Oranges Smuggled Into Florida Towns

TALLAHASSEE (Fla.) Sept. 30. (AP) Asserted bootlegging of California oranges in Florida has been reported to the State Inspection Bureau here, and has been referred to the State plant board.

An inspector of the bureau reported that quantities of California oranges had been found at Cottondale, Mariana and Blountstown without the inspection stamp. The fruit had arrived by truck from Dothan, Fla., the inspector said, and when dealers were warned that it did not bear the inspection stamp it was taken out of the State.

Detective Shot to Death From Darkened Street

EVENING SCHOOL AT PORTERVILLE BEGINS

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 30.—The fall sessions of the evening school held each term during the past eight years in connection with the Porterville Union High School, opened here this evening at 7 o'clock and from the interest shown today, many adults of the district will avail themselves of the opportunities offered for adult education during the next few weeks.

All classes, both day and evening, are open to all adults without charge, excepting for cost of materials used. Not all the evening classes are yet ready for organization, but enrollments for later classes are being taken now. Among those getting started this week are Americanization groups for Mexicans and for others, farm mechanics, aviation, arts and crafts, dietetics, mechanical or architectural drawing, photography, visual education, book-keeping, shorthand and typing, piano, vocal or harmony and men's athletics.

Looking forward to the spring term, an extensive program is mapped out for home education and education for parenthood, class sessions not to begin until after the holidays.

MAGUNCIA (Alemania.) Septiembre 30.—La próxima semana comenzarán a evácuar las unidades militares del ejército francés la segunda zona que han venido ocupando, o sea la cabeza de puente de Coblenza y una faja de territorio que avanza hacia el noroeste hasta la frontera holandesa.

Desde los primeros días de Septiembre, han estado saliendo destacamentos avanzados, con rumbo a los varios centros militares de Francia, para preparar cuarteles y alistar nuevos almacenes. De ese modo, las unidades que vayan llegando tendrán donde alojarse.

Desde hace una semana comenzaron a retirarse las unidades inglesas y belgas, marchando Rin abajo hacia Aquisgrán, parte en barcos y parte en trenes.

No se Publica la Encuesta sobre el Desastre de la T.A.T.

WASHINGTON, Septiembre 30.—Hoy comunicó el ministro Lamont que no se haría público el resultado de la investigación que hizo el ministerio de Comercio en lo del desastre del City of San Francisco, avión de viajeros de la Compañía de Transportes Aéreos Transcontinentales. Hace varias semanas que se estrelló dicho avión en las montañas de Nuevo Méjico, con pérdida de ocho vidas.

Al decir del ministro, sigue esa conducta el ministerio porque las leyes no lo protegen contra acciones judiciales por daños en el caso de que sus conclusiones, en una encuesta cualquiera, resultaren erróneas.

A Millones de Dólares Montan los Robos de Autos cada Año.

NUEVA YORK, Septiembre 30.—Según las estadísticas de la Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Insurance Company, los 116,000 automóviles robados el año próximo pasado representan un valor de $81,200,000. De ese total, se recobraron como el 85 por ciento; lo que arroja una pérdida líquida de algo así como $12,000,000. Si dividimos la pérdida entre el número de autos que funcionan en este país, le toca a cada uno a menos de $1 por año.

Se Honra Merecidamente a un Sabio Mejicano

BERKELEY, Septiembre 30.—Llamando la atención del público que lee hacia la figura de uno de los más grandes sabios que ha producido el hemisferio occidental y cuya memoria no ha sido ensalzada por los historiadores, el doctor Irving A. Leonard, catedrático adjunto de Español en la Universidad de California, acaba de publicar una biografía de Don Carlos de Sigüenza y Góngora, de la Ciudad de Méjico (1645-1700.)

Hace observar Leonard que en los siglos XVII y XVIII la ciudad de Méjico y la Real Universidad de Méjico eran los centros de mayor cultura en el Nuevo Mundo, y que del pequeño grupo de eruditos y hobres de ciencia que contribuyeron a esa cultura, era don Carlos en más destacado.

Pierde un Dedo en Riña

Alfredo Moreno, de 21 años, con domicilio en el 414½ de la calle Hill Norte, se presentó ayer con un dedo de menos en la Casa de Socorro de la calle de Georgia, y dijo que la causa de su mutilación había sido un altercado con un conocido suyo en la esquina de la avenida Grand y el bulevar Sunset. Se negó a dar el nombre de su contrincante, pero dijo que éste le había arrancado el dedo de una mordida.

El doctor Jacobs le curó la herida, y Moreno se marchó a casa diciendo que iba a cobrar venganza a su modo por la pérdida del dedo.

Charlas Infantiles para Chiquillos de Escuela

III

Al día siguiente, Daniel habló de ello con su padre, y éste dijo que estaba demasiado pobre para enviar a sus dos hijos al colegio (The next day Daniel talked to his father about it. The father said he was too poor to send both of his sons to college. Dijo que, si probaba a mandar a Ezequiel al colegio, perdería toda su pequeña hacienda (He said he would lose all his little property if he tried to send Ezekiel to college.) Pero agregó que, si su madre y hermanas de ellos consentían en ser pobres, enviaría al colegio a su otro hijo (But he said that, if their mother and sisters were willing to be poor, he would send the other son to college.)

Así es que fueron interrogadas madre y hermanas (So the mother and sisters were asked.) Parecía duro arriesgarse a perder todo cuanto tenían, y era duro también no abrirle camino a Ezequiel. Todas lloraron al hablar de esto (It seemed hard to risk the loss of all they had. It seemed hard not to give Ezekiel a chance. They all shed tears over it.)

BY PORTER FLINT

The Texas Company's Patterson No. 10-A on the Patterson lease at Santa Fe Springs is reported to have completed a fishing job and is now reaming preparatory to setting a string of casing with bottom of the hole slightly below 8500 feet.

This test is the deepest in the Santa Fe Springs area and is but a short distance west of the Ring Oil Company's No. 1, near the intersection of Little Lake and Forest roads.

Texas drilled into what is thought to be a new oil sand at about 8200 feet and that formation has been continuous to 8500 feet. Seven-inch casing is set to 7974 feet and hole is open to 8525 feet, and should it be completed will be the deepest producer in the world.

Production Drops

The Parker No. 1 of George F. Getty, Inc., at Potrero yesterday yielded approximately 485 barrels of oil, showing a marked decline from initial output estimated at about 1700 barrels from a depth of 3846 feet. Condition of the hole and flow of mud and water is thought to have impaired the oil output.

Getty last night planned to file application for the drilling of seven projects at Potrero, all within a short distance of the Parker No. 1 and the York & Lockhart No. 1, which is reported to be flowing 1100 barrels of oil a day. Locations have already been made for three wells by Getty.

Rigging Rotary

The General Petroleum Corporation yesterday was rigging rotary for More No. 2, three miles southeast of Elwood, and will spud in within two weeks. This test is about a half-mile from More No. 1, which suspended operations at 4533 feet because of the gas pressure.

Nearing Completion

The Santa Fe No. 212 of the General Petroleum Corporation at Santa Fe Springs is running two-and-one-half-inch tubing for a production test with bottom at 8000 feet in the lower Clarke sand. Six-and-five-eighths-inch casing is set to 7510 feet. The Santa Fe No. 213 is drilling below 8043 feet in the lower Clarke sand and may be completed in less than ten days.

Deepest Summerland Test

The Lincoln Drilling Company's Williams No. 3 in the old Summerland field has been drilled to 1556 feet and is the deepest test in that area. More than 100 feet of oil sand is in evidence.

Lincoln Drilling's Williams No. 2 is producing from a depth of 1385 feet and Williams No. 1, the discovery well, eventually found steady production at 1350 feet, although originally brought in at 1250 feet and then drilled deeper.

A half-mile west of the Palisades field near Santa Barbara, Lincoln Drilling is drilling the Medcliff No. 1 as a deep test on a 160-acre lease that fronts the ocean for a mile. It is drilling below 2200 feet and no showings have yet been encountered.

Fishing Continues

The General Petroleum Corporation continues to fish for three-inch drill pipe frozen in Ochsner No. 2 on Sec. 26 on the north dome at Kettleman Hills. Top of the fish is at 7067 feet with bottom of the hole at 7321 feet. This difficulty developed a few days ago.

Completes Deep One

George F. Getty, Inc., yesterday brought in Getty No. 27 on the Baker lease at Santa Fe Springs for 3200 barrels of 33.7-deg. gravity oil a day from a depth of 7967 feet along with about 6,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Pressure is 400 pounds on the casing. Nearly 170 feet of oil sand was in evidence. Four-and-three-quarter-inch casing is set to 7763 feet with open hole to bottom.

In the old Summerland field Getty's Becker Fee No. 1 yesterday put out 115 barrels of oil. The Becker Fee No. 2, a short distance away, spudded in and is drilling below 100 feet, and Becker Fee No. 3 has derrick up. The Sandomo No. 1, a State tideland permit No. 18-1, is rigging up.

Completes Two

The Standard Oil Company yesterday completed South Whittier Community No. 21 at Santa Fe Springs for 1985 barrels of 33.2-deg. gravity oil a day from a depth of 7739 feet.

In the Midway field, Standard's No. 124 was brought in for 184 barrels of oil with bottom at 2530 feet.

Offset Fishing

The Standard Oil Company's No. 8 on the north dome at Kettleman Hills yesterday was fishing for a core barrel with bottom of the hole at 6440 feet. This undertaking offsets the Milham Exploration Company's Elliott No. 1, discovery well, flowing 2700 barrels of oil a day, and is but a short distance from the Continental Oil Company's Elliott No. 12-6, which is producing 6900 barrels of 61-deg. gravity oil a day.

Proves Up Acreage

Completion of the Pieter-Golay No. 1 of the Richfield Oil Company at Huntington Beach proved up a seventeen-acre lease and definitely shows that the upper Ashton formation is good for production. This project came in at 3580 feet for 175 barrels of 23-deg. gravity oil a day.

At Hermosa Beach, Richfield's Paige No. 1 is drilling below 3200 feet and will soon test the upper Ashton sand.

Richfield's Howard No. 5 at Santa Fe Springs is drilling below 7989 feet and may be completed this week. Four-and-one-half-inch casing is set to 7418 feet.

Deep Test Drilling

The Richfield Oil Company's Mayberry No. 1 at Santa Fe Springs is drilling below 5300 feet in search of deep production. This test is located on a ten-acre tract and is proven territory.

Makes Location

The Hansen No. 1 and Coffin No. 1 will be drilled by the Richfield Oil Company at Potrero and both will offset the Parker No. 1 producer of George F. Getty, Inc., near the intersection of Aerick street and Prairie avenue.

Richfield has approximately seventy acres at Potrero, thirty-five of which are in the town-lot area where York & Lockhart brought in No. 1 and the Parker No. 1.

May Complete Fishing

All but about 400 feet of drill pipe has been removed from the Scott McIntosh No. 1 test on the Isle Vista tract east of Elwood. More than 3200 feet of pipe were recently recovered and indications are that the remainder will be out in a day or two.

Production Test Near

Cement plug is being drilled out of the Langman No. 1 of Anderson & Garrison on Patterson avenue at Goleta and a production test may be made this week at about 4500 feet. Nearly 100 feet of oil sand is said to be in evidence in this test.

The Stevens No. 1 test a short distance north of the Langman No. 1 is sidetracking down past stuck drill pipe, having lost about 500 feet of hole.

STANDARD BUYS FITKIN UTILITY

Pacific Public Service Sold to California Company

Reported Price Consideration Fixed at $26,801,327

Statement Confirming Report Made at Local Office

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (P)—Sale of the Pacific Public Service Company to the Standard Oil Company of California for $26,801,327 was reported in Wall street today.

A. E. Fitkin announced that the sale had been made by A. E. Fitkin & Co. and associates, who disposed of 300,000 shares of Pacific Public Service Class B, or voting stock. He declined to name the purchaser, but advices from the West said it was the Standard Oil concern. The Fitkin company held 60 per cent of the stock and the remainder was owned by several other financial houses.

Organized in Delaware in 1926, Pacific Public Service consolidated a number of California companies dealing in electricity, gas and water. It serves gas and electricity to a district south of San Francisco.

Acquisition by Standard Oil of California would mark the latter's entry into the public-utility field. It was pointed out that the oil company might thus find an outlet for part of the natural gas wasted in the production of crude oil.

PURCHASE CONFIRMED BY STANDARD HEAD

Confirming the acquisition of the controlling interest of the Pacific Public Service Company, the Los Angeles offices of the Standard Oil Company of California yesterday issued the following statement authorized by K. R. Kingsbury, president:

"For the purpose of furthering the development and use of natural gas, the Standard Oil Company of California has purchased control of the Pacific Public Service Company of which Coast Counties Gas and Electric Company is a subsidiary and a distributor of manufactured gas.

"The Standard Oil Company of California owns in fee approximately 50 per cent of Kettleman Hills, where during the past year developments have indicated an enormous potential natural gas production in addition to crude oil. This holding together with other of its gas-bearing lands will enable the company to provide natural gas not only to its present customers, but also to the rapidly growing industrial development in the area served by the Coast Counties Gas and Electric Company.

"This purchase is significant also in that it is developing additional outlet for natural gas at a time when the new California gas conservation bill which prohibits the waste of natural gas becomes effective."

Net Earnings of Italo Oil Told

Consolidated net earnings of the Italo Petroleum Corporation of America totaled $1,132,893 for the eight months closed August 31, last, equivalent after preferred dividends to an annual rate of 31 cents a share on the common stock outstanding, Robert S. McKeon, general manager, announced yesterday. Income from the sale of products amounted to $2,216,041.

The company has materially increased its income in the past month, which Mr. McKeon declared, results from a greater production in the Santa Fe Springs field. The company was producing at the rate of 335,000 barrels a month, he said. Liabilities have been reduced $946,206 since April 30, last, totaling $2,098,902 as of August 31.

WARNING ON BOND ISSUE PUBLICITY

National Banks Advised to Scrutinize Carefully Tenor of Advertising

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—In an effort to prevent misleading information from being employed in bond advertising the Federal Reserve Board has issued a ruling for the guidance of national banks which act as trustees of bond issues to "scrutinize carefully" all such advertising for the protection of investors and of the banks. The ruling of the board is based on a specific case, the identity of which was not revealed by the board.

The case in point involved the alleged misuse of terms which implied that governmental agencies exerted supervisory powers over the bonds put out by the mortgage company through supervision of trustee. The Federal Farm Loan Act of July 17, 1916, as amended, prohibits the use of all words implying government ownership, obligation or supervision, unless the government is directly concerned in the issuance of the bonds.

The board desires, the statement says, to call this matter to the attention of all national banks, acting as trustees under bond issues and suggests that they scrutinize carefully all advertisements of bond issues under which they are acting as trustees with a view of preventing use of misleading statements similar to that quoted above, not only for the protection of prospective purchasers of such bonds but also for the protection the good names and reputations of such national banks themselves.

Power Utility Profits Jump

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) United Light & Power Company today reported for the twelve months to August 31, last, consolidated net income of $7,688,033 after charges, subsidiary preferred dividends, etc., equal after preferred dividends to $1.79 a share on 3,276,441 Class A and B shares, as against $5,553,663, or $126 a share on the combined shares in the 1928 period.

Gross earnings totaled $93,334,516 as against $86,864,826 in the 1928 period, while gross income available to United Light and Power Company was $10,717,753 as compared to $8,929,727.

CLAUDE NEON LOSES FIGHT WITH INSULL

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (Exclusive) Supreme Court Justice Cotillo today denied the application of Claude Neon Lights, Inc., for an injunction restraining Federal Electric Company, an Insull subsidiary, from selling its holdings in Claude Neon Federal Company to Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc.

CHAIN BANK ISSUE EVADED

Bankers' Convention Warned Against Too Hasty Remedies Proposed for National System

BY EARLE E. CROWE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Clearly the bankers attending the fifty-fifth annual convention here of the American Bankers' Association are side stepping an issue on the controversial question of what shall be done about the extension of branch banking.

Craig B. Hazlewood of Chicago, president of the association, sounded the "hands-off" warning when he appeared informally this morning before the national bank division in the opening session of the convention, in which it was feared hostilities would flare up prematurely as they did in Los Angeles in the 1926 convention of the association.

"Don't make any wild throws," advised the Chicago banker, in urging the national bank division to deliberate carefully on proposed remedies to check the alarming desertion of national banks to the ranks of the State-chartered institutions. "We may find that steps taken now will be completely out of line with the trend in three months' time."

BANK ISSUE DODGED

From the manner in which speakers on the program adroitly avoided definite recommendations on the way out of the national-bank dilemma, it appears the American Bankers' Association is not anxious to take the initiative in advocating the expansion of the branch systems. The prepared addresses today painted a gloomy picture of the competitive disadvantages under which the national banking system is laboring, but none of the speakers was willing to say just what should be done about it.

Apparently it will be up to Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole to make the first approach. Regarded as the spokesman for Secretary Mellon and the Washington administration, he is expected in his address on Wednesday to strike straight into a discussion of revolutionary proposals for the extension of branch banking by national banks on a nation-wide, Federal Reserve district, or State-wide scale.

Nevertheless, if convention gossip is reliable, it is not at all certain the American Bankers' Association will act formally on whatever recommendations for new regislation Comptroller Pole offers, provided he goes that far. Unless some impatient delegate precipitates a discussion from the floor, the bankers may elect to accord to the coming session of Congress the privilege of airing the arguments for and against the extension of branch banking.

NATIONALS MAY ACT

After hearing, however, of the deficiencies in the national bank laws frequently mentioned by speakers today, it is obvious the representatives from national banks are deeply stirred over conditions that allow State banks to operate with greater freedom.

The decline in importance of national banks was traced by George H. Hamilton, vice-president, Fourth National Bank, Wichita, Kan., when he stated that national banks now have less than 40 per cent of the total commercial banking resources, compared with 75 per cent in 1884.

"The McFadden Act," he explained, "for a time stopped the flow of this tide, but apparently it was only temporary, for during the few months of the present year national banks with resources of approximately $3,000,000,000 have surrendered their charters.

"While this enormous loss to the national banking system was largely caused by the merger of some of of the oldest and proudest names in the national bank directory, yet the defection is not limited to the largest cities. There recently has been formed a group of banks in one of our southern States wherein seven national banks changed to State charter, and hardly a day passes that the newspapers do not record a similar change somewhere in the United States."

As contributing causes to this defection, the speaker mentioned the recent United States Supreme Court decision in the MacAllen case, which nullifies the latest attempts to place the taxation of national banks on an equitable basis, and also the Worcester County National Bank case, in which the Supreme Court decided that a national bank cannot succeed to the trust business of a State bank when a national bank and a trust company merge under a national charter.

RESERVE THREATENED

Decline of the national bank system in importance was further emphasized by the Kansas banker as a threat at the Federal Reserve system, to which national banks are compelled to belong by law and to which State banks have the privilege of joining only if they desire.

Edgar H. Sensenich, president of the West Coast National Bank of Portland, Or., in his address as president of the national bank division, expressed the hopes of the expansionist group when he said the bank-holdings company which he heads would undoubtedly convert its banks into branches if the present legal restrictions were removed. This expression is unquestionably true of the attitude of scores of holding companies represented at this convention. They control chains of banks through stock ownership, purchased in anticipation of amendments in the national laws to permit branch banking on a broad scale.

From a technical point of view, the address of Arch W. Anderson, vice-president of the Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles, was one of the events of the day. His discussion of "The Investment Policy of a National Bank" was closely followed by the delegates. The subject, "The Growing Importance of the Trust Department in the Modern Bank," was ably treated by James A. Bacigalupi, president of the Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association.

Registration for the convention is expected to reach 5000 delegates and visitors by the time the first general session opens tomorrow morning.

CAUTION URGED BEFORE SIGNING ON DOTTED LINE

Many people attach too little importance to papers they sign in connection with purchase agreements entered into, according to a bulletin just released by the National Better Business Bureau, 383 Madison avenue, New York City. This warning is contained in one of the bureau's regular weekly posters exhibited in industrial centers this week. It has been found that all too many men and women from all walks of life put their signatures on printed forms without reading them carefully.

While the great majority of dealers who use purchase agreement forms are careful to acquaint their customers with every detail of the contract, the bureau points out that there are those of the swindler's gentry who employ tricky salesmen to get signatures on agreements that are contrary to understandings they create verbally. This practice is successful because of public carelessness in signing trade agreements.

A bulletin from the bureau to the personnel heads in companies which are co-operating in the nation-wide educational program reads in part:

"These swindlers are not confined to any one type of business nor are their deals always in small amounts. They range in practice from schemes carried on from door to door involving a few dollars to obligations which bind the purchaser to pay several hundreds of dollars over a period of a year or longer. Even executives of business firms have signed what they thought was a questionnaire or delivery instructions only later to discover that they had committed themselves to substantial obligations.

"Among the most common complaints received by the National Better Business Bureau are those that arise through retail sales of radios, pianos, electrical household equipment, etc. Some dealers resort to trickery such as advertising that "$2 Down" delivers the article. Purchasers in response to the advertisement pay the $2 and sign an agreement to make monthly payments of certain amounts. When the article is delivered they learn for the first time that they signed an agreement to make a substantial additional down payment as soon as delivery is made.

"Other complaints from the same field report that the article delivered is not the one they saw in the store when purchase was made. The style number and serial number in the contract which they signed, however, are identical with those of the article which was delivered.

"The honest dealer welcomes a competent inquiry into the agreement he asks his customer to sign. Any one who signs an agreement without reading and understanding it is without any legal recourse if later it is discovered the agreement is contrary to verbal understanding."

CANADA BANKING ATTRACTS

Dominion Financier Much Sought After at Annual Meeting of American Association

[Copyright, 1929, by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The 6000 bankers here from all parts of the United States and Canada to attend the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the American Bankers' Association represent about 92 per cent of the 25,000 banks in the United States which have approximately $72,000,000,000 of assets under their control. Big problems are up for discussion. Many Canadian bankers are here. They are in great demand, too. One sees little groups surrounding each of them in the lobbies of the hotel and outside of the meeting rooms.

Perhaps at no time in American banking history has the Canadian system been given such a thorough study.

The American banker — he who has prospered under the unit system—sees the ground moving from under his feet. What next?

S. H. Logan, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, is particularly sought after. His bank, one of the "big three" of Canada, has had a long experience in the branch-banking field. Naturally his advice just now is eagerly sought.

A word about Canadian banking. At the end of 1928 Canada had just ten banks. These ten had 4153 branches, all of them located in Canada with the exception of 187.

But Canadian banking, too, has been going through a process of centralization and consolidation. Since 1867 Canada has had twenty-six bank insolvencies. The last one, which suspended business in August, 1923, was the Home Bank of Canada. At that time it had assets of nearly $27,500,000.

Of these twenty-seven banks only six of them had capital of $1,000,000 or over. The largest bank ever to suspend in Canada was the Sovereign Bank, which closed its doors in 1918. This bank had $3,000,000 capital and about $30,000,000 of assets, but it paid out its depositors 100 cents on the dollar.

As a matter of fact, Canadian depositors have lost but very little. But a fraction of what has been lost in American banks during the past eight years. Fifteen of the banks that closed—and all of them in the modern sense were small—paid their depositors in full. Three are yet in receivership. But only two very small banks lost their depositors any substantial amount of money. So much for the dark side of Canadian banking, compared to losses suffered by depositors in American banks during the past ten years, it can hardly be considered a dark side.

What's wrong with the National Bank Act? Why have the aggregate resources of the national banks of the United States gone down from 75 per cent of the total banking resources in 1884 to less than 40 per cent?

This is the question which occupied the best thought of the bankers yesterday. It was brought out that in total resources the national banks are trailing the State banks in most of the large cities of the country—notably in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and San Francisco.

It was further brought out that for a brief time and just prior to the passage of the McFadden bill national bank resources shrank and State banks gained in excess of $2,250,000,000. For a time the McFadden Act stopped this flow, but it was only temporary. It began again about a year ago. Since then no less than eighty-five large banks have given up their national charters for State charters, resulting in a loss of more than $3,000,000,000 to the national-banking system.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Further liquidation developed in today's stock market and prices generally lost ground despite the repeated efforts of bull operators to bring about a general rally. NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—The heaviness that marked the course of last week's bond market was still in evidence today, although to a lesser degree. Convertibles were highly irregular, while mortgage issues, especially in the railroad group, moved on a slightly firmer footing. There was no change in the rate for time money.

Stock option bonds went through some wide swings and finished with gains and losses distributed with fair evenness. American Telephone 4½s got down to 210, but recovered in the last half hour to bring the closing price up to 212½, off fractionally on the day. International Telephone 4½s were in lower ground throughout most of the session and showed a net loss of 3 points in finishing at 189. It was the first time in several weeks that the debentures had closed below 190. American International 5½s and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s were also easy, but American I. G. Chemical 5½s were supported sufficiently to bring out a small advance.

Speculative rails moved irregularly. St. Paul 5s advanced a point, but the adjustment 5s were off nearly 2. Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5s held steady. The time limit for their deposit under the reorganization plan expired today. There was considerable activity in these bonds as well as in the same road's refunding 4s, the latter rising a full point. Ulster and Delaware 4s advanced 3 points. New Orleans Terminal 4s and Providence Terminal 4s went into low ground. The market for prime carriers ruled exceptionally thin, but a handful of the secondary rails moved ahead.

Industrials displayed some firmness, with Chile Copper 5s, Liggett & Myers Tobacco 5s and U. S. Rubber 5s making nominal improvement. Press Steel Car 5s equaled their year's low at 83 and International Cement 5s touched a new minimum before recovering.

United States government Treasuries and Liberties weakened in exceedingly desultory trading. Foreign bonds showed a few nominal swings in both directions, but all were on small transactions.

Utilities eased slightly.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in thousands of dollars) and the high, low and closing prices in the order given. To expedite transmission, the close is omitted when the same as the low, and both low and close when same as high.

BAY CITY CURB

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—The curb market continued the haphazard trading which has characterized it for some time. The majority of the issues opened at or above the previous closing prices, but as the session progressed, a tone of irregularity entered, which caused some to close above and others to close under the opening prices.

METAL MARKETS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Daily Metal Trade today says: Steel wire demand is lagging in the Chicago district and nail buying is so light it is difficult to peg a definite market position in view of the concessions offered. On the other hand specifications for manufacturers' wire are running into a fairly heavy tonnage.

Prospects for structural steel buying in the West are improving despite the fact lettings are somewhat disappointing. Industrial building, railroad bridge work and repairs continue the chief outlets at present.

TRADE QUIET ON METAL MARKET

Prices Reported as Holding Firm and Unchanged

Improvement Signs in Lead Status Noted Abroad

Position of Zinc Continues in Unsatisfactory Rut

BY CHARLES F. WILLIS
Editor The Mining Journal, Phoenix

The nonferrous metal markets are quiet with but a nominal demand and an anticipation that more active buying is not far away. Prices are strong and unchanged, copper remaining at 17.87 f.o.b. refinery, lead at 6.90 New York and zinc at 6.80 St. Louis. There are no indications of near-by price changes.

Zinc buying is very light and if it were not for an occasional large order which bolsters up the total, it would be an uninteresting market. The purchases are practically all for immediate delivery and no covering of requirements for business booked for future delivery. If zinc should develop a buying wave it is predicted that the price will advance to 7.00 f.o.b. St. Louis and it is felt that the buying cannot be much longer postponed.

There is considerable anticipation as to what is going to come out of a recent meeting of the Zinc Cartel toward correcting the depressed condition of this industry. It is expected that there will be a further shrinkage of production abroad. The production cuts since the beginning of the year have been, February, March, July, August and September, 10 per cent, January and April, 7 per cent and May and June, 5 per cent. It would seem now as though it would be necessary to cut even more than 10 per cent or to keep that cut over a longer period.

Lead has gone through an excellent buying wave and it is to be expected that buying will now be slow for a while. There is not much October metal to be purchased and there has even been much interest in November. The buying was general with practically all classes of consumers.

The recent steadiness of the lead market has been attributed to the organization of the Lead Producers' Association abroad which has stabilized conditions in Europe. European lead business has been well maintained with a fair interest and a good demand. The European market is now pretty well controlled but the statistical position does not indicate any marked changes in price.

LEAD DATA BRIGHTER

The August lead statistics make a favorable showing, particularly as far as production is concerned. Crude output in the United States and Mexico last month amounted to 78,748 tons, a decrease of 5688 tons from the July total. The August total was the lowest for any month since February of this year.

Refined production in August dropped 6305 tons from the preceding month, the August total being 85,258 tons, the lowest for any month since last April. This decrease, however, was offset by the gain in antimonial lead output which in August came to 2634 tons as compared with 734 tons in July, an increase of 1630 tons. The combined refined and antimonial lead output last month was 87,622 tons as against 92,297 tons in July, a decrease of 4675 tons.

At the beginning of September, refined stocks amounted to 69,872 tons, a gain of 2883 tons over the previous month. Antimonial lead stocks also increased 738 tons to 6703 tons on September 1. The combined increase was therefore, 3621 tons.

The indications are that October copper has been well bought up and that there is considerable November metal already purchased although not enough to fulfill requirements. The purchases for December and beyond are small and the producers are not actively seeking business that far ahead.

STRIKE CURTAILS OUTPUT

A strike at one of the larger refineries at Chrome, N. J., will reduce the copper output materially for this month, although any drop in refined will be balanced by a similar rise in blister stocks. There is ample refined metal available from other refineries.

The strike has now been settled but only after a loss of about 10,000 tons in output which, when considered in relation to the marked increase in foreign and domestic shipments for September, will bring about a substantial reduction in refined stocks.

The world's production of copper in August was 173,729 tons. This compares with 174,347 tons in July and 196,820 tons in April, the peak month of the year to date. A year ago in August, production amounted to 161,838 tons.

DAILY AVERAGE LOW

Daily average for world production of copper in August was 5604 tons, compared with 5624 tons in July, 5820 in June and 6561 tons in April, record daily average for any month in history of the industry.

World production for first eight months was 1,450,736 tons, monthly average of 175,717 tons, compared with monthly average of 159,706 tons for full year 1928.

Domestic shipments of copper for the first eight months of 1929 have been 22,500 tons greater than in the whole year of 1924 and almost up to the full year of 1927. The shipments could average but 50,000 tons monthly for the balance of the year and still exceed 1928 and, if the next four months' average should equal the past four months, there would be a record consumption for 1929 of 1,173,189 tons, which is greater than 1922 and 1923 put together.

However, we have not exported as much copper in the first eight months of this year as for the like period a year ago, the totals for the eight months' period being 413,681 tons in 1929 against 469,113 tons to August 31, 1928, a decrease of almost 12 per cent. Thus far in 1929, Germany has been our best copper customer, taking 26 per cent of our export. Great Britain comes next with 23 per cent and France third with 21 per cent.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Union Oil Issues Dominate Trading Operations and With Edison Hit New Peaks

Union Oil issues virtually ran away with the trading yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and with Southern California Edison common and original preferred stocks, again broke through to new record high prices. Irregular fluctuations marked trading in the balance of the list.

Nearly 10,000 shares of Union Oil crossed the board while Union Associates was traded to the extent of 14,000 shares. The former shot up to a new top at 56 1-8 and closed at 55 5-8 for a net gain of 5-8 and the latter advanced 1 3-8 to the new high at 55 1-4 and closed at 54 7-8 for a net gain of 1 point.

Southern California Edison common jumped 1 point to a new peak at 91½ and ended the session at 90, off ½ net. The original preferred moved sympathetically and closed at a new top at 86½, up ½. Pacific Public Service traded quietly at 32½, off 1-4, while Pacific Lighting slumped 7 1-4 points to 132 3-4.

Pacific Western Oil continued to sell briskly and firmed up 3-8 to 23 3-8. Rio Grande gained a point to 29 and Standard of California ½ to 74, while Richfield fell off 5-8 to 39.

Transamerica new sold down 3-8 to 65½ and the old stock closed at 164 1-8, off 7-8. Pacific Finance firmed up ½ to 152½ and Pacific National Company dropped off 2 points to 18. Security-First National Bank gained ½ to 137 and California Bank advanced a point to 140.

Sales totaled 59,909 shares, valued at $2,531,804; previous day, 38,446 shares valued at $1,601,002.

REPORT ISSUED

Insurance business has grown fourteen times as fast as the population of the United States during the past twenty-five years, according to a survey being issued by Seymour & Co., investment bankers. A typical group of thirty-four American companies show increased assets from $263,000,000 in 1902 to more than $2,000,000 in 1928.

LASE

INVESTING IN 30 BASIC INDUSTRIES
WITH A SINGLE INVESTMENT

In BASIC INDUSTRY SHARES investors are offered an opportunity to obtain a unified interest in the growth and prosperity of 30 basic American industries, which directly or indirectly serve practically every major need of the American people.

Through participation in the earnings and asset values of these great corporations, holders of BASIC INDUSTRY SHARES become partners with our large railroads, such as the Pennsylvania and New York Central; our important utilities, such as the American Telephone & Telegraph and Westinghouse; our great industrial giants, such as U. S. Steel and duPont; and the Standard Oil group. Continued soundness of the investment is assured because the underlying stocks represent a fixed interest in the normal growth of the United States.

We will be glad to give additional information on this "Partnership in America's Basic Industries" upon request.

Every housewife knows that the little blue wind-mill stands for Van de Kamp's Holland Dutch Bakers, Inc., and incidentally for the best in baking goods. It is because of the housewife's increasing patronage that net profits increased 55% during the first eight months of 1929.

The Corporation's common stock, listed on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, presents an exceptional opportunity for the shrewd investor.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Prices on the New York Curb Exchange continued to offer little resistance to selling pressure today with the result that a long list of stocks closed at net declines of 1 to 10 points, with a few high priced issues showing even larger declines. As as been customary recently, a sprinkling of issues continued to move against the general trend on buying influenced by rumors of special developments.

An advance in the call money rate from 9 to 10 per cent and the recent lack of sustained rallying power either on the curb or the "big board" led to a further lightening of holdings, particularly by traders whose margins have been impaired by the recent break. The selling embraced practically all groups of stocks, but trading was only moderately heavy in volume.

Stocks of recently formed investment trust and trading corporations continued under pressure on the theory that stocks held in their portfolios probably show a marked depreciation as a result of the recent decline in prices. The Blue Ridge issues and Tricontinental Allied dropped into new low ground, and several others were down a point or more to within striking distance of the year's low prices.

The drop in several of these issues to prices below which they were offered for public subscription undoubtedly has delayed the offering of securities of several other trusts reported to be in the process of formation a few weeks ago.

Public utilities were again hard hit. Electric Bond and Share dropped from an early high of 175¾ to 168¾, off 4¾ net, and Electric Investors, stockholders of which recently were given an opportunity to exchange their holdings for Bond and Share, fell back more than 8 points. American Light and Traction dropped 14 points on a few sales. Allied Power, American Super Power and several others lost 2 points or more.

A few outstanding strong spots developed in the industrial list. Crocker-Wheeler (old) ran up 35 points and the new stock 6 and Dow Chemical (old) 29 and the new stock 2, all to new high records. Donner Steel jumped 5 points to a new top at 45. American Cyanamid B failed to respond to the announcement of valuable stock purchase rights, losing 2⅝ points.

Oils were mixed, Gulf dropping more than 3 points while International Petroleum, Vacuum and Standard Oil of Kentucky showed moderate gains. Aviation Corporation of America rallied 3¼ points but Western Air Express, which had sold as high as 78¾ this year, sank to a new low at 45.

The closing price is omitted when same as the low, and both low and close when same as the high.

FLOOD OF STOCK SELLING ABATES

5 per cent on most high grade industrial and railroad stocks and a yield of less than 3 per cent of many public utilities.

Weakness of high-grade railroad shares, several of which sold down 3 to 7 points and only made partial recovery, was a source of concern to heavy holders of stocks. This was attributed, in part, to heavy foreign selling, resulting, indirectly at least, from the Hatry collapse and the higher bank rate. With August railroad earnings running nearly 10 per cent above the same amount last year, and freight-car loadings being maintained in large volume, Wall street naturally was disturbed at the weakness of the carrier issues.

Outside of the credit situation there was nothing in the day's news to account for the continued selling. Banks are believed to have called between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in loans in connection with the $1,000,000,000 turnover of funds around October 1. With the peak of the fall commercial demands likely to be reached within the next fortnight and no additional large imports of gold likely, Wall street sees little hope of any immediate relaxation in money rates, barring the further drastic liquidation of stocks.

CUTTEN BULLISH

Operators for the rise gained a little comfort from the statement of Arthur W. Cutten, one of the leaders of the recent bull market, that he was not liquidating his holdings and saw no signs of a general recession in business. Stocks with which Mr. Cutten's name has been associated declined, however, with the rest of the list.

A few stocks moved against the general trend, particularly in the oil group. Houston Oil ran up more than 7 points and retained all but a point of its gain, on unconfirmed rumors that it would figure in a huge merger of Southwest Natural Gas properties. Mexican Seaboard ran up nearly 5 points on rumors of important developments in the Kettleman Hills field. The quick advance of more than 10 points in Pierce Oil preferred, a third of which was lost, was somewhat of a mystery as no dividend has been paid since January, 1922, and there has been no official intimation of any plan to pay up the arrears of nearly $60 a share.

United States Steel common sank to another new low on the current decline at 221 1-8, which contrasts with the high of 261 3-4 established earlier in the month. Fresh selling in the motor group carried Chrysler and Marmon to new lows for the year. General Electric, Johns-Manville, American Water Works and a number of other so-called "blue-chip" issues lost 4 to 7 points.

All the leading commodity markets pointed upward, with unfavorable weather and forecasts a dominating factor in nearly all cases. Cotton advanced 50 cents to nearly $1 a bale, wheat from 1 to 2½ cents a bushel and corn about a cent a bushel.

Establishment of a new high for the year by sterling cables at $4.85 3-4 was the chief development in the foreign-exchange market, although the further withdrawals of gold in London for shipment to France aroused doubts that the higher bank rate would prove effective in conserving or replenishing England's depleted gold supply.

London Market Tone Irregular

LONDON, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The stock market had an irregular tone today with trading on a somewhat smaller scale. Shares of international interest were in good demand and hydroelectric and traction issues were strong. Talking-machine securities were lower and margarine issues were in supply. The tobacco list had a firmer tone and nickel, molasses and match securities were in better demand. Artificial silks, textiles and rubbers were quiet, while the oil list was easier with Royal Dutch in supply. The mining group was sharply lower. Ford Motors, Ltd., was quoted around £3 5-8 and Brazilian Traction ordinary around £76. The giltedge division was quiet. Foreign issues were dull. Home rails were easier and Argentine rails irregular.

LOS ANGELES CITY & COUNTY Improvement Bonds

Assignments of Ownership Series No. 20

DISTRICT BOND COMPANY

Greater Convenience to the Investor

California Improvement Bonds are largely responsible for the ability of California communities to have the best roads, the best streets and generally the best public improvements in the world. These bonds, however, being first liens on specific parcels of real property, are issued in odd denominations, for the exact amount assessed against the property. They are also in installment form, one-tenth of the principal being payable each year.

In order to eliminate the inconvenience of handling these small uneven denominations and yearly payments of principal, Assignments of Ownership are executed by DISTRICT BOND COMPANY. These Assignments convey to the investor actual title to the desired amount of the improvement bonds, which are deposited with the TITLE INSURANCE AND TRUST COMPANY, Los Angeles, as Trustee. The Assignments are executed by this company and authenticated by the Trustee in any desired amount from $100 to $100,000, and are available for periods of from three to five years. There are no coupons to cash, as interest is collected by the District Bond Company and remitted directly to the investor by check on February 1st and August 1st of each year.

Tested Security Ranking Prior to all Mortgages

These bonds have been issued by the City or County of Los Angeles, principally under the 1911 Act and County Improvement Act, for street or other similar public improvements. Improvement Bonds are payable out of taxes, and as most of the deposited bonds are secured by residential property, the moral risk is of the highest type. Each bond is for the amount of the assessment against a specific lot and is a first lien against the property, taking precedence over mortgages, judgments and mechanic's liens, even when such liens were in existence before the improvement bond was issued. Population and growth invariably follow well improved streets, the improvement itself increases the value of the property assessed to an extent that greatly exceeds the amount of the bond, and the bond represents but a small fraction of the total value of the property.

Los Angeles City and County Improvement Bonds are a basic real estate security and possess all the fundamentals requisite to a sound and conservative investment. For the past 35 years, a large percentage of the street work in California has been financed by bonds of this character, and the legality and investment strength of these issues have been thoroughly established.

Wide Diversification in a Single Investment

Another advantage of the Assignment of Ownership is the broad diversification of security which it makes possible. The holder of such an Assignment owns a proportionate interest in the entire group of many small bonds, covering various types of property, deposited with the Trustee, instead of holding a few large individual bonds. Thus he is afforded a maximum diversification through a single investment, regardless of its amount... a principle underlying the phenomenal success of the investment trust.

Interests of Investor Safeguarded

The service accompanying every bond covered by Assignments of Ownership executed by the DISTRICT BOND COMPANY begins long before the bonds are even issued, and continues until the last payment of principal and interest has been made. Each bond has first been purchased by DISTRICT BOND COMPANY with its own funds and for its own account. Each piece of property which is assessed to pay the bond is first carefully appraised and the engineering details of the work checked by a competent technical staff. An examination is then made of the proceedings had in connection with the issuance of the bonds by attorneys who are authorities and specialists in this particular line of work. The bonds are not purchased until the DISTRICT BOND COMPANY has received from such attorneys a written opinion stating that all steps taken by the Municipality in regard to the issuance of the bonds are legal and valid and that when issued the bonds will constitute a first lien against the property assessed. If the particular issue favorably passes these rigid tests, it is then purchased by the DISTRICT BOND COMPANY.

The Guaranty of a $1,800,000 Company

Payment of principal and interest on all deposited bonds is unconditionally guaranteed by the DISTRICT BOND COMPANY whose paid-up capital and surplus exceed $1,800,000. The guaranty of this old-established company, backed by directors and stockholders including leading Los Angeles business men and bankers, is an additional safeguard rarely obtainable in a security of this type. This guaranty is deposited with the Trustee for the protection of Assignment holders.

Unusually Liberal Tax-exempt Income

Combined with this exceptional security, diversification and convenience, goes a decidedly liberal 6% income which is absolutely net to the investor, being exempt from all Federal Income Tax and California Personal Property Tax. This yield is materially higher than is offered by other classes of California tax-exempt bonds carrying no greater safeguards.

Apply the test of comparison to this offering... consider its features, point for point, in comparison with other securities in the markst today. We shall be glad to furnish further details on request without obligation.

Tone on Wheat Market Firmer in Brisk Buying

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Assertions that heavy accumulations of wheat stocks are at an end, both in the United States and Canada, helped to lift wheat values today. During the late transactions here, sharp gains in price were scored, despite earlier setbacks that accompanied unlooked for weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool and reports of rains in Australia and Argentina. Big deliveries of wheat tomorrow on October contracts at Liverpool were predicted.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were firm at about the day's top level, 1@2¼c above Saturday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1¼c higher, oats ⅛@1¼c up and provisions ranging from 15c decline to a rise of 2c.

Decided falling off shown in primary receipts of domestic wheat furnished one of the chief reasons for persistent buying that became manifest here in the wheat future delivery pit as the day drew to an end. In this connection leading trade authorities said that the arrivals at primary centers would undoubtedly continue small and that Canadian receipts promised soon to become very light. Primary receipts of wheat in the United States today were only 2,112,000 bushels, compared with 5,468,000 bushels a year ago. Under such circumstances, little or no significance was attached to an increase today of 2,383,000 bushels shown by the domestic visible supply total.

Friends of higher prices for wheat pointed out, too, that rains reported today in Australia and Argentina were not considered likely to have much effect on wheat yields, and furthermore that unseasonably dry weather continues to prevail over India. All regular storage space for wheat in Liverpool was today reported filled to capacity and the amount of wheat on ocean passage remained above last year's total, although substantially decreased from a week ago. It was in view of this showing, together with apparent slackness of North American export demand that before today's rallies set in, the Chicago wheat market temporarily descended to the lowest level reached since July 11, last. Both on this downturn, however, and on the ensuing upward swings, a big trade here in wheat future deliveries was witnessed.

Corn and oats showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure. Frost was predicted for tonight in Northern Iowa, and some frost was noted this morning at several places.

Provisions were easier, owing largely to a setback in hog values.

When Industry Employs Heat Natural Gas is the Ideal Fuel

Wherever heat is of paramount importance in industry, natural gas holds an outstanding position among fuels. Readily adaptable to quick and accurate temperature variations, it is almost indispensable in the treating of steel, the hardness, softness and flexibility of which depend upon subjection to carefully regulated heat variations.

Natural gas is flexible—it can be used to cook the family dinner in the tiny kitchen range of a modern apartment or to melt many tons of iron in a great industrial plant. It is a clean fuel, eliminating smoke, soot, ashes and coal dust. Its use does away with costly coal handling and ash removal, storage of coal and tying up of capital in fuel supply.

Southern Natural Gas Corporation is constructing an interstate natural gas transmission system, scheduled for completion by December 31, 1929. This system, which will consist of approximately 830 miles of transmission lines, will transport natural gas from the extensive Louisiana gas fields through Mississippi and the Birmingham district in Alabama to Atlanta, Georgia, and to many other large cities and municipalities. It will constitute one of the largest natural gas utilities in this country.

We bid for shrewd customers!

WE HAVE NO FANCY PACKAGE . . of high-priced location . . or glittering string of non-working directorate . . surrounding the MUTUAL Building and Loan Association of Pomona . . but we have delivered the goods . . of six per cent and safety . . through 36½ years.

WE MAINTAIN OUR QUALITY and favor of old-fashioned conservatism, in the same way that a Vermont farmer finds a steady demand for his real maple syrup. This small-town institution may be a "sap" for economy and carefulness. We have built THREE STATE RECORDS that way. You like that.

SHREWD CUSTOMERS WANT QUALITY SERVICE . . of the sort that Pomona Valley . . has watched for 36½ years . . in the 6% thrift service of the MUTUAL Building and Loan Association OF POMONA.

Continuous independent audit and monthly publication of statement is a method of many years' standing with the MUTUAL of POMONA. Our friends and neighbors of Pomona Valley KNOW our safety methods, with one loan-loss in 36½ years.

We serve you in Los Angeles, economically, in our 10th floor offices. Conveniently, with one hour's free parking in the garage basement. Just south of 7th Street, on the west side of Spring Street. Take the elevator, and we validate your ticket, pleasantly, without gush or grab.

War on Glare of Headlights Opens Today

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 30. (AP)—A State-wide campaign against glaring headlights will be launched tomorrow by the California committee on public safety, backed by Gov. Young and the State Highway Patrol.

For the first fifteen days of October California motorists will be educated to the necessity of eliminating glaring headlights. For the remainder of the month State traffic officers and police departments will concentrate in a drive against motorists for failure to have the requisite number of headlights and for having glaring headlights.

Gov. Young and the Mayors of sixty-five major cities of California have issued proclamations urging co-operation with the public safety committee.

Efforts will be made by the committee to have justices of the peace and State recorders impose fines on those found to be violating the headlight law.

MERCED, Sept. 30. (AP)—A deed was filed with the County Recorder today conveying to the State of California, from Miller & Lux, 3000 acres on the San Joaquin River, Merced county, to be used as a water fowl refuge.

The refuge is located four miles northeast of Los Banos and is mostly part of the old Santa Rita ranch. Water rights go with the purchase.

Clew Gained in Wolfskill Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Edward O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist investigating the mysterious death of Edith Irene Wolfskill, eccentric Solano county heiress, today announced he has data which will identify the owner of the overalls in which the woman's body was clothed when found.

The next important step, said Heinrich, will be to find the owner of the overalls, whom he expects will be able to shed an important light on the woman's death.

ILLNESS OF PRINCESS ALARMING

Eldest Sister of British King Stricken by Serious Gastric Ailment

BRAEMER (Scotland) Sept. 30. (AP)—The health of Princess Louise, Princess Royal of Great Britain and eldest sister of King George, is causing some concern. A bulletin issued today said:

"The Princess Royal had a slight gastric hemorrhage yesterday. Her Royal Highness passed a restful night but the condition of her heart causes some anxiety."

The Princess Royal, who is 62 years of age, is two years younger than King George. In court circles it has been said that the name Princess Royal was conferred by King Edward, her father, some years prior to 1905.

The Princess suffered from a chill several days ago which developed into gastric trouble with hemorrhage. She suffered from similar trouble in 1925, but recovered within a comparatively short time, gaining after a blood transfusion.

Three doctors are in attendance.

SHORTRIDGE BLAMED FOR RESIGNATION

Federal Attorney's Aide in Bay City Says Political Clique Forces Him Out

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—George M. Naus, assistant United States Attorney here, today mailed his resignation to the Attorney-General at Washington.

Naus, in a lengthy statement attached to his resignation, made charges of political machinations in the Federal Building here and attributed his resignation to politics involving Senator Shortridge, Raymond Benjamin, one-time Republican State Chairman, and George J. Hatfield, United States Attorney, who will be eligible for reappointment in December.

Hatfield countered with a statement in which he said Naus had been asked to resign because of his attempt to promote an affidavit "reflecting upon the official conduct of Federal Judge Louderback."

Naus said Hatfield had asked for his resignation solely for political reasons, to satisfy the demands of politicians. The resigning assistant prosecutor said a dispute with Judge Louderback brought down upon him the wrath of a clique which, he said, has been trying to run affairs at the Federal Building since election of Shortridge as United States Senator.

Owners Bid in Libeled Tanker

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—The Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, which struck and sank the Los Angeles and San Francisco Navigation Company's liner San Juan off Pigeon Point on the night of August 29, last, was sold at public auction today to the Standard Oil Company, former owners, for $425,000.

Shortly following the sinking of the San Juan owners of the vessel libeled the Dodd for $1,800,000. The sale of the tanker was for the purpose of limiting liability on the part of the Standard Oil Company and to release the ship from impoundment.

RECEIPTS IN POSTOFFICE TAKE SPURT

Customs Collections This September Also Increase Over Month in 1928

Postoffice receipts for the Los Angeles office took a jump upward this September, as compared with the same month in 1928, according to a report made yesterday by Postmaster O'Brien. The figures show that receipts this September were $816,640.60, in comparison with $715,472.84, showing an increase of 14.14 per cent, or $101,167.85.

Customs for the month also showed an increase. Figures compiled by Collector of Customs Schwaebe, showed that the value of imports increased from $3,838,502 in September, 1928, to $3,950,000 for the same month of this year, and the exports from $10,816,847 in September, 1928, to $11,250,000 for the month this year.

Collections of customs this September reached $650,000 and shipments to Hawaii were valued at $575,000.

Woman Flyer's Funeral Planned for Tomorrow

The funeral of Josephine Callaghan, armless woman aviator who was killed when her plane crashed near Abilene, Tex., will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at Rosedale chapel, 1831 West Washington street. Interment will be in Rosedale Cemetery.

Miss Callaghan's body arrived here yesterday morning and was taken to the mortuary of Cunningham & O'Connor. Arrangements for the funeral were made by Henry W. O'Melveny, who was not only Miss Callaghan's attorney, but also a friend of her father, the late Sherwood Callaghan.

The only close relatives of Miss Callaghan are her mother and her sister, Mrs. Bertha Braithwaite, both of whom reside in England. Her own home was at Encino, where she had a large ranch.

APPOINTMENT DEFERRED

Due to the press of business and the length of protest hearings the City Council yesterday was unable to take up the matter of appointing Bernard Donnelly as director of airports, and for the third time this matter was continued. It will be heard tomorrow.

TWO PANTAGES PLEAS REFUSED

Change of Venue and Delay in Trial Both Denied

Dist.-Atty. Fitts Called for Questions by Defense

Accused Theater Man Says Health Has Suffered

Alexander Pantages suffered two court defeats yesterday on the eve of the commencement of his trial in Superior Judge Fricke's court at 10 o'clock this morning on charges that he attacked Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old university girl and dancer.

The Pantages reversals came yesterday when Judge Fricke denied, for the time being at least, a motion for a change of venue in the attack case, and a few minutes later denied another defense request that trial be put over at least thirty days.

The matter of the change of venue was argued at some length, and Dist.-Atty. Fitts was called to the stand to give sworn testimony at one stage of the proceedings. Pantages took the stand too, when the request was made for a postponement of the trial to assert that, because of the attention he had to give his wife during her trial, he had not had sufficient time to prepare for his own defense.

FITTS TESTIFIES

Fitts was called to the stand by Defense Attorneys Gilbert and Ford in an effort to substantiate the assertions contained in affidavits filed last Saturday that an unprejudiced jury cannot be found in Los Angeles county because of the statements made public by Fitts and because of the radio utterances of Rev. R. P. Shuler.

Attorney Ford tried without success to draw admissions from the District Attorney that those to whom he (Fitts) had talked had expressed the opinion that Pantages is guilty, and that Fitts once had declared that he would object to a continuance of the case because the public was "inflamed" and was demanding Pantages's prosecution without loss of time. Fitts also denied that he ever had said that Pantages, personally, was guilty of trying to tamper with witnesses, but said that guards had been supplied to certain witnesses when they complained of having been approached and had asked for protection.

MANY OBJECTIONS

The testimony of the witness was interrupted often by objections to Fords questions by Chief Deputy Attorney Robert Stewart, and the judge often was called on for rulings. The crowded courtroom chuckled at one point, when Ford observed, while in the course of an argument over a legal point:

"Your Honor, I have here a book on criminal law by Fricke that bears me out."

He displayed a volume compiled some time ago by Judge Fricke and now in general distribution.

"Well, if the book disagrees with the court the book is wrong," said His Honor, returning Ford's smile.

After listening to both sides of the argument—the District Attorney's office vigorously opposing the proposed change of venue—Judge Fricke ruled that there was not sufficient evidence at this time to warrant a change of venue, but stated that if it develops when the selection of the jury is under way that it is impossible to find jurors with open minds in the case, the defense lawyers again will have an opportunity to present their motion for a change of venue.

CONTINUANCE DENIED

That question being settled, Ford and Gilbert immediately presented the motion for a thirty-day continuance on the ground that neither they nor Pantages, because of Mrs. Pantages's trial, have had time to prepare their case. Pantages took the stand and testified that he is 54 years of age, and that he has lost twenty pounds in weight since the day he was arrested. He said he weighed 148 pounds on that day—August 9, last—and now weighs 128 pounds.

He declared that he is not physically able to stand the ordeal of a trial and furthermore has not had time to prepare his case. Under cross-examination by Fitts, however, he admitted that he has held conferences with his lawyers, and was present when a prospective de-

MRS. PANTAGES WINS DELAY

Court Grants Five More Days Before Decision on New Trial or Passing of Sentence

Five more days before sentence is pronounced or a new trial granted were won for Mrs. Lois Pantages, convicted of manslughater in connection with the death of Joe Rokumoto in an automobile accident, in Superior Judge Hardy's court yesterday morning.

But the wife of the millionaire theater owner was of little help to Defense Counsel W. I. Gilbert and Joseph Ford as she reclined in the wheel chair in which she was brought into court. She was unconscious during most of the brief court proceedings.

Next Saturday morning at 9 o'clock a motion for a new trial which sets up seventeen reasons why a new trial should be granted will be argued by Gilbert and Ford. Then, if this motion is denied, either another asking permission to file an application for probation will be made or the convicted woman will be sentenced.

No definite information from the defense camp came yesterday as to whether probation will or will not be asked. "We wish to argue the motion for a new trial before the next step is taken up," declared attorneys for the convicted woman.

Mrs. Pantages, who was released under $50,000 bail following her conviction last Wednesday, came to court in a wheel chair surrounded by two nurses, a physician and members of her family. A male nurse entered the courtroom bearing a tray full of restoratives and placed his medicine, smelling salts, and other things, on the counsel table.

Dressed in deep black and swathed in a black blanket, Mrs. Pantages lay in the wheel chair without movement except when her head fell forward on her breast in unconsciousness. Only once did she open her eyes during the entire proceedings, and that was when Dr. Benjamin Blank, County Jail surgeon, was on the witness stand testifying relative to her physical condition.

And from the very beginning of the short court session first one and then the other of the nurses pressed a bit of cotton soaked with smelling salts to the woman's nose. Part of the time with face deathly pale she seemed hardly breathing. At the conclusion of the session she was wheeled from the court-

Residential Campaign Plans Mapped

Leaders of the Community Chest's campaign residential district divisions committee yesterday at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Albert Crutcher, heard her outline the status of the campaign.

Mrs. Crutcher said: "This year the Chest quota is $3,200,000, which represents $500,000 more than last year's goal. If the Chest cannot supply the needs of 131 agencies it will have failed in its mission."

Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, vice-chairman of District A, has enlisted Mrs. C. O. Brotemarkle, Mrs. Louis S. Nordlinger, Mrs. Gladys Saum, Mrs. W. T. McArthur and Mrs. C. L. Whipple as colonels, and for lieutenant-colonels Mrs. H. Levi and Mrs. Walter Hubner.

EDUCATORS WILL HONOR NEW YORKER

Dr. Frederick P. Keppel to be Guest at Luncheon Given by Local Leaders

Members of the California Association for Adult Education, many of them distinguished in their particular field, will honor Dr. Frederick P. Keppel of New York at a luncheon today at the Biltmore, at which Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, will preside. Dr. Keppel is president of the Carnegie Corporation, which organization supports the National Association for Adult Education.

The objective of the association is to promote courses of study through the libraries, women's clubs, the Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association and other organizations, or volunteer adult study groups. Only within the past two years has the association been active in California. Recently it has come under the direction of Lyman Bryson, executive director, and a new impetus has been given the work.

Dr. Keppel, who is known widely as an educator, author and lecturer, was at one time dean of Columbia University and director of the foreign operations of the Red Cross. He is en route to Japan as a delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations, which is to meet in Kyoto the latter part of October.

Sons of Setter Sitting Pretty

A setter dog is stepping high in her kennel at 532 West One Hundred and Twenty-first street today. And for good reason. She has a son and daughter in the White House. That's something for any mother to boast of.

The Times yesterday morning carried a picture of three dogs serving the President of the United States in Washington. And when Charles H. Edmondson saw the pictures he exclaimed:

"Why, there are two of those pups we raised right here in Los Angeles. They've gone up some in the world, haven't they!"

Woodvine Queen Elizabeth is their mother.

The Presidential dogs are Southboro Markham and Southboro Sunny. Edmondson sold them to D. C. Cook of Palo Alto about ten months ago, he said.

BIRDS POISONED

A dead carrier pigeon bearing the registration number D-8442 was found yesterday by Carleton Whitehead at 1501 Crest Drive. Other dead pigeons and gulls, Whitehead reported, have been found in the neighborhood recently and are believed to have been poisoned.

Nineteen Pass Forestry Test

Grading of three successful applicants in the examination for assistant city forester and sixteen who passed for tree foreman has been tentatively approved by the Civil Service Commission. From the successful applicants will be appointed an assistant and a tree foreman to the staff of City Forester T. A. Tibbetts, recently appointed by the City Council to direct tree planting along city streets.

Those who passed for assistant forester are Milton E. Wolfe, 87.2; Dana R. Tyson, 82.1, and Horace N. Bosworth, 81.3 grade.

The highest three for tree foreman are Walter P. Griffith, 98.8; Ernest A. Hansen, 89.7, and Edward DeLaunay, 87.3 grade.

The appointments are to be made by the City Council.

BARBARA FOLLETT MADE JUVENILE COURT'S WARD

Miss Barbara Follett, 15-year-old authoress, who "ran away" from her guardians in Pasadena and was taken into custody in San Francisco a week ago, yesterday was made a ward of Juvenile Court and placed in a private home in Pasadena.

Juvenile authorities declined to reveal the name of the family with which Miss Follett has been placed and also refused to disclose details of the hearing on the petition stating the girl was "without proper parental control."

It also was learned yesterday that a special secret session was conducted last Thursday in the girls' court at Juvenile Hall, at which time Miss Follett's case was passed on and it was decided to place her in a private home until her mother returns from Honolulu or until other provision is made to appoint a permanent guardian for her.

The hearing was conducted with the greatest secrecy, it is reported, and special efforts are said to have been made to prevent newspaper reporters from learning that the hearing had been conducted, in spite of the fact that a widespread public interest in the girl's case was indicated.

Dr. Miriam Van Waters is referee of the girls' section of juvenile cases, but her report and recommendation on the hearing last Thursday still were held secret yesterday and had not been filed in the juvenile department of the County Clerk's office.

Miss Follett was picked up in San Francisco at the request of Mrs. J. L. Brown and Miss Mildred Kennedy, with whom she had been living in Pasadena. There was no criminal charge against her—merely a petition stating she was without "proper parental control." The girl won widespread notice four years ago with her book, "The House Without Windows." She told San Francisco authorities she had gone there because of her love for that city and her desire to be "free to live my own life."

MAYOR MOVES TO OUST DUNN

Public Works Commissioner Asked to Resign

Porter Also Attempts to Sidetrack Publicity

Delorey Prepares to Carry Fight to Courts

Events came thick and fast in the City Hall yesterday as the aftermath of the Council's action Friday in sustaining Mayor Porter's removal of Public Works Commissioner Delorey.

Reversing a position assumed on Saturday, Mayor Porter asked Public Works Commissioner Dunn for his resignation, while Commissioner Delorey filed formal notice that he still is a member of the board and will fight the ouster which he terms illegal and invalid.

To the Mayor and the Council, Delorey wrote:

"The undersigned is now a member of the Board of Public Works and respectfully advises you that the purported action of yourselves in attempting the removal of the undersigned is void, illegal and invalid in every respect, and the undersigned hereby tenders his services as a member of the said board and offers to discharge each, every and all of the duties of said office."

READY FOR MEETING

His attorneys, Hill, Morgan & Bledsoe, notified City Attorney Werner of the action, informing him as the legal adviser of the Mayor and the Council, and advising him that the matter will be taken to the courts for review.

Carrying out his legal contention that the removal was a violation of the law and the charter, Delorey appeared to attend the scheduled meeting of the board yesterday morning, but the board had met and vanished. A session, just long enough to entertain a motion to adjourn, was conducted by President McGuire, Vice-President Hyde and Commissioner Eldridge.

Delorey's contention of illegality in the Council's action is based on City Attorney Werner's ruling that the charges must be sustained, and the admission by Porter spokesmen that the charges were unproved, but that the removal must be effected "to sustain the Mayor."

Delorey charged this was the result of "political expediency," and said that other veteran officials are to be ousted to make room for political aides.

ASKED SECRECY

On Saturday Mayor Porter denied he "had anyone in mind" to remove, but yesterday morning he had Dunn in his office and asked for his resignation, the same procedure he followed in the case of Delorey. Dunn made no reply to the request, and said he will think it over.

Dunn testified before the Council for the Delorey defense last week. He said Mayor Porter wishes him to leave office because of his "lack of harmony with the administration."

Dunn said Mayor Porter asked him not to inform newspaper men of the resignation request because of "certain things" the Mayor said Saturday. Dunn declined to accede to this plea. The Mayor, when asked about the matter, was noncommittal.

"After the fiasco I witnessed in the Council chamber the other day I hesitate to intrust myself to the fairness or intelligence of the City Council," Dunn said he told the Mayor.

He referred to the Council's 10-to-4 vote to oust Delorey, in opposition to the City Attorney's ruling when the charges of excessive expenditures collapsed.

EIGHT-FOOT 'HEADER' FAILS TO FAZE HER

After the Fall
Anna Buley describes her drop and (inset) Anna and the bump on her head.

Another miraculous escape from death was written into the records at the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital yesterday when Anna Buley, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Buley of 1004 West First street, was pronounced out of danger and sent back to resume her play a few hours after she had plunged through an open window and landed on her head on the concrete pavement eight feet below.

The accident occurred while the child was playing on a bed at home. She leaned against the screen. It had been left unfastened and gave way.

Ambulance Surgeon Dasse gave Anna first-aid treatment and then took her to the hospital, where Dr. Jacobs found her suffering only a scalp wound and a bruise on her forehead.

Bill Henry and his tennis associates have just wound up the best show that it has ever been my lot to see. They are well on their way to make Los Angeles the tennis capital of the world.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Tennis is worth while—if for nothing else on account of the chivalry and good sportsmanship.

If young fellows like John Doeg, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison of Texas are fair samples, a generation of clean hearts and honest generosity is growing up.

In one of the hottest, fiercest matches ever played on any court Doeg and Van Ryn repeatedly refused to accept points that seemed to them unfair.

"Sorry," was the only breath that either of them wasted.

OUR GREAT CHANCE

Los Angeles will overlook a wonderful chance if we do not make 1932 a continuous year of sport.

Tennis, yacht racing, golf, football, horse shows are not recognized as Olympic sports. But there is no reason why such sports could not be put on the same year as the Olympics.

THE BIG TOP

Javelin throwing and foot racing are awfully interesting to those who are awfully interested in javelin throwing and foot racing, but these other sports are the "big tent."

A GOLDEN YEAR

Among other things, that golden year we ought to stage the biggest horse show ever held in the world; and a cowboy rodeo that will make Pendleton, Or., shut up shop and hide in the cellar.

EXPERTS

To do these things successfully each of these sports ought to be placed in the hands of experts—working separately but in sympathetic co-operation with the Olympic committee.

SPORT MECCA

As a tourist attraction the sports of Southern California have blanketed every other inducement.

We have the ideal set-up. For yachting the winds are mild, but constant, without storms. We have more and better golf courses than any other section of the country.

JEALOUS CATS

Players in every sport like to come here because—outside of the games—they have so many interesting things to do. This fact has become so well recognized in the East that New York—for the first time in its history—is appointing committees to point out that travelers can have a lot of fun there, too . . . such as night clubs, where bootleg booze can be bought at $40 for one round.

BARGAIN RATES

One fact has never been sufficiently advertised . . . the relative cheapness of touring California. For $10 a day in California there is more fascinating entertainment available than from the bandit hotels of Europe where it costs $1000 to ride in the elevator.

With the possible exception of San Francisco, there is no other

ANTINK MURDER ONUS SPECIFIED

District Attorney's Office Lays Direct Charge

Minnesota Governor Told of Extradition Fiasco

Police Admit Hot Clew to Slayers Unearthed

Supporting charges made by Dist.-Atty. Fitts that Minnesota authorities failed to co-operate with Los Angeles officers in the extradition of Morrie Miller, alias Morrie Moll, to Los Angeles for trial on a robbery charge last June, Tom O'Brien, chief of the District Attorney's bureau of investigation, yesterday prepared an affidavit setting forth details of the extradition controversy, which was mailed to Gov. Christiansen of Minnesota at once.

The affidavit, in terse legal form, accuses Minnesota authorities of favoring Miller and his attorney in a request for a continuance of the extradition hearing, so that Miller might jump his bond and flee.

DIRECT CHARGE

"It is the opinion of the deponent," Chief O'Brien stated, "that the request for the continuance by Mr. Quinn after the positive identification by David Antink and myself was for the purpose of allowing Miller an opportunity to flee and that had the Governor denied such motion and ordered him into custody Moll would have been returned to this jurisdiction, where a conviction of first-degree robbery would have surely resulted. It is my further opinion," O'Brien added, "that Claude H. Allen, Deputy District Attorney, did everything within his power to cause the delivery of Moll to me."

The dispute between Dist.-Atty. Fitts and the Governor of Minnesota arose after the killing of David Antink, Los Angeles real estate man, last Thursday night by gangsters. Antink was the State's principal witness against Miller, who was facing trial if captured for participating in the Sun Drug Company robbery here in 1923. Miller is now sought for questioning regarding Antink's death.

ONUS ON MINNESOTA

In his first statement, Dist.-Atty. Fitts declared that in his opinion the Antink killing could have been avoided had Minnesota authorities co-operated in extraditing Miller to this city for trial. Minnesota authorities, with one exception, Dist.-Atty. Fitts stated, failed to extend their co-operation in the matter.

This exception was Claude H. Allen, Deputy District Attorney of St. Paul, according to the affidavit released last night. Theretofore, Dist.-Atty. Fitts declined to reveal Allen's name.

The affidavit, except for the paragraph concerning Miller's attorney, Quinn, merely recites the events and correspondence concerning the extradition matter, pointing out that the Governor first was absent from his office for two weeks and when the matter was brought up later Miller was permitted to have his liberty under $10,000 bail and another continuance of the hearing granted in the face of a positive identification of the man as one of the Sun Drug Company robber bandits.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

The police investigation of the murder of Antink was carried on yesterday behind locked doors.

Captain of Detectives Cato, head of the police homicide squad, admitted that he and his men had unearthed information which might result "at any moment" in the apprehension of the gunmen who riddled Antink's body with bullets after he was knocked unconscious with a window sash weight. Dist.-Atty. Fitts was in possession of the same information, Cato declared, and his chief investigator, Capt. O'Brien, was working closely with the police.

"But," said Cato, "we can give nothing out at this time. To reveal what our information is would absolutely ruin our chances to capture the murderers. I will say, however, that we positively know who the men were who killed Antink and that we will have them behind bars before very long. And the slayers are not local gunmen."

POLICE PREPARED

The entire detail of eight detectives of the police homicide squad were kept on duty at Central Police Station. Cato admitted that there was a chance that the gunmen might seek to barricade themselves in a suburban residence and "shoot it out," and he wished to have as many men on hand as possible to respond to an emergency call. At the order of the captain an extra squad of the emergency division also was detailed to remain at Central Police Station. Sawed-off shotguns, a sub-machine gun and a suitcase full of tear bombs were placed in readiness in the homicide squad office.

While the police investigation was proceeding yesterday, Coroner Nance conducted an inquest into the death of Antink. The police presented no evidence and the Coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that Antink had come to his death at the hands of persons unknown.

Funeral services will be conducted at Bresee Brothers' chapel, 855 South Figueroa street, today at 1:30 p.m. Interment will be in Forest Lawn Memorial Park. Antink leaves a widow, Mrs. Grace Antink, and an 18-year-old daughter, Gertrude.

Antink was murdered last Thursday evening as he was walking from a drug store to his home at 717 North Fuller avenue. As he neared an alley a large sedan drove up and two men leaped out. One struck him from behind with a six-pound window weight wrapped in paper. After he fell unconscious both assailants riddled his body with revolver bullets. One of several witnesses attempted to interfere and was ordered away by the slayers. They then leaped back into their car and fled.

CHORISTER'S COURTSHIP IN COURT'S COGNIZANCE

Romance that began in the choir room of the San Pedro Baptist Church was aired in Superior Judge Rosenkrans's court yesterday when Mrs. Edith M. Williamson obtained a divorce from Herbert L. Williamson, choir singer, after naming Mrs. Inez L. Rochester, soprano, as the woman who stole her husband.

Mrs. Williamson and H. A. Rochester, husband of the soprano, told how they had followed Mrs. Rochester and Williamson home one night and listened through an open window.

"Be careful, dear, you'll spoil my rouge and powder," Mrs. Williamson said she heard her rival say.

When Mrs. Williamson confronted the pair Mrs. Rochester said she "just couldn't help loving Herbert," so that ended the married life of the Williamsons.

Rochester corroborated Mrs. Williamson's story.

WELLS SHOW EFFECT OF FOREST FIRE

President of Conservation Association Tells Woman's City Club of Situation

"A negligible area around Los Angeles today has flowing water, the water levels in wells in some places having dropped 200 feet in the last thirty-five years," W. S. Rosecrans, president of the Los Angeles County Conservation Association and chairman of the forestry and water conservation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, told the Woman's City Club meeting at the Majestic Theater yesterday noon. "This means that we are using more than our own water supply and we must not go on doing so. We must conserve the precipitation falling on our mountains and foothills."

Explaining nature's method of conservation, he said that soil covered with a forest sponge of leaves, needles and other damp vegetation absorbs ten to thirty times more rainfall than bare soil, making the water available by stream or underground flow.

"Fire destroys this sponge," he said, "and then when a hard rain comes a great deal of soil is lost by erosion. When only six inches are lost, it takes 600 years to restore them."

Since 80 per cent of forest fires are caused by man, he suggested that as one method of water conservation the public be more careful of fire in the mountains. As a more positive step, he advocated education so that when need arises for public action State and civic legislation may be passed intelligently.

HART RITES ATTENDED BY THRONG

Friends Crowd Home of Pioneer Hotel Man to Pay Their Last Tributes

Passing between forty honorary pallbearers in double line, representing hotel executives and other prominent men of the city, the body of George A. Hart, pioneer hotel man who died Friday afternoon, was borne from the family residence, 107 Fremont Place, and laid to rest in Forest Lawn Mausoleum yesterday afternoon. The Ninth Church of Christ, Scientist, was in charge of the services.

The spacious rooms of the Hart residence were inadequate to hold the large number who assembled to pay their final respects. Representatives were present from the many clubs, Masonic organizations and hotel men's associations.

Seldom have more beautiful flowers in such abundance been assembled in tribute to the departed. The walls of the main rooms of the ground floor were literally banked to the ceiling.

The active pallbearers were William H. Daum, William Wallace Whitecotton, Horace L. White, Walter A. Francis, James L. Van Norman and Martin C. Neuner. Besides his brother, Mr. Hart leaves his widow, a young son and an aunt, Mrs. Milton P. Kinney of Los Angeles.

LIP READING TAUGHT

Classes in lip-reading for the hard-of-hearing, it was announced yesterday, are being conducted at the Fremont and Metropolitan high schools. The class at Fremont High School assembles daily from 1 to 4 p.m., and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon. The Metropolitan High School class meets four evenings a week from 7 to 9 o'clock.

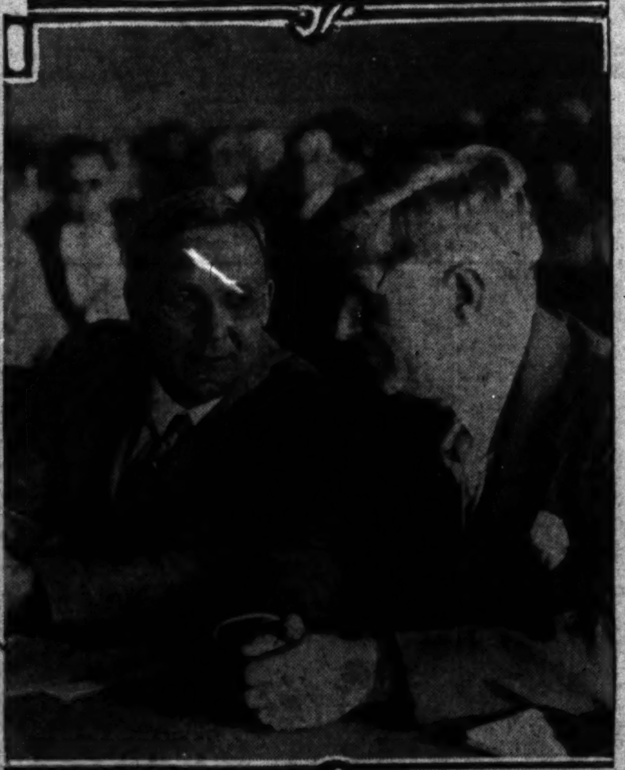
Pastors Fight Contempt Charges



Accused Clergymen and Judges Who Will Hear Evidence

PASTORS GRANTED DELAY

Shuler and Briegleb Will Face Court Again Tomorrow in Contempt Hearing

"that matters alleged by the defense attorney cannot be presented as outlined because they are immaterial. The only question here is were the words spoken at the time and place contemptuous themselves, not the reasons for utterances, nor the sources from which the information was received."

RULING IN FORCE

The court further upheld the contention of Attorney Jennings, who headed the prosecution committee, that all testimony except that bearing on utterances and their contempt be excluded.

This ruling held for the arguments that were made by Attorney Dadmun, who spoke for one hour and a half on the plea that no contempt had been committed, Attorney Hunter on a like plea and the answer of the Bar Association committee made by Attorney Jennings.

Judge Tappaan, during the course of the arguments, further described the territory to be covered by the hearing when he said to the defense attorneys: "The court believes that in the event of consideration of the matter of whether or not words spoken are contemptuous, that matters of mitigation and the question of intent may be relevant. However, the facts are admitted and there is therefore no issue of admittance."

CONVERSANT WITH CASE

The position of the defense attorneys first was outlined by Dadmun, who quoted from Supreme Court and other rulings. During the course of his remarks, which originally were set at thirty minutes, but stretched to one hour and a half, it became clearly evident that the three judges were conversant with the citations, and closely acquainted with the law. At one point Judge Hardy said: "We have no wish to limit your argument Mr. Dadmun, but do desire that you confine yourself to cases in point." At another time Judge Tappaan aided the attorney by giving him the page number on which a decision to which he was referring could be found.

Attorney Hunter argued from the contention that portions of the statement attributed to Briegleb were not in contempt, and that they were made on a day when court was not in session. He followed very closely the answer that had been filed with leb is a doctor of divinity, and as such has a legal right to make utterances touching on court proceedings; and that the remarks were published in the utmost good faith and without intent or purpose to influence the Pantages trial proceedings.

The defense attorney did not touch on the matter brought out in the answer that a portion of the utterance of Briegleb to his congregation were asserted to be based on a conversation between the minister and Judge Hardy. This conversation is set out at length in the minister's answer and is asserted to cover the hint of probation for Mrs. Pantages.

"Anything which interferes with the orderly proceedings of a court is contempt," said Attorney Jennings in presenting the position of the friends of the court, after he outlined the section of law under which the charges were brought.

He drew a careful distinction between contempt where the case is pending and where a decision has been rendered or verdict rendered. Jennings cited the last two sentences of the utterances of Briegleb and charged that these alone constituted contempt of court in the meaning of the laws.

The attorney pointed out two imputations in the remarks of the minister regarding the selection of Ira F. Gay, as a juror, and the outcome of the Pantages trial. "The first is that the defendant ought to be found guilty," he said, "and the second that if any juror should disagree and hang the jury he would have to answer to public sentiment and be ridiculed, even though he voted as his conscience dictated."

"I suggest," cried Jennings, "that if there be no contempt shown in the remarks and attitude of this minister, that we turn over the selection of our jurors in criminal cases to the proprietors of radios, street-corner orators and other talkers if our courts are to be protected."

PETITION DENIED

Earlier in the day a petition of Briegleb seeking to restrain Judge Hardy from citing him for contempt was denied by the Appellate Court. The petition was filed Saturday and was returned by the court to the clerk's office yesterday morning with the simple notation "denied" indorsed thereon by the three justices, with Justice Conrey presiding.

Hundreds of spectators jammed the halls outside the courtroom yesterday, awaiting an opportunity to get a seat in the already packed chamber. The hallway to the courtroom has been arranged with special barriers for the trial of Alexander Pantages, and these were found convenient by extra bailiffs in keeping the curious throngs in check.

Every seat in the courtroom was taken long before the hour set for the hearing, and Ira F. Gay, a juror in the Pantages trial, who was publicized in the remarks of the two defendant ministers, held a seat inside the railing. He showed open amusement as references were made to him during the course of the hearing. Other members of the jury were interested spectators, among them William I. Cummings, the foreman.

SEARCH ASKED FOR MISSING ENGINEER

Mrs. Estelle Walz of 3015 Royal street yesterday asked police to search for Clarence Walz, 33 years of age, her husband. He disappeared September 21, last, after he had left home to go to his El Cajon Valley ranch for the week-end. Mrs. Walz learns her husband did not reach the ranch. She said he had $100 when he left home and knowing that she was ill, he would not willingly delay in returning. Walz, who is a mining engineer, recently graduated from law school. When he left home he wore a blue sweater and knickers.

Weathering of Hill Blamed in Eaton's Report

Supervisors to Hire Experts for San Gabriel Work

Although test tunnels on the west side of the $25,000,000 San Gabriel Dam have not yet reached sound rock, the tunnels on the east side show perfect conditions there, according to a report made yesterday to the Board of Supervisors by Flood Control Engineer E. C. Eaton.

The tunnels into the foundation under the west abutment have been drilled 188 feet vertically and 155 feet horizontally, Engineer Eaton said, and are showing an improved condition the further they are driven from the surface. The tunnels have not yet reached the limits estimated as a proper distance to bed rock, the report states.

HILL WEATHERED

Engineer Eaton said the hill on the west side of the dam is more weathered than the hill on the east side because it is a shoulder where the walls of the canyon bend sharply toward the west. The canyon wall on the east side is unbroken by lateral canyons and the rock less exposed to weathering.

Work on the west abutment of the dam, discontinued since the landslide of two weeks ago, will not be resumed until the rock foundation is surveyed, although unless work begins before October 8, next, the contractors will be in a position to claim damages because of idle equipment.

WILL HIRE EXPERTS

On recommendation of Engineer Eaton, the supervisors yesterday voted to employ A. J. Wiley of Boise, Idaho, and Louis Hill of Los Angeles, engineers employed by the government in surveying Boulder Dam.

Two geologists who will be employed at the same rate, $100 a day, are Prof. O. F. Tolman of Stanford University, and Robert L. Hill of Los Angeles. They will collaborate on a final report on west abutment rock conditions, which will be ready in about two weeks.

John Coolidge's Wedding to be Seen on Screen

Motion pictures of the John Coolidge-Florence Trumbull wedding, vividly described by the talking reporters are to be presented soon in Southern California theaters by the Times-Universal Newsreel. Scenes at the church are shown, and the camera trails them to the old homestead of the Coolidges in Plymouth, Vt., their honeymoon cottage. Following this are shown moving views of the $78-a-month flat in which the former President's son and the Governor's daughter began housekeeping.

The Times-Universal Newsreel also shows a train wreck at Newcastle, Pa., where thirty-three cars plunged down a cliff, lively broncho-riding at San Jose, and a big thrill shot showing trapeze dare-devils performing at an altitude of 150 feet, the highest bars ever used. Other subjects are German athletes learning jiu-jitsu, Mrs. Hoover starting the Girl Scouts' campaign, Miller Huggins just before his death, and the fight to evict a tenant from the landmark in which Clement Moore wrote "The Night Before Christmas."

Hold-up Men Steal Taxicab

Three hold-ups were reported to the police within an hour shortly before midnight. One of them was the hold-up of a filling station at 723 East Eighth street when two men entered and forced Norman Hastings, the attendant to hand over $25.

R. H. Bosworth, a cab driver, was robbed of $2 and his taxicab at Sixteenth and Trinity streets by two men who had hired the cab at Seventh and Broadway. The robbers promised to leave the cab at Sixth and Grand when they finished with it.

L. G. Kern, 4601 Budlong street was robbed almost in front of his home by two men who drove up in a closed car and stopped him. One of them had a gun. The robbers took $20 and a gold watch.

The automobile Club of Torreon, Mexico, has promoted the building of several roads in the Laguna district.

NEW JAIL PLAN WILL COME UP

Police Commissioners to Get Davis Project Today

Building at Lincoln Heights One of Suggestions

Rejuvenation of Offices at Old Station Urged

In plans for the temporary alleviation of crowded and unsanitary conditions of the City Jail and Central Police Station to be submitted to the Police Commission this morning, Chief Davis has requested approval for the erection of two stories of a permanent new jail at Lincoln Heights Stockade and rejuvenation of the old Central Police Station so that the record bureau, detective bureau and executive offices of the department may remain centralized as they are at present.

Central Police Station, which also houses the City Jail, was condemned early this month by Dr. George Parrish, chief of the health department, as a menace to public health. He ordered it evacuated within ninety days. The Police Commission in turn ordered Chief Davis to submit a plan for new quarters for the prisoners and executive offices.

REASONS OFFERED

Chief Davis, in the report on the plan drawn by himself, Assistant Chief Finlinson and Deputy Chief Shand in charge of the jail division, pointed out that with the erection of two stories of a permanent jail structure at Lincoln Heights the majority of prisoners could be removed from the old Central jail building. This plan for the removal of the prisoners, he states, was made possible by the suggestion of Efficiency Director Knox that $300,000 could be obtained from the General Fund to finance the structure. Later other floors could be added to the building, he suggests, making the building a permanent investment rather than a temporary expenditure.

This plan is offered in opposition to the one previously suggested by the Police Commission in which prisoners in the City Jail were to be scattered throughout the various subdivision jails.

Such parceling out of prisoners, Davis points out in his report, would necessitate the employment of cooks in each division and the assignment of numerous officers, now used in important patrol work, to turnkey duties.

REMEDY POSSIBLE

In regard to the new quarters for the executive offices Chief Davis suggests that, with the removal of prisoners from the present jail Central Police Station could be made sanitary.

"Scattering of the executive offices," the Chief asserts, "not only would prove a great handicap but would break down the present efficiency of the department. At the present time we have our record bureau, which has grown to such an extent that it occupies space given to three former courtrooms; the detective bureau with its numerous squads and the administration department, in a smoothly working centralized unit. To decentralize these departments would be disastrous. By moving the City Jail to Lincoln Heights we believe that the Central Police Station building could be rejuvenated to meet with sanitation requirements with much less expense than would result from a scattering of the executive offices to substations. We suggest, of course, that Dr. Parrish be asked to pass upon this."

These plans are offered by Chief Davis as a temporary measure only. He points out, in his report, that the only real solution of the problem is the erection of a central police station and city jail such as was turned down by the voters at the last municipal election.

JUDGE DISPROVES KINSHIP

Mrs. Lillie D. Kamp thought she recognized Superior Judge Rosenkranz when she appeared in his court to ask for alimony yesterday.

"You can't try this case," she told the judge. "Your cousin married my sister-in-law's cousin, and you're for my husband."

Judge Rosenkranz, after explaining that his family album contained the photographs of no Kamps, went ahead with the case and gave the plaintiff $100 a month temporary alimony from the defendant, Jacob Kamp.

RESIGNATION OF MALONE NOT AT HAND

Announcement Fails to Reach Supervisor's Office; Chappel Denies Charges

The resignation of A. C. Malone, president of the Civil Service Commission, copies of which were sent to all newspapers last week, had not been received at the office of the County Board of Supervisors late yesterday, according to Miss Mame Beatty, clerk of the board.

Members of the board expressed surprise that Malone should have mailed copies of his resignation to the press without submitting the original to them. The former president of the Civil Service Commission left San Francisco Friday on a trip around the world, with Mrs. Malone.

At Malone's Long Beach office was stated that the ex-official mailed the original of his resignation from San Francisco at the same time he mailed copies to the newspapers, and other persons interested. Although members of the Board of Supervisors stated that they could not comment on Malone's resignation until they were presented with the official copy of it, they intimated that it undoubtedly will be accepted.

Sam J. Chappel, secretary of the commission, against whom Malone directed considerable criticism, in his resignation, issued a statement in reply yesterday, and declared he had consulted attorneys with the idea of taking legal action for "defamation of character."

Chappel asserts that Malone's resignation was not voluntary, but was demanded by the Board of Supervisors, and all of Malone's statements are denied. The former president of the commission "waited until he was out of the county before filing his false and infamous charges against the Supervisors and me," said Chappel's statement.

"This is just another effort to destroy civil service and restore the discredited 'spoils system' in this county," Chappel declared. "It is almost needless to say that the effort will fail, because it is promoted entirely outside of the civil service department, by ex-Commissioner Malone, whose resignation was demanded by the Board of Supervisors a month ago because of his political activities, forbidden alike by ethics and the successful administration of the department. Every statement made by Malone is false, and I deny them one and all."

Negro Hunted After Attack

Police started a city-wide search yesterday for an unidentified negro who, it was reported, attacked Mrs. Alice Sherney, 25 years of age, in her home at 1461 West Thirty-seventh Place shortly before daybreak. The negro, who gained entrance to the house while Mrs. Sharney was sleeping, she told the officers, awakened her and cautioned her to remain quiet.

Then he smoked several cigarettes and when she refused to carry on a conversation with him he left. Mrs. Sharney notified police of the University division.

MOTHER AND CHILDREN ESCAPE DEATH BY GAS

Mrs. Bertha Fulton, 20 years of age, and her two infant children were treated for gas poisoning at Georgia-street Receiving Hospital yesterday, as a result of a leakage of gas in the woman's home at 144 East Manchester avenue. The mother reported she awakened to find herself semiconscious. Seizing her children she made her way to the street and summoned help. The three were revived by Dr. Carey.

Phone Company Lays New Cable

More than 11,500 feet of 1800 pair telephone cable is now being installed in downtown Los Angeles, along Olive and Hill streets, and on Fourth, Fifth, and Seventh streets, according to M. L. Stannard, division manager of the Southern California Telephone Company. This new type of cable, perfected last year, now makes it possible for 1800 people to lift their telephone receivers, call 1800 numbers, and simultaneously carry on 1800 conversations over one section of the cable.

The new cable is necessary to handle the transfer of equipment for 28,000 telephones from the telephone building at 622 South Hill street to 433 South Olive street. The installation involves an expenditure of $28,620.

Ziegfeld Follies Will be Filmed

Samuel Goldwyn, United Artists producer, returned to Hollywood yesterday from conferences in New York with Florenz Ziegfeld, to perfect plans for the talking versions of the Follies. Goldwyn announced Ziegfeld will arrive in Hollywood the first of the year.

While Goldwyn declined to disclose his plans, he said he and Ziegfeld will collaborate in producing, and that a number of Broadway favorites will be signed.

Three other Hollywood film executives left last night for the East. Sam Jaffe and Frank Brandow, production manager and studio manager, respectively, of Paramount are leaving on a vacation trip, as is Joe Jackson, scenario chief at Warner Brothers.

MILK TRUCK "JOY RIDE" ROLE SCOFFED BY MAID

BEVERLY MADDOX.

It was a dark and stormy night in the vicinity of a cafe at St. Francis Court and Vermont avenue early yesterday morning.

The breaking waves of indignation dashed high around a milk truck parked in front of a cafe there, while the offended owner sought to ascertain who it was who had moved it from his favored parking space a half-block away.

Miss Beverly Maddox, 21 years of age, of 1460 West Thirty-eighth street was standing near the milk wagon gripping her dog's leash resisting its efforts to join the investigation.

And then, according to the police report, some one walked up to Miss Maddox, shook an accusing finger in her face, and announced to the gathering that he had seen her drive the truck.

In the County Jail the girl laughed at the charge of driving the car without the owner's consent. "Why, I can't even drive an automobile, much less a milk truck," she said. "I've always wanted to know how to drive, but this is once I am glad I cannot boast of that accomplishment."

Indian laborers of Guatemala now must pay 83 cents a year toward the road improvement fund.

Natty Bandit Drives in Taxi

A lone bandit, wearing kid gloves and driving a taxicab, yesterday held up three Hertz Drive-Yourself auto rental agencies and escaped with $165, according to a report made to police. The robber first stopped at the agency at 515 West Fifth street, where he obtained $115 from Eric Edna, the manager. Then he drove to 672 South Alvarado street, and collected $50 from C. R. Dolan, manager there. Still bent on more plunder, he visited the lot at 810 South Grand avenue, where he accosted H. R. Reynolds who was in charge. But this time the arrival of another automobile frightened him, Reynolds reported, and the bandit sped away without obtaining any of the receipts.

Today's Bible Text

"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." St. Luke xxi:33.

STRONG MINDS

The man who can mind his own business has a mind worth cultivating.

NOTHING DOING

Henry Ford will have nothing more to do with Muscle Shoals. He refuses to do any further bidding for power or anything else in connection therewith. He wouldn't even use it to wash a wheelbarrow. Let those who have been playing politics with Muscle Shoals work out its future.

THE QUIZZERS

Some of these snoopy Senators have been trying to razzle Alexander Legge, the head of the Federal farm board. They don't realize that the joke is on them. It is a good deal like fleas biting a mastiff. They may annoy him for the moment, but they cannot spoil his health or appetite.

MORE BIG GAME

American sports are investing more millions in a new sporting club at Ensenada, on the Mexican coast about sixty miles south of San Diego. It is an interesting spot and rather easily reached. The colony will be called Playa Ensenada, but it is expected that they will playa lot of poker.

MORE NITRATES

Nitrate deposits to rival those of Chile and covering more than 10,000 square miles of territory are reported from Southwest Africa, not far from the border of Bechuanaland. This country formerly belonged to Germany, but is now held under mandate by Great Britain. The climate at the coast is very much like that of Chile. Analysis shows as high as 85 per cent of sodium nitrate in secondary deposits and the district is likely to be a great factor in determining the world supply.

THE BIG MONEY

The average man wouldn't suppose that the State banks had more dough than the national ones, but they have, and their ratio is increasing every day. The State banks in America had resources of $43,650,000,000, according to last returns, while the national banks commanded a little short of $30,000,000,000. Between them they have quite a bunch of money, but there is still an awful lot of it tied up in stocks and bonds. Doubtless a heavy end of these resources is represented by securities of this kind.

THE STATE POLICE

To prove that its business is not in the line of sleuthing or trapping speeders it is announced that the cars and motorcycles of the new State highway patrol will be painted a glistening white. The officers are to be a help and not a menace to the traveler, although the tourist is expected to understand and observe the traffic laws. But the idea of the white car is to furnish information and first aid and not merely to chase down flyers. This immaculate color, however, belongs only to officers who are in the full and regular service of the State patrol. Men who are in the employ of the city or county and assigned to traffic duty as a part of their service are not concerned with this regulation or equipment. They will dress and behave as provided by the local bosses—subject to the general laws.

THE WORLD SERIES

The League of Nations has ten years of life and progress behind it. The tenth annual assembly found the representatives of fifty-three countries present—the delegates including nine premiers and twenty foreign ministers. The most interesting feature of the recent session so far as the world-at-large is concerned was the discussion of the Briand project for the formation of a United States of Europe—either economic or political. The trouble is that there are so many different tongues in the world that intimate understandings are impossible. If the earth could be brought into a comprehension of a single language it would prove the best peace assurance that could be provided. Uncle Sam doesn't belong to this League, but he had a lot of reporters and observers on hand every day. We won't associate with them, but we want to know all about it.

THE GOOD-WILL TOUR

Corrected impressions of South America and South Americans by residents of the United States, and corrected impressions of the United States by residents of South America, are both necessary and desirable from the point of view of commercial, social and national relations. The trip of the steamship City of Los Angeles around South America—second annual good-will cruise of this vessel—will supply this corrective for those fortunate enough to be able to make the passage, and will, it is to be hoped, prompt reciprocal visits from the various South American cities.

The past of California makes this State a particularly good intermediary between the republics to the south and our own. The Spanish influence on California culture, architecture, nomenclature and activities generally is very considerable and should make the State attractive to millions of tourists from the South American countries. At the present time, perhaps, South Americans are more interested in Europe than in the United States, but as time rolls on this interest may be shifted, and such tours as that of the City of Los Angeles help the shifting process.

The establishment of regular steamer service for both passengers and freight, from west coast points to South America, requires, of course, time and the development of business, but these tours are steps in that direction, and those who take passage on them are pioneering for a future traffic that will be both pleasant and profitable. Los Angeles is a natural point for all sorts of South American goods, and a natural export point from which most of these nations can be most readily reached. At the present time, such business as there is is mainly going to other ports. This city can, without invading any field in which other ports are now pre-eminent, develop much new business by proving her advantages for the purpose.

The civilization of South America is both an older and a newer civilization than that of the United States and the contrasts are both interesting and instructive. Both continents have much to teach and much to learn. South American cities are among the most beautiful in the world, and furnish examples of wise civic development which many American cities might copy with profit. The South American countries, on the other hand, are eager to study our methods in highway development, in mechanical improvements, business and manufacturing practices and the like.

Starting from this port next Saturday, the City of Los Angeles will cover more than 16,000 nautical miles in its cruise, visiting twenty ports and cities in eleven different countries and furnishing a splendid opportunity to study the coastal development, at least, of the great South American continent, with a cross-continent trip from Santiago to Buenos Aires for those who do not care for the voyage around Cape Horn. The trip will be made in the South American spring, which insures excellent weather for the entire passage.

A DEAD HORSE

The commercial world is waking up to the fact that war is a dead horse, and that it has to be paid for decades after. There is a general consensus that the politicians had better not acquire any more stale horse meat. A dead horse does not even make good fertilizer. And the after odor is appalling. Somebody has to bury it. Uncle Sam does not enjoy being a horse undertaker.

If we could feel that this would be the last dead carcass, we might acquiesce out of sheer relief. We might even be willing to erect a tombstone to mark the spot.

So many of these dead horses are smelly and have become a stench in the nostrils of the world. But on the slightest pretext another one is slain and we are asked to chip in and help pay for it.

And then this old horse has a way of coming to life again! He may have every appearance of being deceased. His eye sockets are empty. Prone on the ground, he is sagging in decay. However, we have been fooled so frequently. He has spoofed so often. His resurrection is proverbial. He has been buried with stately obsequies and oratory many times, and then at the sound of the bugle has leaped to his feet and galloped off again to the charge. If he would only stay dead!

THE SNEEZE

The sneeze time of the year is here. Whether it be a disease, habit or custom, it has an ancient history. Cupid was supposed to sneeze over the birth of every new, beautiful girl baby.

Today a sweetheart rather resents being anything to be sneezed at; but in old Roman days it was a high compliment to her. However, the sneeze has lost its romance. Indeed, it is a source of abject apology. In public a glare greets the offender.

It is merely a violent explosion of the air from the nasal passages; but it is a nuisance and calls for expression at inopportune times. It usually chooses a funeral or some solemn and quiet occasion and then goes off with a bang. Pressing the finger upon the upper lips deprives it of immediate enthusiasm. And yet there are times when nothing seems to dampen or discourage its activity.

Once the sneeze brought about the retreat of an army. Xenophon and his cohorts were in a parley over advance or return. Suddenly a soldier sneezed, and since a sneeze was supposed to be an oracle of Deity, the tents were burned and retreat began.

If a soldier sneeze today he is hustled into a hot tub of steaming water. The modern general takes no chances.

In ancient Athens, if a man sneezed his friends cried, "Jove preserve you!" He was regarded as an especial favorite of Mt. Olympus. A sneeze among the ancient Hebrews was a harbinger of death. Jacob prayed that this might be changed and the significance of sneezing was revised. Then it became a symbol of life. Aristotle believed that if you sneezed from morning till noon you would have good luck. Our forefathers must have highly prized sneezing, or they would not have used so much snuff.

Today if you would sneeze, just seek a dignified assembly where it would be indelicate to function with your nose, and it will go off half-cocked. No amount of pressing anywhere will suppress it. It blows all the rules of Hoyle to pieces and lets go regardless of your standing in society. And you are avoided as a sad victim of golden rod.

OUR GROWING HARBOR

While talking in big figures it might be mentioned that some more statistics relating to our magic harbor are available. The tonnage of freight handled exceeded 26,000,000 tons, or almost 100,000 tons each working day. During the year a total of 7888 ships arrived, bearing the flags of fifteen different countries. In the value of our local exports England leads, with Japan second and China third. Within less than a generation Los Angeles Harbor has become one of the dozen great ports of the world. No wonder we have to speak in big figures when breaking the news to our own folk.

THE WORM TURNS

By James J. Montague

Though farmers through the ages
  In every land and clime
Have worked for meager wages
  And had a toilsome time:
Though season after season
  They've known the worst of luck,
For some unfathomed reason
  They never yet have struck.

Because of tax and tariff
  And insect pests and drought,
The unrelenting sheriff
  Has often sold them out,
In spite of which forever
  They've bravely done their bit.
Since Adam's time they never
  Have dropped their tools and quit.

And so with satisfaction
  Will all the yeoman clan
Observe the recent action
  In ancient Yucatan
Where men engaged in tillage
  Have laid their hoes away
In many a rural village
  And struck for higher pay.

Should all the men who trample
  The stubborn glebe at dawn,
But follow this example
  We could not carry on.
And never would a nation,
  Deprived of wheat and beef,
Hold out on legislation
  Providing farm relief.

The LEE SIDE O' L.A.

BY Lee Shippey

FRANK S. WELLS asks us to confer a medal on him, and we must agree he seems to be a record-holder. Frank has been in the street-sweeping department for twenty years and has only been hit by a motor car once!

"I've dodged all kinds in my time," Frank says, with pardonable pride, "including some of the ablest street-sweeper smashers in town. You know how it is in our department—fellows get bowled over like ten pins every day. But I've dodged drunk drivers, women drivers, beginners, children and semi-professionals who seem to drive about, knocking over street sweepers just for the sport of it.

"It was a woman driver who finally got me, and she was driving one of these new flivvers so small I didn't see it. She broke three ribs for me and laid me up for eight weeks. But what hurt worst was that she kept me from achieving my life's ambition. I had dreamed of being in the department twenty-five years without being hit, and then retiring, secure in the knowledge that my record probably never would be broken or even equaled."

Not Overcrowded Yet

Next time you go to a beach and can't find room to put your foot down recall these assertions: L. J. Barnsey, postmaster of De Luz, Cal., and son of pioneers in northern San Diego county, tells the Santa Ana Register that there still is "undiscovered country" on our south coast. "Between Oceanside and San Juan Capistrano," he declared, "there are 800 square miles with less than 200 population and water enough to irrigate an entire county is going to waste between Oceanside and San Clemente."

Knowing One's Stuff

A few years ago a young man with bow legs worked in some minor capacity about the little electric light plant in Del Mar and now and then shyly slipped into the village postoffice, when no one was around, to deposit a bulky envelope in the mail box. The envelopes were addressed to the editors of various "western story" magazines. And the villagers frequently chuckled at the idea of a young mechanic trying to become a writer.

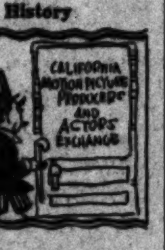
But that young man, Walt Coburn, hadn't acquired his bow legs in a power plant. He had gained them by clutching colts from his earliest youth. He was a ranch-grown kid and his father had been a well-known cattleman in the Northwest. He knew ranch life inside out, and often had listened to his father and other old cow men telling the yarns that had become traditions in the cattle country.

In spite of that, he finally managed to write a western story which suited the New York western magazine editors and since then has become known as "the" cowboy author. Ysterday we received from the important Century Company a copy of "Mavericks," his second novel, the same company having published his first, "The Ringtailed Rannyhans." After doing an average of two successful stories a month for five or six years, Walt has started in to do his novel a year, apparently.

Writing isn't such a hard game, after all—if you know your stuff.

More Casting-Bureau History

Leeside: Some time ago, I read in your column an article in which you gave Dave Allen of the Central Casting Bureau credit for starting the agency that later became the Central Casting Bureau.



CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS AND ACTORS EXCHANGE

Years ago I opened an office in the old Chamber of Commerce Building and called it the California Motion Picture Producers and Actors Exchange. I had an idea for a central clearinghouse. At that time all the extras would flock from studio to studio.

The first order I obtained was for 900 men for "Joan the Woman." They had to be 5 feet 9 inches or over and thirty-seven chest or over. I personally measured each and every one of them. They were to receive $2 per day. Some of our present stars were among those who went out. Later I received orders from J. P. Magowan for people to ride in railroad train scenes, $2, car fare and lunch. Many of our present stars were also included in this.

One day a man, the secretary of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, called upon me to see what I was doing. I explained it fully to him and he said he was sorry, but they were going to open the same thing themselves and operate it for themselves.

Later, after several changes, the actors got together, and opened an office for themselves, but it wasn't very strong. One day two Jewish boys walked into the office looking for work. They were Dave and Joe Allen. We gave them work. They were both excellent troupers. Gradually we began to send Dave out in charge of mobs, some of these being the immense mobs for Theda Bara.

Dave and I finally became dissatisfied and decided to open our own office, which we finally did at 312 West Second street. I continued in charge of the casting and Dave on the outside. We were very successful, but for various reasons I left and went up north.

So you can see that I started what later evolved into the Central Casting Bureau.—Frank R. Fish.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

THE SHEARER MIX-UP

[Army and Navy Journal]

President Hoover, in repudiating the suggestion of Congressman McClintock that Rear-Admiral Hilary P. Jones had any connection at Geneva with Shearer or shipbuilding companies, gave official expression to the nation-wide opinion as to the honor and integrity of this distinguished naval officer. Aside from his official and personal reputation, we ourselves can testify to the high character of Admiral Jones. We have known him for many years; we have found him always actuated by one single interest, that of the welfare of his country. Mr. McClintock's innuendo regarding him is on a par with other suggestions that have emanated from the same source. Doubtless, the people of the Oklahoma district which he represents by their sufferance will grow tired of an agent who, for publicity purposes, attempts to take away the character of a man who is an inspiration to the Navy and the country generally.

Shearer has been placed, as a result of the President's denunciation, in the enviable position of being the leader in the movement for a greater Navy. We can conceive of nothing more fallacious. If the shipbuilding companies he has named in his suit for back pay compensated him for bringing about the failure of the Geneva Conference, they certainly got little, if any, value for their money. We cannot conceive of American newspaper men at the conference—and we are acquainted with most of them—falling for propaganda. They are pretty wise to that kind of material. What they got they got from members of the three participating delegations, and they were skeptical about information from any other source. Without actually knowing, we can say with confidence that Mr. Shearer certainly put nothing over on the correspondents of the Associated Press, the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune who were present at Geneva.

THE AIRSHIP'S ADVANTAGE

[Kansas City Times]

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose opinion should carry especial weight in such matters, has declared the present dirigible superior to the airplane for transoceanic flying. The experience of the Graf Zeppelin amply substantiates his statement. The comparative comfort and safety of the airship in long flights over water is easily demonstrated by a moment's consideration of the hazards which attended Col. Lindbergh on his own Atlantic passage.

But perhaps the most striking proofs of the Zeppelin's advantages for such work are not found so much in her several successful flights as in her single failure, when she was forced to return from the Atlantic last May on account of engine trouble. Some time after leaving the Spanish coast, two of the ship's five motors broke down and Dr. Eckener ordered her course reversed. The ability which she then displayed to cruise back many miles to safety, the last part of the journey with only one motor functioning, furnished impressive evidence of her reliability in the face of a real emergency. Under similar conditions an airplane would have fallen into the ocean.

SOME REFLECTIONS

BY J. A. GRAVES

I fear that none of us appreciate what a wonderful country we possess. Its area is large, its resources rich and varied, its people active and energetic. Our population is estimated to be in excess of 120,000,000. Next year the Federal census will be taken and we ought to know to a certainty just what our population is.

Since prehistoric man, clothed in skins, crept out of his cave in the early morning, with a club on his shoulder, to search for game with which to fill his larder and feed his family, man's first efforts have been directed to housing, clothing and feeding the human race. To supply the wants of 120,000,000 people is no light task, especially in modern times, when their wants have multiplied with their advancement from savagery to our present state of civilization. In addition to being housed, fed and clothed, under modern conditions they must also be amused; they must receive medical attention; they must receive an education, both religious and secular. They require buildings in which to transact their daily affairs, in addition to their habitations. They require schoolhouses, colleges, seminaries, hospitals, insane asylums, courthouses, administrative and legislative halls, jails and penitentiaries in which to confine those who do not respect the rights of others, but want to live by marauding, murder and other crimes. Man's wants, actual and imaginary, constantly multiply. The supplying of these wants makes up what we term "business."

Naturally, agriculture, with its kindred pursuits, of dairying, fruit and vegetable growing and stock raising, is the basic industry of the country. Without food man could not exist. While our productions are extremely large we import thousands of tons of food supplies from foreign countries which we do not produce at home, and we export to these foreign countries our excess agricultural products for which we have no use. This creates our overseas commerce, requiring large expenditures for vessels and affording labor to a thoroughly trained set of experts.

Taking care of the physical condition of 120,000,000 people is some undertaking. It necessitates hospitals and sanitariums, physicians and nurses, drug stores and hotels and health centers for convalescents. Distribution of manufactured goods and soil products requires railroads and steamers for inland navigation of our navigable rivers. All of these enterprises cost a great deal of money, but they constantly put money in circulation, so that there is a chance for everyone who is not a drone, to get some of it. Our manufacturing industries, coupled with the mass production of the last few years, is a very important element in what we term "business."

Automobile construction, care and maintenance has grown to be a wonderful element in that mysterious thing which we call "business." And now the airplane is attracting not only much attention but large capital expenditures.

Starting with the bare land, at the time America was settled, our nation has become the richest nation in the world. The products of her soil, of her mines, oil wells, fisheries and forests, and her foreign commerce, have created this wealth. We have cared for our people, built homes for them, erected great cities wherein commercial business is carried on; built railroads and steamships; have made and sold in America alone approximately 25,000,000 automobiles and are now spending millions on airplane construction, more millions for golf, polo, baseball, theaters, motion-pictures, horse racing—all of the latter for the amusement of our people—and still have money to burn, as the saying is. Foreign nations owe us billions and the debt is increasing daily. The standard of living of the American people as a whole is higher than that of the people of any other nation. We ought to be a patriotic, satisfied people, proud of our government and its institutions, but we are not. In every hamlet of the nation there are agitators, nearly all of them foreign born, teaching Communism and advocating revolution. Their avowed purpose is to overthrow capitalism, which, with the aid of labor which it has supported, has created our wealth. If from any cause our prosperity should receive a setback, this movement would be more dangerous than it is.

These advocates of revolution seek to poison the minds of the young. "Red" camps for children, with teachers of Communism and revolution, have recently been broken up in many sections of California, and I suppose in many other States. The minds of children can be poisoned against our flag and our institutions more easily than can the minds of adult persons. These teachers of anarchy, rebellion and revolution should be severely dealt with. Every one of them not American citizens should be deported to the country from which he or she came. The menace from this source to our free institutions is greater than we imagine it to be.

Absorbed as we are in our various daily tasks, as long as we get sufficient food to support life, clothing and amusements, how few of us ever give thought to the sources of our prosperity and to the multiplicity of things which go to make up what we term "business."

I wish some one would tell me the difference between a real-estate boom and a stock boom. As we all know, the real-estate boom always brings disaster. San Francisco had one in 1873 which was no exception to the rule. To show the insanity of the buying movement there at that time, my father leased several hundred acres of land near Colma, in San Mateo county, for $3 per acre per annum, upon which to raise potatoes, which had actually been sold for $10,000 an acre. Hundreds of acres of land in San Mateo county were sold at the same figure, and they lay there for twenty years without returning any adequate revenue. Los Angeles had a boom in the eighties which, when it broke, took our entire population years to recover from. The latest example is the Florida boom, which collapsed a few years ago, and resultant calamities are still occurring there in the way of bank and commercial failures. The real estate boom terminates when the price of land gets to a figure where no adequate return in the way of rentals or interest on the money invested can be obtained. In my opinion, the same result must follow inflated stock valuations. One thing that has kept the ball rolling in America as long as it has, is the flood of foreign money coming here to take advantage of the high interest rates resulting from stock speculations. No less an authority than Roger Babson has recently stated that our stock boom must end in a disastrous crash. With this statement I thoroughly agree, and so does every other sober-minded individual who quietly and calmly reviews the speculative situation. Of course when the crash comes it will be a great shock to our country and bring disaster to many people, but America is so rich and her resources so vast that she will in time and quite rapidly recuperate.

To thousands of people who are at present infatuated with the stock-gambling game, the above will appear to be thoroughly ridiculous, although they know that the stocks they are dealing in are selling at figures far in excess of their extrinsic worth, and also know that the returns thereon, in the shape of dividends, will be exceedingly small. And yet these people will borrow money at 7 and 8 per cent and buy stocks which cannot possibly repay them over 2 per cent per annum in dividends.

A young Scotchman migrated to Canada, worked faithfully, accumulated something, married, and a daughter was born to them. Like many another Canadian, he walked across the boundary into the United States without thinking about the laws governing aliens coming into our territory. He was employed by a large milk concern and in time became its manager. Another daughter was born to his wife. He was honored in the community in which he lived, trusted by his employers, and was in every manner a hard-working, conservative and economical employee. Recently, probably at the instance of some foreign-born but naturalized union-labor demagogue, possibly a foreign-born unnaturalized agent of unionism, he was apprehended as a foreigner without right of entry into the United States. He and his wife and two children were recently sent back to Scotland.

At the same time, there is, in every city, village and hamlet in the United States, an unnaturalized Russian emissary, teaching Communism, sovietism and the downfall of American institutions. None of these undesirable citizens are deported, but the inoffensive Scotchman, a credit to his calling and to the community in which he lived, was unceremoniously fired back to the country of his nativity. There is something wrong when an outrage like this can be committed, and the revolutionary scoundrel, here to destroy the minds of our young and, in time, to tear down our flag and destroy our institutions, is allowed to remain here and preach his dangerous doctrines.

If there is no law under which this Scotchman could remain in America, had this incident occurred during the Presidency of Grover Cleveland or Theodore Roosevelt, either of them would have invented a law and enforced it. But in their time labor unionism had not gotten the strangle hold upon every department of our government which it now has. The office of Secretary of Labor for years past has been held by a union-labor sympathizer who boasts of his experiences as a strike leader. Naturally, the office has been administered for the benefit of the unions which boast of their representation in the United States Senate and House of Representatives. The unions dictate legislation and control appointments. A large majority of Federal employees in the various departments at Washington are rabid union-labor supporters, which means inefficiency and constant propaganda for the benefit of the unions.

WINDS

Winds are blowing down the hill!
Little winds that touch and fill
All the grasses with perfume
Sweet as any wildwood bloom;
Little saucy winds that say:—
"Run away with me today!
Run away and come not back!
Follow an old gipsy track!

"Read the stars and changing leaves!
Every gipsy heart believes
Men are more than mortal things
And the gold to which each clings!
Man is more than clay or dust!
Solve the riddle for you must
If you follow little winds
With but clear and open minds!"

OPE OF DRYS NOT IN BALLOT

Generation Expected to Show Results

ining that the greatest factor the success or failure of prohibition lies not in the next general election, but in the next generation, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, in an address before the Ministerial Association at the First Methodist Church yesterday told his audience that the worst enemy of the Eighteenth Amendment is ignorance and the best friends of this great reform movement are those agencies which disseminate the truth concerning the effects of the drink evil and the results of this nation's experiment to prohibit it.

"Observance is more important than enforcement and education more important than legislation and administration," said Dr. Cherrington. "The wets must learn that the old days are gone forever and the drys must learn that they still have work to do, that the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment did not settle the question for all time."

AMENDMENT CHIEF FEAT

"The greatest evidence of progress in the temperance movement is that in one century of agitation, education and legislation there was created in this republic a public opinion strong enough to put the Eighteenth Amendment into the charter of our Constitution," said the speaker. "Whatever may be said of failure of enforcement, lack of co-ordination among officials and the outlawry which has followed in the wake of prohibition, the fact remains that King Alcohol, which yesterday dominated our social and political life, today is a criminal with a price upon his head, a fugitive from justice without standing in the courts or the Constitution. This great reform movement is not a revolution, but a matter of evolution and an evidence of progress may be found in the fact that the 'temperance fanaticism' of yesterday today is common sense."

"You hear a great deal, especially from the foes of prohibition, about the failure of enforcement, the rivalry of officials, rum runners, hijackers, home brew, hip flasks and women drinkers, but they don't talk much about the 200,000 saloons and the 100,000 speakeasies in our cities just before prohibition, when two-thirds of the States already were dry," said Dr. Cherrington. "They don't tell you that in those days approximately 100 gallons of intoxicating liquors were consumed per capita annually by the 35,000,000 population of those cities and that in the Hub District of Chicago, 14,000 women could be found any night in the back rooms of the saloons and houses of vice."

CHEST AID ASKED

"What can be done to make certain newspapers dry?" asked B. S. Hull at the conclusion of Dr. Cherrington's address.

"I don't know," replied the speaker. "However, I do know that we got prohibition in spite of the opposition of the wet press and I believe we shall make it a success in spite of the enemies of society."

Dr. Cherrington was brought to California by the California Anti-Saloon League to lend impetus to the fall campaign of that organization which plans to go into every strategic center of the State to create and organize public opinion in favor of observance and enforcement of prohibition laws. Dr. Cherrington will speak on "A Laboratory Test of Prohibition" at 9 a.m. today at the University of Southern California, and at noon tomorrow he will address the City Club.

Another speaker at the ministers' meeting yesterday was James G. Warren, chairman of the church co-operation committee of the Community Chest, who urged the pastors to do everything in their power to help raise the $3,200,000 asked of Los Angeles citizens for charitable work.

A resolution introduced by Dr. Sheldon Shepard urging the Governor of California immediately to grant full and unconditional pardon to Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings was adopted by the ministers.

KILLING STORY CHANGED

Witness in Trial of Policeman for Slaying Youth Repudiates Early Defense Statement

Repudiating a statement he made to police in connection with the shooting July 4, last, of Christopher Sierra, 19-year-old Mexican, Lorenso Garcia, 18, yesterday appeared as the outstanding witness in the trial before Judge Wood of William J. Bost, police officer charged with murder as a result of Sierra's death.

In the police statement Garcia was quoted as saying that he had seen a man named Chapparo shoot Sierra during an altercation over a bottle of liquor at Kearney and Utah streets. Yesterday on the witness stand Garcia said this statement was false and that he had made it because of fear of a police officer who had taken him in custody.

Bost is asserted needlessly to have shot Sierra while attempting to arrest a youth on a misdemeanor charge. Dep. Dist.-Attys. Barnes and Schenman, prosecuting, are seeking a verdict carrying life imprisonment.

It is expected Bost's defense will get under way today and will endeavor to show that whatever Bost's action was in the case he was justified and within his rights as a police officer. Bost is being defended by Attorneys J. W. Kearby and Cliff Thoms.

Hook-Up of Air Clubs Revealed

Affiliation with similar clubs throughout the country for interchange of courtesies to traveling flyers from the locally planned Flying Club of California, was announced yesterday by its secretary, Victor Clark.

The local club building is to be erected at Grand Central Air Terminal, where ground-breaking ceremonies will be conducted shortly. Headquarters have been established in the Air Terminal Building at the field.

Clark has just completed a 5000-mile air tour of the country in the interests of the club.

TEN CHILDREN INJURED IN BUS

Auto Crowds Conveyance Off Roadway

Police Detain Driver of Offending Car

Victims of Other Mishaps Succumb

Thrown from their seats in a school bus when it was crowded from the road by an automobile and crashed into a telephone pole, ten school children received minor injuries yesterday morning.

At the Downey Hospital the following students were treated for cuts and bruises: Ruth Coon, 12 years of age; Martha Mirdersian, 13; Margaret Coon, 15; Catherine Sorensen, 17; Martha Mushak, 15; Ruth Shakarian, 14; Lucy Shakarian, 12; Victoria Vlaza, 13; Lolita Macias, and Tsadiko Chik, 11.

O. S. Blasdell, 9722 St. Louis street, South Gate, whom witnesses accuse of forcing the truck from the road, was held for questioning by deputy sheriffs. The bus driver, Vernon Wright, was exonerated of blame for the accident.

Following a collision yesterday between an automobile and a junk wagon, Martin Lugoff, 50, a junk dealer, 301 South Boyle street, was taken to the Dickey & Cass emergency hospital where it was discovered that he had a possible skull facture. Miss E. W. Thompson, 607 North Beachwood Drive, who drove the automobile, told police that the horse ran away with the junk wagon, throwing Lugoff out on his head before striking her car. The collision was at Clinton street and Larchmont Boulevard.

Warren O'Neil, 12 years of age, 5122 La Callendaria street, Alhambra, who was struck by a car near his home Saturday, died last night at the General Hospital. Witnesses to the accident assert the boy ran out in to the street in front of the car.

Manuel Garcia, 121 South Savannah street died at Georgia-street Receiving Hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received Sunday night when he drove his automobile into a street car at First and Evergreen streets. He suffered a fractured skull, crushed chest and fractures of both legs. Two passengers sustained minor hurts in the crash.

At an inquest held yesterday, a Coroner's jury exonerated Jay C. Piper, 2206 Glendon avenue, Westwood, in connection with the death at General Hospital last Friday of Harry Clinger, 79, 1224 South Union avenue. Detective-Lieutenant Shattuck testified witnesses had reported Clinger stepped out of a safety zone in front of 1243 West Pico street and was struck unavoidably by Piper's car. The jury found Clinger had not exercised proper precaution.

Critically injured last night in a collision between his automobile and a Pacific Electric train, Abe Marcus, 44, 1174½ Twenty-fourth street, was taken to Georgia-street Hospital. Officers Kollee and Sims of the Wilshire division reported that Marcus drove on to the crossing at Redondo and Venice Boulevards while the wigwag warning signal was moving and collided with a train in charge of Motorman T. Ingraham. Marcus received a skull fracture, internal injuries and fracture of several ribs.

DE PRIEST HONORED AT BANQUET

Colored Congressman Here from Chicago Felicitated on Negro Leadership

Representative white and colored citizens gathered to do honor to Oscar De Priest, negro Congressman from Chicago, last night at a banquet given by the West Side Property Owners' Improvement and Protective Association at the Second Baptist Church, Griffith avenue and Twenty-fourth street. Aside from the address of Representative De Priest himself, in which he expressed his appreciation of the reception accorded him by the citizens of this city, there were no formal speeches, but a long list of speakers, each uttered a few words of welcome to the man whom many of them described as the leader of the negro race in America.

Mayor Porter, City Attorney Werner and his wife, Councilman Martin and Dr. E. Gipson spoke in behalf of the city's white citizens. Among those of Representative De Priest's own race who spoke, were Assemblyman Roberts, Dr. R. C. Hudson, president of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People; Titus Alexander, Mrs. A. Hill, president of the association which sponsored the banquet; Mrs. Clara Hulbert, president of the East Side Co-operative Association; Hugh E. MacBeth, who acted as master of ceremonies, and J. B. Bass, editor of the California Eagle, the negro newspaper whose fiftieth anniversary celebration brought the Representative to this city.

The Congressman will visit San Diego today, but will return here tomorrow to deliver an address in the evening to negro residents of Pasadena. He will leave for home on Thursday.

TEACHER AWARDED DIVORCE FROM MATE

Mrs. Blanche Oakley McDaniels, a teacher in Huntington Park, was given a divorce from Guy R. McDaniels yesterday by Superior Judge Yankwich when the wife testified she always had to support herself. The couple married September 30, 1925, and separated September 15, 1928.

Statue Planned in Memory of Felipe de Neve

Plans to raise a statue memorializing Felipe de Neve, founder of Los Angeles, were announced yesterday by Californiana Parlor, No. 247, Native Daughters of the Golden West. An educational campaign has been begun, to continue until December 1, during which period subscriptions will be solicited. Following the Community Chest campaign an active public appeal will be made for funds.

The Felipe de Neve statue committee of Californiana Parlor is to have the assistance of the Chamber of Commerce, the Native Sons and Daughters, and a strong citizens' committee, with the Mayor taking a lively interest.

Mrs. Arthur Wright, president of Californiana Parlor, is general chairman of the committee, Miss Mary Foy, vice-chairman, and Miss Florence Steinicke, executive secretary. Other members are Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, Mrs. Lorraine H. Bentley, Mrs. Ora May Evans, Mrs. Catherine H. O'Brien, Mrs. Charles Burt, Miss Eliza Quinn and Miss Grace S. Stoermer, district grand president. A nucleus of the statue fund was raised recently at a ball at the Biltmore. The committee hopes to have the statue ready for dedication on the city's 150th anniversary, September 4, 1931.

BANK HOLD-UP STORY TOLD

State May Rest Today in Trial of Mrs. Sterling; Testimony Links Woman With Bandits

The State is expected to rest today, in Judge Hardy's court, in the case of Mrs. Marie Sterling, 26 years of age, who is charged with robbery in connection with the hold-up July 3, last, of the Bank of Italy branch at West Adams street and Orange Grove avenue.

Mrs. Sterling is asserted to have driven the car for the two male bandits who took $1400 from Conrad Thevenot, teller of the bank.

Thevenot told on the witness stand how the two men shoved a note demanding money through the window of his cage. They kept a gun trained on him, he said.

Other witnesses who testified about the robbery included Sidney Hughes, employed in a bank across the street from the Bank of Italy branch, and Elizabeth Quilliams, 15, who told of seeing two men and a woman in the vicinity of the bank on the day preceding the robbery as well as at the time of the robbery.

Mrs. Sterling declared after her arrest that she had no knowledge of the robbery and that on the day of the hold-up she drove her brother-in-law, LeRoy Coffman, and a man named Nelson to a place where they requested her to stop. They then left the car, she said, and returned a few minutes later and told her to "get us out of here." Her suspicions were aroused, she said, when they prepared to leave hurriedly and sought to give her $400.

Police have been unable to apprehend Coffman and Nelson.

PENSION BOND SET

The amount of bond for the general manager of the Fire and Police Pension Department was set at $25,000 by ordinance passed yesterday by the City Council.

Former Police Detective Dies

Ambrose (Bruce) Boyd, a former detective lieutenant in the Los Angeles police department died yesterday morning at the Paradise Valley Hospital in National City after a long period of illness. Boyd left the police force about ten years ago after having achieved a reputation as one of the most efficient detectives of his time, and was famous as the captor of the notorious negro, Seenor, a burglar of two decades past, who ransacked many wealthy homes here.

Boyd was 59 years of age, and leaves his wife, Mrs. Lena Boyd, who has been living near her husband in National City.

The body was brought here from San Diego last night by Walter C. Blue, formerly a detective lieutenant and now head of the Walter C. Blue undertaking parlors at 717 West Washington street. Funeral arrangements will be held in abeyance until word is received from Boyd's brother in Des Moines, Iowa.

SETBACK ADOPTED

An ordinance establishing twenty-foot setback lines in Ardmore avenue between Second and Third streets was adopted yesterday by the City Council.

HILL STREET TO GET NEW STRUCTURE

Finance and Investment Company Plans $800,000 Limit-Height Building

Construction of a limit-height office building on Hill street between Sixth and Seventh streets will begin next spring, it became known yesterday.

The Sun Finance and Investment Company, subsidiary of the Sun Realty Company, is reported as the builder. The company is said to own the property at 629-633 South Hill, which the structure will occupy. Claud Beelman, architect, is preparing plans for the building, which will cost approximately $800,000, exclusive of the land.

At present a two-story store building occupies the site. It is tenanted by Hamilton's shoe store, Colonial Cafeteria and A. Diamond, tailor. Leases of the tenants expire April 1, they declared yesterday.

The Sun Finance Company is the owner of considerable downtown real estate. I. Eisner, president of the company, could not be located yesterday to confirm the building project, but downtown realty men acquainted with the plans declare construction of the building probably will be started on the expiration of the present leases.

It is understood that the proposed building will be erected along straight architectural lines, the narrowness of the lot prohibiting the recent trend of set-back levels. The type of construction and face material to be used has not as yet been decided on.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

RESTRICTION ON LABOR UPHELD

City Can Limit Jobs on Its Public Work to Citizens

San Diego Wins Contention in Court Decision

Former Councilman's Move to Hinder Plan Loses

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 30.—Former Councilman Don M. Stewart's attempt in Superior Court to prevent the city from restricting employment to its citizens on public works, went down to defeat today when Superior Judge Charles C. Haines upheld the city's demurrer. The court made allowance for the plaintiff to amend his complaint but Attorney Leroy Wright, counsel for Stewart, stated he would accept defeat without recourse to legal delays.

Under the plainly stated terms of the court's ruling, the city may reject all bids of contractors on projected water development work, if the contractors refuse to accede to the city's demand that only San Diego residents be employed. The city has the power not only to specify manner and means of performing its work, but may require contractors to give preference to local labor, Judge Haines ruled.

The former Councilman complained that it would take the value of $200,000 from the $2,100,000 water bonds, if such a restriction were enforced, declared in his complaint that such a move on the part of the city authorities would be unconstitutional. Judge Haines cited Supreme Court rulings to show the fallacy of the argument.

When the matter of voting the water bond issue was broached three months ago the City Council resolved to aid the condition of workingmen's families in San Diego by providing employment in which transients and outsiders could not participate.

No constitutional rights of American citizens are infringed, because any such citizen may establish residence in the city to comply with the labor provision, the court decided. If the city should undertake to show who might and who might not become residents, that would be another question, Judge Haines commented.

Ontario Begins Making Planes

ONTARIO, Sept. 30.—Ontario took its place among airplane manufacturing centers of Southern California when the Andis Aircraft, Inc., Company put its first Ontario-made monoplane through a series of severe tests on the local field and pronounced everything "OK."

W. H. Anderson, manager of the Ontario factory, is designer of the ship that uses a Kinner motor. Its first official test flight was made by Lieut. Robert Lloyd of the United States Army, who pronounced it a "great plane." Jesse Phillips, chief test pilot for Andis, Inc., put the plane through ten hours of gruelling test and later carried thirty-two passengers in the two-place cabin dual control ship.

The plant is now manufacturing three other ships and soon will start building five for the government of Bolivia. Orders for thirty-two Ontario-made monoplanes are now on hand at the local plant, according to Anderson. The factory is working toward a capacity of one ship a week.

Burglars Take Studio Property

MONROVIA, Sept. 30—Breaking into the studio of Liberty Pictures, Inc., last night, burglars ransacked the stages and supply rooms, making their escape with at least $1000 worth of film, electric motors and other studio equipment, according to Chief of Police Frank Scott, who detailed Officers Boller and Martell on the case.

Chief Scott got the call at about 8:30 o'clock last night, from Eugene Taylor, manager at the studios, who told police that the burglars had made their escape with the stolen goods while he was absent from the studio for a few hours last evening.

The thieves evidently entered the studio by the aid of a pass key, as police could find no traces of a forced entrance.

That the burglars were well acquainted with the studio and its surroundings, was advanced by police, who declared that the culprits left no clews to aid in launching a search for the stolen property.

OCCUPANT NEARLY BURNS WITH HOUSE

POMONA, Sept. 30.—The home of Grant Carver, 2059 South Garey avenue, county motorcycle officer, was totally destroyed by fire at 3 a.m. this morning, representing a loss of about $4000. Carver, who was alone in the house at the time, was awakened just as the house began to collapse and narrowly escaped being caught in the flaming debris. The fire consumed one of the most complete World War collections of trophies in the valley, besides all of the Garvers's personal belongings. The house was the property of M. Carl of Santa Ana.

MINOR MISHAP MARS TRAFFIC AT ONTARIO

ONTARIO, Sept. 30.—One minor automobile mishap occurred over the week-end, despite highways choked with automobiles. Mrs. Ella B. Hayes was struck by an automobile driven by R. W. Baldwin, at A street and Palm avenue. Her condition was reported "not critical" by Dr. R. L. Alexander.

MAN KILLED WHEN CAR HITS TRUCK

Woman in Same Machine in Critical Condition; Crash Occurred Near Banning

BANNING, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Hazel White of San Bernardino is hovering between life and death at the Banning Hospital and Ozro Garner of 209 West State street, Redlands, is dead as the result of an automobile accident on the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway. H. W. Biggerstaff, driving the car in which all three were riding, was uninjured.

Biggerstaff says that early this morning they were driving toward Banning when he failed to see a truck on a long hill and drove the roadster into the rear of the big truck. Garner died whe nhis skull was crushed. Mrs. White is cut and bruised and is internally injured. Doctors have slight hope of her recovery.

There were half a dozen accidents on the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway here in the past two or three days but no one else was seriously injured except a 6-year-old Mexican boy of Palm Springs who was taken to Riverside County Hospital with injuries.

Thieves Forsake Speeding Car; It Runs Into Porch

WALNUT PARK, Sept. 30.—A runaway automobile caused considerable excitement here for a short time, after it had struck one car, hit another a sideswipe and finally came to a stop when it collided with the porch at the home of C. L. Trindle, 2521 Walnut Drive.

The car had been parked on Walnut Drive, near Santa Fe avenue, when two auto thieves took possession of it. They were seen by Officers Jobson and Gillett of the Florence-avenue Sheriff's office substation, and a chase was started. The pair of thieves jumped from the machine while it was still in motion, and made their escape.

The runaway car continued along Walnut Drive, struck a machine driven by Ralph Lacey of Huntington Park, causing some damage to his car. It continued on its journey, sideswiping another automobile causing it to swerve from its course and it then went over the curb and sidewalk into the Trindle porch where it stopped.

Nine Children in School Bus Hurt in Motor Crash

NORWALK, Sept. 30.—Nine Downey grammar school children and the driver of a light car were more or less seriously injured at 7:40 this morning when a school bus was struck broadside by the car at the intersection of Vinn and Cerritos avenues near Downey, according to a report to the Norwalk substation of the Los Angeles Sheriff's department.

J. V. Wright, 117 Detot street, Downey, school bus driver, was uninjured.

HIP BOOTS NEEDED TO TRAP BOOTLEGGER

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 30.—When the police raiding squad headed by Lieut. H. S. Coit, visited the home of Joe Garcia, 27 years of age, on East Cota street, the tip to take their hip boots, grappling hooks, and seines along was given.

The police put the boots and fishing apparatus to good use with the additional use of a small boat as they hauled some 500 bottles of beer and wine out of a swamp back of Garcia's home. A drinking party composed of a dozen of Garcia's friends and neighbors and wives was disturbed when the police called, breaking into the front and rear doors of the home to seize an additional supply of liquor. Garcia was placed under arrest while the merrymakers were allowed to go home with only a severe lecture by Lieut. Coit on the evils of bad companions.

SAN GABRIEL PUPILS CONTINUE TO ENROLL

SAN GABRIEL, Sept. 30.—Enrollment during the first week of the San Gabriel grammar schools showed an increase of 10 per cent over last year, according to Conrad E. H. Hale, superintendent of schools. Additional registrations during the coming week are expected to boost the total still higher.

The first week's enrollment last year was 1060, as compared with 1161 this year. The new Woodrow Wilson School in the Clarence-avenue district was opened, and, although only twenty pupils were in attendance it was estimated that the registration will be at least seventy-five by the end of the semester. Many of the children were sent to the San Marino and South Santa Anita schools, which opened two weeks earlier, when parents believed the new schools would not be ready for occupancy this term.

TRAFFIC TOLL HEAVY

One Killed and Nine Injured in San Diego in Mishaps Reported There; Car Crashes Through Bridge

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 30.—One person was killed and nine others injured in week-end traffic mishaps, reports from police and Coroner's offices revealed today.

C. B. Tatje, seaman first class, naval air station, was killed instantly early today when the car in which he was riding crashed through the railing of a bridge one-half mile north of Del Mar.

Fred Rose, 465 Orange, was driving the car. He was only slightly injured and is reported recovering today in the Scripps Memorial Hospital.

An examination at the scene of the wreck revealed that the car skidded on the bridge, crashed through the railing and plunged to the dry river bed, about eight feet below.

Rose told officials he did not know Tatje and picked him and three other sailors up on the highway while they were walking toward San Diego.

J. P. Davis, naval air station, and C. J. Nelson, station not known, were injured severely and were removed to the Naval Hospital. Reports said Whitmer, the other sailor, was not injured seriously.

When their car overturned and burst into flames on the Murray Dam road near La Mesa last night, Cecil Brooks and Bobby Holt, two young women whose address police did not learn, were injured.

The pair were brought to the County Hospital by a passing motorist. John Larrin, a sailor, was driving the car, police said. Larrin and Glenn Smart, also in the car, escaped injury.

Mrs. Mary V. Nettleton, 34 years of age, was cut and bruised when the car in which she was riding struck a telephone pole at La Jolla Boulevard and California street yesterday. Mrs. Nettleton was cut on the face by flying glass from the windshield.

R. F. Warren, driver of the car, escaped injury. Warren told police he lost control of the machine when he reached for a piece of candy.

Falling from his motorcycle near the Old Town bridge yesterday, Raymond Reincardy, 21, a sailor, was bruised about the body, police said.

A collision at Market and Nineteenth street today by cars driven by G. H. Gaddis, 22, and B. T. Herreid, 32, resulted in injuries to the latter. Police said Herreid was injured seriously.

PUNISHMENT DOESN'T FIT CRIME LOSS

Only Misdemeanor Charge Can be Laid Against Men Who Set Forest Fires

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 30.—Misdemeanor charges only can be preferred against Ben Ponchetti and Vally Mitchell, cowpunchers, who confessed to setting five fires which early this month resulted in the devastation of 32,000 acres of watershed near Ramona and Witch Creek, the District Attorney said today. The State law makes such an offense less than a felony and provides at the most a $500 fine and six months' imprisonment in County Jail.

Ponchetti and Mitchell will be arraigned in township court tomorrow morning on two counts each, sworn to by Luther Gordon, county fire warden. The counts accuse them of starting a fire without a permit and of letting it get out of control.

While the daw makes the offense a misdemeanor violation only, notwithstanding estimate placing the aggregate damages at $500,000, it was suggested that other citizens in the fire area may prefer additional misdemeanor charges. The five blazes were started in some instances at widely-separated places, thus laying foundation for separate counts of fire-law violation, it was pointed out.

The Federal forest area suffered loss of 5000 acres of woodland and it was expected the forest service may have complaints to make in the Federal courts. Both Ponchetti and Mitchell were being held in County Jail today. They were arrested by Gordon and Deputy Sheriff Blake Mason, who said they obtained full confession of the crime.

Billboard Style of Matrimonial Bureau Started

GLENDALE, Sept. 30.—A modification of the billboard system of advertising matrimonial chances has been used by a Glendale man, who has been fastening notes, printed with a rubber stamp, to shrubs and trees along Porter and Maple streets. The notes advertise a marriage prospect, asking that a woman communicate with the advertiser, but Sergt. Wickham, who investigated the mystery for the police, could not find any trace of the supposed advertiser, although some of the residents in the district stated that the notes had been attached to the trees by a man. Wickham is not worried about the method used by the would-be benedict, but he intends to see that anyone who starts a matrimonial bureau in Glendale will pay a license to the city.

Judge Has Bar in to Breakfast

INGLEWOOD, Sept. 30. —Good morning, judge! This was the salutation given by some forty members of the Inglewood Bar Association, assembled at a breakfast at the Potrero Country Club. They were extending greetings to the host of the occasion, Inglewood's pioneer jurist, Police Judge and Justice of the Peace A. F. Monroe.

Although the city is generally credited with a population approximating 35,000, Judge Monroe said that the State Supreme Court is now engaged in officially ascertaining if the population of Inglewood Township is in excess of 30,000. If such is found to be the case, he said, it will have a significant bearing upon facilities for litigation here, as it will permit of the trying of cases in the justice court involving amounts up to $1000 under the provisions of the recently passed amendment which gives a justice court in a township with a population of 30,000 or over jurisdiction up to $1000 in civil actions. This will be a great convenience, as it will obviate the necessity for the journey to Los Angeles to appear in courts there for the trying of smaller suits, it was said by Judge Monroe.

PARISH FESTIVAL TO INVITE CHURCHMEN

REDONDO BEACH, Sept. 30.—The annual parish festival of St. Cross Episcopal Church here for which invitations have been extended to all Episcopal congregations of the Southland, will be held Friday, October 4, at the church and parish hall with the vicar, Dr. H. P. Hames, in charge. Guest clergy who will assist are Rev. Irving Spencer, who will act as celebrant, Rev. Richard H. Gushee, preacher, and Rev. A. H. Dexter, master of ceremonies. The services will open at 8 a.m. and will be followed by a luncheon served in the parish hall at noon. Preparations are being made for several hundred visitors.

TWO BEARS KILLED

NORTH LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30. Jack Gastil and Dave Goldbeck left here not long ago for the high Sierras to bag a deer. They have just returned, each with a brown bear weighing 500 and 350 pounds. Both skins have been given to a taxidermist to be made into rugs.

Bodies of Two Men Found Dead in Desert Waste

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 30.—The bodies of two dead men were found in the Riverside county desert early yesterday less than 100 yards apart. So far as has been learned there is no connection between the two deaths, the proximity of the bodies being considered a chance happening.

One of the men was J. D. Tucker, 60 years of age of Coachella. The identity of the other has not been established.

The bodies were discovered in a lonely section of the Coachella Valley. They were taken to an Indio undertaking parlor. As Tucker has long been in poor health he is believed to have died from natural causes.

Coroner Dickson left for Indio this afternoon to investigate the meager reports received here.

Tricity Event to Be Observed

SOUTH GATE, Sept. 30.—Preparations are being made by the State Street Improvement Association and the Eagles' Lodge of this city for a celebration to be held in South Gate early next month.

The State street project, which is a four-mile stretch reaching from Lynwood on the south, through South Gate, and to the Huntington Park north boundary line, having just been newly paved and widened, and an ornamental lighting system installed, is to be officially opened on the night of October 8. Both organizations will participate in a parade through the three cities, which will terminate at Southern avenue and State street here, where the Eagles will have a four-day carnival, beginning the same night. All the attractions will be at this point.

It is planned to have State street decorated from one end to the other and to have four bands on that night. There will also be a large street dance as part of the celebration.

It is predicted that the crowds will be the greatest ever assembled for a street opening, as three cities will be interested in the event.

PASTOR RETURNS HOME

RESEDA, Sept. 30.—Rev. T. A. Ray of the local Community Church, has returned home from the conference at Modesto with the announcement that he has been appointed pastor here for another year. Rev. E. Eiland who established the Reseda church has been reappointed to Madera.

GROWER PROUD OF GRAPEFRUIT CLUSTER

Arthur Powell

AZUSA, Sept. 30.—"During my twenty years as a citrus grower I have never produced such a rare specimen of grapefruit development as I found yesterday while walking through my groves, when I happened on a much overdeveloped branch bearing eighty grapefruit in one cluster," Arthur Howell, well-known rancher, declared today as be proudly produced the grapefruit to place on exhibition at a local bank.

Even though the cluster looks heavier it weighed in at only a little over seven pounds, due to the fact that the fruit is only half grown.

Powell, who is a local bank director, has large lemon, orange and grapefruit groves along Alosta avenue and has in recent years been making a specialty of budding citrus trees.

Biscailuz Helps in Motor Mishap at Santa Monica

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 30.—Eugene Biscailuz, former undersheriff of Los Angeles county and recently appointed head of the California State Traffic police, demonstrated he is not going to handle his new job as a "desk man" when he helped Santa Monica police in a traffic accident yesterday. Two cars came together in a collision at Montana avenue and Eighth street, and some one in the crowd telephoned both the police station and Biscailuz's Santa Monica residence. The State official reached the scene of the crash, which was near his home, just before the police ambulance and motorcycle officers arrived; and Biscailuz jumped right into the job of helping untangle the cars and giving temporary aid to seven persons who received slight injuries.

"The new State police are going to co-operate in every way with city officers," Biscailuz declared. "We are united particularly in one purpose, and that is to enforce traffic regulations in a determined effort to reduce traffic accidents and deaths in California. Only through rigid enforcement of the boulevard-stop and other rules which have been violated habitually can we hope to succeed. Many major traffic accidents and deaths have been caused by drivers who failed to observe to the letter such regulations as the boulevard stop."

United Church in Carpinteria

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 30.—Formal steps to form a community church in Carpinteria were taken by the Presbyterian Session yesterday morning, when it requested the pastor, Dr. L. C. Kirkes, to call a meeting of the congregation to consider the movement, which originated with the Methodist group.

A unanimous vote greeted the motion to call the meeting, indicating favorable support for the measure. Dr. Kirkes, who presided as moderator of the session, called the meeting for October 9. This will be too late to place any petition for the formation of a community church before the District Presbytery, which meets in Fillmore on October 8.

A motion to consolidate will be made in the meeting of the congregation. If it is carried a resolution asking for the presbytery's approval will have to be presented to that body and approved.

POST TO ELECT

RESEDA, Sept. 30.—Election of officers of the Reseda post of the American Legion will be held here in Legion Hall tomorrow night. Peter G. Decker and Walter Schroeder are candidates for the office of commander.

TRAVELER PRAISES ITALY

Joseph F. Baudino, Glendale Park Commissioner, on Return from Europe Tells of Progress Made

GLENDALE, Sept. 30.—American engineering firms are contributing in large measure to the economic rehabilitation of Italy, through their work in developing that country's electric power, according to Joseph F. Baudino, Glendale Park Commissioner, who has just returned to his home here after spending three months in Italy.

In spite of the restrictions imposed by the United States immigration laws limiting the quota of entrants from that country, Baudino found that there is a total lack of resentment against this country. And he also found that Italy, staging an industrial comeback, is preparing to meet the payment of her war debts without grumbling. The credit for Italy's present industrial growth and stabilized business conditions is due to Mussolini, Baudino declares, whose policies are working out for the benefit of the entire country, although the greatest advances are manifest in the industrial districts of Northern Italy, he says.

"KEY" MAN UNDER LOCK

"Fixing" Case Suspect Surrenders; Grand Jury Hears His Testimony That May Lead to Rearrests

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 30.—Information believed imparted to county grand jurors and Federal dry agents today by Charles Mulock, asserted "key" witness in the gigantic liquor "fixing" case resulted in an order for rearrest of certain of the individuals accused of conspiracy to violate the Federal dry act. Fred Goodell, special agent, working on the Federal end of the investigation, was busied with bringing about arrest of several after having been several hours in consultation with Mulock, it was understood.

Mulock surrendered Sunday night to County Detective J. D. Cornell and his assistant, Joe Myers. The county investigators, after verifying Mulock's statements and certain information already in their possession, began getting in touch with county grand jurors. The grand jury was convened for a special session today and meanwhile the Federal agents had obtained custody of Mulock from the county officers.

IN SECRET CUSTODY

The Federal men held Mulock in secret custody until the news became public today. The grand jury, after hearing Cornell's account of Mulock's surrender, called the suspect before them and devoted the rest of the morning session to questioning him.

Mulock was expected to give such testimony as to make unnecessary the further action of the grand jury, planned for later in the week. According to predictions this evidence should complete the grand jury quiz, making it possible to save the balance of the witnesses for the courts themselves.

Following his surrender, Mulock was turned over to the special Federal agents in charge of the present investigation, who are charging him with conspiracy and holding him on $2000 bail, the same amount that has been set for the other witnesses.

BELONGINGS BETRAY HIM

Finding of Mulock's personal effects, left behind him in a house he had leased at First and Maple streets, led to his discovery and apprehension, Cornell divulged.

It was in this house that a cache of liquor valued at $70,000 was uncovered by Federal agents close upon the initial seizure of $37,000 worth of liquor on the eve of a convention last month. The first seizure led to the second and caused the inquiry to be launched to ascertain how so much liquor happened to be brought into the city in preparation for the convention gathering, without apparent interference from legally constituted authorities. The cry was raised by some of those who first fell into the toils of the law that $2000 had been paid by them to certain individuals for "protection." The county grand jury and Federal officers are believed to have ascertained that the money passed by the "fixers" more nearly approximated $6000 than $2000.

Coroner's Jury Disagrees About Veteran's Death

SANTA ANA, Sept. 29.—The first disagreement of a Coroner's jury in the recent history of Orange county was on record today in the case of Davis Thomas, 65 years of age, escaped inmate of the Sawtelle Veterans' Home, who died of a skull fracture received when he plunged from an automobile on Baker street, Santa Ana.

The jury empaneled by Coroner Charles D. Brown failed to agree on a verdict at the inquest late yesterday in the Harrell & Brown undertaking establishment here. Details of the disagreement were not divulged and Coroner Brown discharged the jury. He will call another inquest early next week, he stated.

Thomas was being returned to Sawtelle Thursday by deputy sheriffs when he suddenly lunged from the moving automobile and struck headforemost on the pavement. Because of his asserted insanity his arms were strapped to his side at the time. Two hours later he died at the County Hospital.

A sister of Thomas is en route here from Indiana, it was learned.

Petitions Seek Forming of New Water District

VENTURA, Sept. 30.—Petitions, addressed to the Board of Supervisors, requesting organization of a Ventura River Water District by which steps can be taken to insure a constant, larger and unfailing water supply sufficient to provide Ventura, Ojai and the territory lying between these two communities for years to come, are being circulated throughout the proposed district.

In Ventura these petitions are being circulated by committees of the Ventura Chamber of Commerce, and in Ojai, the Santa Ana district and on Ventura avenue by Gird Percy, William S. Dunshee and Muktar Willet, respectively.

Raid Closes Up Brand New Oasis

UPLAND, Sept. 30.—An elaborate business established in a ranch house on Baker avenue, east of here, designed to quench the parched throats of a large clientele, lasted only a few days and today authorities are seeking the ringleaders of what is believed to be one of the largest bootlegging organizations of Southern California.

A raid on the ranch house revealed that a 1200-gallon capacity plant had been hastily removed a short time previousyl, as equipment found in the place was still warm.

That the house had been made ready for an enormous liquor business was evident in the equipment found, which included elaborate vats, filters, quantities of barley mash, a preheater, galvanized iron tank of several hundred gallons capacity, twenty-two new five-gallon cans and a quantity of bottles. Four huge floodlights were found in the barn. The ranch house, off in a secluded section, was fitted with electric refrigeration, electric stoves and other modern equipment.

Romance, Long Dead, Interred

SANTA ANA, Sept. 29.—Joseph G. Kuhn of Brea today took steps to obliterate the legal record of an unpleasant memory of his past, when he filed suit for divorce against Mary Kuhn, who disappeared out of his life nearly twenty years ago, with her infant, whom her husband disowns.

His complaint reviewed a brief married life and charged another man, Eugene Plummer, with fatherhood of a child born to Mrs. Kuhn four months after her marriage. The wife disappeared with her baby when the child was a month old and Kuhn has not seen or heard of them since, he stated.

They were married in Los Angeles in September, 1910, and the asserted desertion took place in January, 1911.

State Officials Inspect Site for Structure

Building to be Located at Yuma Highway Portal

CALEXICO, Sept. 30.—Final plans were completed today for the erection of an attractive inspection station and guest house at the Yuma highway entrance to Southern California when a party of State officials spent the morning inspecting the site of the proposed new structure.

Included in the party were Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Motor Vehicle Department; Senator Lyman King of the State Finance Department, and A. C. Fleury, senior quarantine supervisor in California.

It was disclosed during the conference held at the present inspection station that the heads of the agricultural and motor-vehicle branches of the State government favored the separating of the two inspection services. Senator King, however, quoted Gov. Young as being in sympathy with the wishes of the Los Angeles and Imperial Valley chambers of commerce, both of which have requested the consolidation of the two services at a single station as a matter of convenience to motorists entering the State. King pointed out that incoming motor travelers should be required to make only one stop at the eastern gateway to the State. King indicated that this plan would be followed. Plans already have been drawn for the new building, with traffic lanes to accommodate a minimum of twenty-four automobiles at one time. DELAY GRANTED MRS. PANTAGES

Convicted Woman Taken to Court in Wheel Chair

Theater Man's Wife Lapses Into Unconsciousness

GIVES ONLY NAME

With Mrs. Pantages at the counsel table, Judge Hardy opened the proceedings by a short review of the case and then attempted to ask the convicted woman a few questions. She was able to give the court her name and then appeared unable to go on with the ordeal.

"My name is Lois Pantages," came in a whisper, faint and hardly audible, from shaking grayish lips, and these were the only words spoken by the woman during the entire proceedings.

Defense Attorney Ford filed his motion for a new trial and in it set up all the usual things found in all motions. There were seventeen grounds cited in all, and they ranged from charges that the verdict was contrary to the evidence to a declaration that the jury was guilty of misconduct. The motion was argued orally and in writing and will be argued next Saturday.

Dr. John V. Barrow, appointed by the court together with Dr. Blank, took the stand and testified to Mrs. Pantages's physical and mental condition and both of the physicians seemed to be of the opinion that it will be unsafe to [illegible] Mrs. Pantages to the county jail at the present time.

RECOVERING, SAYS DOCTOR

During the testimony of the two doctors it developed, however, that the theater man's wife is probably suffering more from nervous shock due to her conviction than from a physical ailment. Both Dr. Barrow and Dr. Blank also declared that she is responding to treatment and is on the road to recovery.

Crowded into the tiny courtroom during the proceedings were many of the convicted woman's personal friends and all of the members of her family. Dist.-Atty. Fitts, together with Chief Deputy Stewart and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Costello, all had a hand in the affair and most of the five women and seven men who convicted her last Wednesday filed into the courtroom and took seats.

Mrs. Pantages was convicted after a trial lasting more than three weeks, of manslaughter after evidence and testimony had been presented to show she drove her automobile while intoxicated on June 16 of this year and at Serrano avenue and Sunset Boulevard, crashed into a second machine driven by Joe Rokumoto, a Japanese gardener.

After the accident Rokumoto was removed to a private hospital and was three days later operated on for his injuries. He died on the operating table and a week later Mrs. Pantages was charged with his murder.

During the course of the trial the charge against Mrs. Pantages was reduced from murder in the first degree to murder in the second degree. The jury, after deliberating eight hours, found her guilty of manslaughter.

Following the conviction Mrs. Pantages collapsed and was released on bail by Judge Hardy. Last Friday she was to appear for sentence, but was unable to leave her bed and the matter was put over until yesterday.

The sentence which, under the State law must be imposed, is from one to ten years in the State's prison.

COURT "OPERATES"

"Thorn" is Removed When Wife Obtains Decree

When Superior Judge Yankwich yesterday granted Mrs. Gertrude P. Thomas a divorce from Hugh Edwin Thomas he performed an operation, for, according to Mrs. Thomas, her husband always was telling her that marriage was "a thorn in his side." The decree removed the thorn.

Mrs. Thomas also asserted that her husband refused to provide a home for her, insisting that they live with his parents.

"I couldn't stand it," she said.

BILL RAISER SENTENCED

After pleading guilty to a charge of raising a $5 currency bill to $20, John W. McMurtrey was sentenced yesterday by United States District Judge James to serve two and one-half years at Leavenworth Federal prison. It was brought out that the defendant had served a previous term for violation of the Dyer Act.

After his examination of Pantages, Fitts told the court that his office was "vigorously opposed" to any continuance, and Judge Fricke a few minutes later denied the motion for the postponement.

HE WOULDN'T PAY HIS BILLS, WIFE DECLARES

One of the chief complaints of Mrs. Ruth Eleanor Hieldbrandt, when she went before Superior Judge Baird yesterday asking a divorce from George Hieldbrandt, was that he seldom paid his bills. Hieldbrandt, according to the wife's petition, even failed to pay for the grave of their little child who died last year. The couple married in 1921 and separated this year, according to the wife's testimony. A decree was granted.

Of Interest to Women

Society

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Paraphrasing with many apologies the famous old bard's quotation from Hamlet, "The play's the thing," one might with great honesty say at this time that "the opera's the thing" of most interest to local society.

Shrine Auditorium will be ablaze tonight when the wealth, beauty, fashion and youth of the entire Southland will welcome to our midst the galaxy of stars from the musical world of both continents who are giving us this year one of the most delightful seasons of opera it has been our fortune to hear.

Dinners, many of them informal because of the early hour (8 o'clock, to be exact) of the curtain call are being planned by the many hostesses who are entertaining groups of friends and will take place at home, club or at a favorite cafe, thus adding to the festiveness of the occasion, and, of course, there is an undercurrent of enthusiasm and expectancy which always is prevalent at this time.

I am sure that the famous Diamond Horseshoe of New York's Metropolitan will be duplicated in the loges at our own Shrine Auditorium, where jewels will sparkle and exquisite costumes vie with magnificent furs in the costuming of society of the Southland.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

by THORTON W. BURGESS

PETER FINDS QUEER NEIGHBOR

Often when the truth is clear,
Things are not what they appear.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was over in the Green Forest. He hadn't anything particular to do. For that matter, Peter seldom has anything to do. Just now he was of two minds. He was trying to decide whether he would stay where he was, or whether he would go over and visit the pond of Paddy the Beaver.

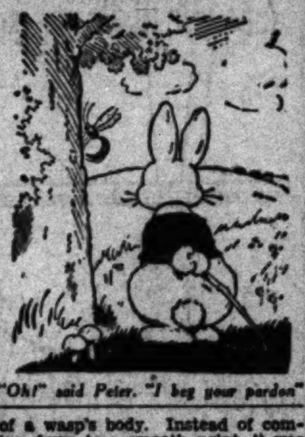
"There's nothing of interest here," said Peter, talking to himself. "This whole morning long I haven't seen a thing worth looking at. I believe I'll go over and see what is doing at Paddy's pond. I wish it wasn't so far. I feel lazy. If there were only something interesting right here, it would be different."

Peter was sitting at the foot of a big elm tree. It was just at that instant that something passed close to one of Peter's long ears so that Peter dodged. He was sure it was a big wasp. When he turned to look, he was more sure of it. The big insect had alighted on the trunk of the tree. It had a long, slender body like a wasp, and gauzy wings like a wasp. Peter merely glanced at it carelessly and moved off a step or two respectfully. Peter has a great deal of respect for wasps, or hornets, as they are sometimes called. He knows all about the sharp little lance that a wasp carries in the end of his body. He has been stung, and one who has been stung once never wants to be stung the second time.

Suddenly Peter sat bolt upright and his big eyes opened very wide indeed. "My gracious, what a sting! What a sting!" he exclaimed. You see, from the tip of the body of this new neighbor of his extended a very long, thread-like part, which Peter was sure was a sting. He leaned forward a little and then discovered that there were three of these instead of one. They were longer than the body of the owner.

"My gracious!" exclaimed Peter again. "My gracious! I don't want to be stung with that!"

The stranger turned so that Peter saw that the end of the body was quite different from the end of a wasp's body. Instead of coming down to a smooth point, it was queerly thickened at the tip. He began to realize that this was a different wasp from any he had ever met.



"Oh!" said Peter. "I beg your pardon"

"You are one, aren't you?" said Peter aloud.

The stranger turned and looked Peter over. "Were you speaking to me?" she inquired.

"I suppose I was," said Peter. "You are a wasp, aren't you?"

"I am not," said the stranger most decidedly. "I am not a member of the wasp family; and furthermore, I don't want to be. I'd have you know that I belong to the fly family."

"Oh!" said Peter. "I beg your pardon. You don't look like a fly; you look like a wasp. I didn't know that flies had such stings. If you don't mind my saying so, you have the longest sting I ever saw."

"What are you talking about?" demanded the stranger. "I haven't any sting."

"It looks to me as if you had three of them," said Peter.

"Those are not stings," replied the stranger.

"What are they, then;" demanded Peter.

"You'll see presently," replied the stranger. "You'll see presently if I have any kind of luck. Sit right where you are and I'll show you something worth watching."

YOUNG WOMEN NEGLECT CLUBS

Newer Generation Forsakes Path of Mothers

Girls of Today Find Niche in Art or Business

Wilshire Organization Adds Course in Golf

BY MYRA NYE

Not in any great numbers are young women of Los Angeles following the precedent set by their mothers who a generation ago joined women's clubs as a matter of course. A new era has dawned for young women out of college who often do not care for society or for clubs. Evidence of this comes casually in lining up incoming news as to what women are doing today and tomorrow in Los Angeles.

"Anne Beaudry," of one of the first families of Los Angeles, and Jean Murphy, a society girl of San Francisco, are appearing tomorrow night and several night thereafter in leading feminine roles in "The Affairs of Anatol" at the Marta Oatman School of the Theater. Dwight Edward Satterlee, who enacts the role of Anatol, is, by the way, also a member of a well-known family here, his grandfather of the same name being an author.

ADMITTED TO BAR

Miss Miriam Olden of 1007 North Normandie avenue, only 21 years of age, recently was admitted to the bar, having completed her law course at the University of Southern California. She is a member of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debating society.

JEAN MURPHY

Gretchen Hensel Copper, a writer and interpreter of drama, will open the season for the Friday Morning Club this week in a program entitled "Dramatic Miniatures of Medieval Romance." Now in private life Mrs. Copper is a mother, a housewife and wife of a busy man of affairs. Now that her children are out of their babyhood Mrs. Copper finds expression not in the regular club life of women but in appearing before them for their pleasure. She has written, costumed and interpreted this program of medieval romance. Always a skillful research worker, she has disentangled a sharply defined drama from masses of material and has made of it a beautiful entity. It is Mrs. Copper's second appearance before the large program club and the members know what excellence to expect.

GRETCHEN HENSEL COPPER

SOME ARE BANKERS

Youthful Miss Bertha P. Singer is a banker, manager of the new women's department in the First National Bank of Portland.

Miss Grace Stoermer of this city, as western regional vice-president of the national association, leads the large delegation of women bankers now convening in San Francisco. Miss Snager is a prominent delegate.

MIRIAM OLDEN

A list of those newly enrolled at the Hollywood Studio Club indicate that many other young women eligible to high positions in society are seeking other activities. Among them are Miss Mary Cole of New York City, and Beatrice Sklar of Chicago; Lucille and Dolores Conrad of Denver. Lucille is a dancer, a pupil of Kosloff. Rosalind Harrison of Chicago is a scenario writer and other ambitious ones are Gloria Gaylord of New York, Lorna Whittingham of Santa Barbara, Ruth Water of Laguna Beach and Ernestine Mahoney.

BERTHA P. SINGER

In altogether another direction are two other young women turning their attention and thought. Miss Helen Alexander 1556 North Fairfax avenue, left last week for Manhattanville, N. Y., to enter the Sacred Heart Convent with plans to become a religieuse.

EXTENSIVE EDUCATION

Following her graduation at the Menlo Park Sacred Heart Academy, Miss Alexander went to Berkeley, where she was graduated and where she was a member of the French honor society and belonged to Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. She studied for a doctorate in philosophy at the Sorbonne, Paris. Beautiful as well as cultured, Miss Alexander comes from one of the old families here. Her late father was F. F. Alexander and her uncle was R. C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Frances E. Willard was a cousin of her mother, Mrs. Anna C. Alexander, who still keeps up the home on Fairfax avenue.

Miss Alexander was joined by Miss Constance Welch, also of a prominent family, who was a classmate of Miss Alexander at Berkeley. Neither knew until they met at Manhattanville that the other was considering life in the convent.

Today In Club Circles

Anna Steese Richardson in her article in the current number of Harper's Magazine entitled "Are Women's Clubs Dying?" cites sport as a strong rival to the women's club movement. Along comes the Wilshire Woman's Club, the first typical club of women to add a golf section to their many activities. Instruction in golf and tournaments among members will be featured. Today the first meeting of the club for the season will be held at 10:30 a.m. at 1419 South Wilton Place. The program will include a group of songs by Floretta Burdick; readings by Marion Montelone and an address on Mexico by Will Hays.

Bob Wagner will be the chief speaker today at the first meeting of the Southern California Women's Press Club at 2 p.m. at the Friday Morning Club. Mrs. Allison Gaw is president and Miss Katherine Lipke as vice-president is chairman of the day.

CLUB BREAKFAST

Highland Park Ebell opens the fall season with a breakfast in the clubhouse, 131 South Avenue 57. Mrs. Dan Hammack will serve as toastmistress.

A drama conference for the Los Angeles district, Federation of Women's Clubs, will be conducted at district headquarters, 2103 South Hobart Boulevard, by Mrs. George Frederick Allen. Mrs. H. H. Wood and Mrs. Randolph Carter are the speakers.

The Woman's Lyric Club begins its twenty-sixth consecutive season today with rehearsals. Mrs. Leslie L. Merrick is president, J. B. Paulin, director, and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson accompanist.

Soroptimists meet in the music room of the Biltmore at noon. Christine Strang presents Miss Margaret Hannah, who will depict the history of soap, making in talk-and-motion pictures entitled "From Sand to Suds." Dr. Lillian Grandmason is president.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

CREAM OF SPINACH SOUP

Three tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of grated onion, a seasoning of salt and white pepper, three-quarters of a cupful of cooked spinach, three cupfuls of scalded milk, melt the butter, add the grated onion, and allow to cook for five minutes, add the flour, which has been mixed with a fourth of a cupful of cold milk, add the scalded milk, the pureed spinach and allow to cook in a double boiler for twenty minutes. Serve with croutons.

HUNGARIAN BEEF LOAF

Put through the fine knife of the meat grinder half a pound of lean beef and mix with a half a pound of sausage, add half a pound of lean boiled ham, chopped fine, and an equal amount of bread crumbs, add one chopped clove of garlic, three tablespoonfuls of grated onion, one finely chopped green pepper, and a seasoning of salt and paprika. Beat the yolk of one egg with four tablespoonfuls of milk, mix all together, and add the stiffly beaten white of the egg, place in a well-buttered baking dish, cover tight and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and one-half. Uncover the dish and allow to brown.

SOUFFLE POTATOES

Peel the required amount of potatoes, and drop them in ice water, slice them lengthwise, in rather thin slices, and drop the slices in ice water; have two pans of fat on the fire, one a rather hot fire and the other one a medium, take the potatoes from the water, wipe them quickly, drop into the pan with the coolest fat and cook for five minutes, swim them out and drop them into the very hot shortening, when the ywill begin to expand. As soon as well browned, remove to a hot plate and serve at once.

DEEP ORANGE AND APPLE PIE

Four large apples, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a grated rind of half a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped orange peel, one cupful of sugar, peel the apples and cut in thin slices, lengthwise, mix with the remaining ingredients, butter a baking dish, and fill with the mixture, dot with bits of butter, cover with a rich biscuit dough, place in a hot oven for the first ten minutes, then reduce to a medium oven and finish baking.

Mrs. Wyman does not reply to letters, but requests for recipes are answered in the department, PRACTICAL RECIPES, published every Friday.—(All rights to reproduce reserved by A. L. Wyman.)

Your Baby and Mine

by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

SMALL CHILDREN NEARLY SAME AGE NOT GOOD COMPANIONS

Mrs. B. S. writes: "I am a reader of your column and wonder if you can help me? My two girls are 3 and 5 years of age and they are almost continually fighting over the least trifles. I cannot seem to stop them. This is so wearing on me and my in-laws are always remarking about it.

"I am not very well and haven't much patience with the children, especially when this goes on every day. Please don't laugh, I am too discouraged for words. The children's bringing up seems too much for me."

Answer: Of course, I won't laugh. This condition isn't as serious as you are taking it and needs just better health, more patience and a better understanding of what should be expected of children. Right now you feel badly and their noise grates on you, making you in turn a scold, perhaps, and unable to handle the situation as wisely as you might if you didn't feel so irritable.

Children of this age practically always disagree. One child is still entirely self-centered (the younger,) and the older one is growing out of that. Most mothers show favoritism in these circumstances, taking the part of the child who makes herself the least nuisance and telling the other child how hard she makes her life and how unhappy the mother is over her, and what a naughty little girl she is. Under those circumstances, the child just gives up the struggle to be good and decides she is all that is said of her.

Two children in a household must have the same toys, however simple they are. This takes away one frequent cause for argument. The larger and more expensive toys have to be divided fairly in this manner. If the older starts to play with the wagon or doll buggy, it belongs to her until she is ready to give it up. She must play with it though, and with nothing else. When she is through the other may have it as long as she pleases. If this rule is enforced fairly, the children will begin to find out for themselves that while they are playing with the wagon they can't have anything else and they'll learn to trade and make bargains with each other. If a toy is snatched away or the child makes a fuss about not being able to play with it, the one who is at fault will have to go in some other room and stay there until she is able to play good-naturedly again. One can't deviate once rules are made and understood. Then the children will give in to them without argument.

Let the older one help you. Children of this age love it, and then there will be fewer chances for argument. Children of two such divergent mental ages as this, find it hard to be agreeable, while a year or two will make a great difference in their ability to play together.

Household Suggestions

A Little Lemon

After using lemons, don't forget to wipe your hands with the skins. They will remove all stains from vegetable paring and soften and whiten your skin.

That's What Makes You Mad

When painting overhead or up high, it is most annoying to have the paint drip down the handle of the brush. This can be eliminated by cutting a soft rubber ball in half and in one half cut a hole through the center large enough for the handle to slide through. Then you have a cup to catch the errant paint before it can run down the brush handle.

Just Facts

Dip the knife in boiling water before cutting through soap.

Always brush a hat, dress, or coat the direction in which the nap runs.

You will find percolated coffee more digestible than the boiled variety.

Oyster dishes and fish platters need garnishing to make them appear more appetizing.

Should the planked steak catch on fire on the plank, throw a little salt on it and you will quickly put it out.

EX-BANK MANAGER'S SENTENCE DELAYED

Additional time was granted to Warren Smith, former manager of the Third and Spring streets branch of the Bank of America, when he appeared yesterday before United States District Judge Henning for sentence. He is to appear today in court to hear the court's decision. It is charged that while a branch bank manager, Smith misapplied about $15,000 of bank funds.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Resolution of intention to establish setback lines in four streets were adopted yesterday by Council. They refer to New Hampshire avenue from First to Third streets, Eighth avenue from Mont Clair street to Jefferson Boulevard, Santa Barbara avenue between Figueroa street and Vermont avenue and Fourth avenue from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth street.

ORDINANCE ADOPTED

Council yesterday adopted ordinances of intention for the improvement of Pico Boulevard from Overland avenue to Exposition Boulevard and from Crenshaw to Robertson boulevard. They were set for hearing November 8.

Seek Witness in Divorce Hearing of Lewis Stone

Process servers are seeking to serve a subpoena on a prominent motion-picture actress whom Lewis Stone wants for a witness in his divorce case against his wife, Florence Oakley Stone. Because the subpoena has not been served the divorce case yesterday was continued one week by Superior Judge Sproul.

The identity of the witness is not disclosed, Stone's attorneys having obtained a Jane Doe citation for her.

Stone's action, filed last July, has not been answered by Miss Oakley, who defaulted. The actor charged his wife "lacked consideration for his feelings and sensibilities," was uncongenial in his presence and subject to temperamental fits of anger.

Catholic Picnic Set for Sunday

Irish jig and reel contests, contests in aesthetic dancing, fat man's race, women's relay races and a series of comedy stunts by Hal Roach's "Our Gang" will feature the Catholic picnic and barbecue next Sunday at Rose Hill Park, according to Benno M. Brink, head of the committee.

Arrangements are being made for free open-air dancing for everyone throughout the afternoon and evening with music furnished by several orchestras. More than 100 Catholic parishes and nearly fifty organizations will participate.

MISS DOROTHY ROE'S FUNERAL TO BE TODAY

Funeral services for Miss Dorothy I. Roe, who died Saturday evening, will be conducted this afternoon at Forest Lawn Memorial Park. Miss Roe, a native of Los Angeles, was a graduate of the University of California and Columbia University, New York. For the last four years she had been a teacher in the Los Angeles city schools. For a number of years she had been an active worker in the Wilshire Presbyterian Church. Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Roe of 606 North Normandie avenue, Miss Roe leaves three brothers; Charles D., William Warren, and Julian H. Roe, all of this city. Her father is business manager and secretary of the Daily Journal Company.

REQUEST RECIPE DAY FOR COOKING SCHOOL

Mrs. Mabelle Wyman, Times cooking school chef, again will devote the greater part of this afternoon to preparing request recipes. These will be special courtesies, as some of the recipes have been repeated several times. She will go over them again to please various members of the classes. Mrs. Wyman will make Cheshire pork pie, orange pie, cheese cake, baked egg plant and mayonnaise dressing, the latter four being the requests.

Times free cooking classes meet every Tuesday and Friday afternoons in the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway, and are open to all.

PRACTICAL LAWS TAUGHT

All foreign persons and those recently naturalized who are interested in learning more about the practical laws that affect everyday life, may attend every Thursday evening the Metropolitan Evening High School, 234 Venice Boulevard. The class begins at 7 p.m. in Room 206. Laws about the following subjects will be discussed: Bank accounts and deposits; buying used cars; buying or building a home; landlord and renter; properties of husband and wife; insurance; workmen's compensation; alien property laws and others.

Electric Group in Merger With National Chain

F. J. AIREY

"This consolidation," said Mr. Airey, "does not mean any change of ownership but brings into one national group fourteen wholesale distributing corporations owned by the General Electric Company, which companies have for many years distributed General Electric products."

The officers of the new corporation are Gerard Swope, chairman of the board; C. E. Patterson, president; J. L. Buchanan, executive vice-president; J. G. Johannesen, vice-president eastern region; D. E. Harris, vice-president western region.

D. E. Harris, who was formerly president of the Pacific States Electric Company, will occupy the position of vice-president and director of the new corporation. H. R. Noack will serve as commercial vice-president and S. B. Anderson will be assistant treasurer, all with headquarters in San Francisco.

Husband Before Court in Fatal Beating of Wife

Accused of assault with a deadly weapon and with murder as a result of the death of his wife, Mrs. Vivian Cordell, from an asserted beating administered by him, Fred Cordell of 4943 Clara street, Cudahy, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Lahey yesterday and his preliminary hearing set for Friday. He was ordered held without bail pending the hearing.

The beating, according to Deputy Sheriffs Burns and Medford, occurred following a family quarrel when Mrs. Cordell started to pack her belongings preparatory to leaving home on September 8, last. Cordell is asserted to have beaten her on the head with a hammer, afterward attempting to kill himself by slashing his throat with a butcher knife.

LASKY TO PRODUCE SUPER REVUE

Glenn Tryon Will Take Role of Actor for Universal; Chaplin Plays Tennis With Many Noted Amateurs; Napoleon Specialist Appears With Novarro

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

It looks as though the trammels and limitations of both stage and screen are being gradually broken down with the influx of sound and color pictures, with the result that what might almost be called a new art form is coming to the screen. M.-G.-M.'s "Hollywood Revue" pointed the way.

ELSIE JANIS

And now, voicing enthusiasm he has seldom before shown for an individual production for Paramount, Jesse L. Lasky, who has just returned to New York from Hollywood, has announced the fact that he is preparing to complete additional details of an ambitious cinephonic festival to be called "Paramount on Parade."

Did you notice that word "cinephonic"? Mr. Lasky declares that it is exactly the right word to properly describe this all-star song, dance, scenic and camera spectacle which he promises will mark a high spot in film entertainment. Natural color photography as well as sound will be used in the production.

"'Paramount on Parade' will not be a revue as that term is generally accepted," Mr. Lasky stated in a wire to the western studio. "The word is inadequate and too suggestive of the narrow limits of the stage to be used in connection with this sound, camera and color festival we have planned. We expect our picture to mark a celebration of the freedom from the restrictions of the stage and from the restrictions of the silent screen."

Naturally after such an announcement one feels curious as to who will take part in the production, and we find that not only the stage stars under contract to Paramount, but many of the film stars will appear.

Indeed, other productions will be held up in order to concentrate on this gigantic one.

The versatile Elsie Janis is giving her entire time to writing for the production, aided by other noted Paramount writers. B. P. Schulberg and Albert A. Kaufman are likewise concentrating their efforts toward making the picture the greatest success ever to come from the Paramount studios.

The "Paramount on Parade" cast will boast such names as Maurice Chevalier, Clara Bow, Ruth Chatterton, Dennis King, Harry Green, James Hall, O. P. Heggie, Helen Kane, the Four Marx Brothers, Moran and Mack, Jack Oakie, William Powell, Hal Skelly, Lillian Roth, Fay Wray, Richard Arlen, Jean Arthur, William Austin, Mary Brian, Nancy Carroll, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Regis Toomey, George Bancroft, Gary Cooper, Kay Frances, Neil Hamilton, Doris Hill, Phillips Holmes, Jeannette MacDonald, Frederic March, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallette and others.

In addition, Mitzi, favorite star of musical comedy, first becoming famous in "The Spring Maid," and afterward appearing in "Sari," "The Magic Ring" and many other musicals, most of which were written by the brilliant Zelda Sears, will take part, while it is likely that still other Broadway stage stars will contribute to the success of the production.

Humphreys Plays Napoleon

William Humphrey, the most noted of all the hundreds of actors who have portrayed the role of Napoleon Bonaparte on stage and screen, has been chosen by Director Sidney Franklin to depict the famous Corsican lieutenant in "Devil May Care," a Ramon Novarro starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The actor has been a Napoleon specialist, as you might say, for over thirty years. He has played the part approximately 5000 times. On the stage he appeared in "More Than Queen" with Julia Arthur in "Mademoiselle Mars" with Lily Langtry and in "Madame Sans Gene" with Lillian Lawrence. He has taken the part of Napoleon in pictures many times, his entrance, indeed, being made in a three-reel pictures, "Napoleon," starred by J. Stuart Blackton.

Charlie Chaplin's Day Off

Charlie Chaplin, the world's greatest comedian, took a day off from the gruelling exactions of art yesterday to play tennis. That he was beaten is perhaps a tribute to his gallantry, for Charlie is a good player, and in any event, as he was playing against some of the world's greatest amateurs, he need not be ashamed of his score.

The comedian entertained the players at lunch at his Beverly Hills home, after which the games were played at his private tennis courts.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Distinguished names of the tennis and social worlds graced his guest list, including Tamio Abe of the Davis Japanese Cup team; Mrs. B. C. Covell, captain of the Wightman Cup team; Edith Cross, third ranking American woman player; John Van Ryn of the United States Davis Cup team; Betty Nuthall, Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, Mrs. Phoebe Watson, Bunny Austin, Midge Gladman, B. C. Covell, Mr. Brennon and others.

Three or four sets were played. Mr. Brennon and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron competed against Chaplin and Miss Nuthall, with the former winning.

GLENN TRYON TO BE FITTED TO STORIES

Some excellent stories are being arranged at Universal for Glenn Tryon, star of "Broadway."

GLENN TRYON

Two stories just announced, to follow "On the Make," the title of which, by the way, is to be changed, are a pair of yarns that promise to give Glenn excellent opportunity for his varied talents.

"Anything Goes" is the title of one, and "Times Square Kid" is the other.

"Times Square Kid" is the tale of a down-and-out actor in New York. Tryon will be supported in this, according to present plans, by Merna Kennedy.

JUDGMENT FOR NOTE GRANTED IN FILM CASE

Award of a judgment for $3649.43, the amount sought, was granted the Motion Picture Capital Corporation against Harry Garson, film director, when the case went before United States District Judge James yesterday. The amount was asserted to be a balance due on a note signed by Garson as secretary of the Thomas Productions, Inc.

CANADIANS TO DANCE

Waltzing for the 1929 championship of the Canadian Society, forty couples from all parts of the British Empire will compete tomorrow night in the Hollywood Roof Ballroom, 1549 Vine street. Three prominent ex-Canadians, now Los Angeles business men, will be judges. Larry Walden's Town Club Band will provide music. Col. A. G. Fonseca, formerly of Winnipeg, president of the club, will act as master of ceremonies.

BIG MAN TESTING LITTLE PLANE

Walter A. Hamilton Tuning 'er up

You might know it would be the biggest man who would fly the smallest plane, so when the Aero Corporation of California brought a tiny Davis monoplane to the local airport, it was a foregone conclusion that Walter A. Hamilton, who weighs 285 pounds, would be the one to try it out.

When the massive Mr. Hamilton walks over to the little ship, spectators expect to see him tuck it under his arm and walk away with it. And when he seizes the propeller to turn over the engine, the process is remindful of the rancher's method of dispatching chickens.

MILLIKAN LAUDS PROGRESS

Scientist Tells of World's Advance and Reveals Caltech Building Plans to Freshmen

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 30.—"Everyone now living is farther away from his grandfather than that grandfather was from King Tut-Ankh-Amen," asserted Dr. Robert A. Millikan today in telling the capacity class of 160 California Institute of Technology freshmen of their opportunities.

In the course of his welcoming address at the first student assembly of the year at Culbertson Hall, the chairman of the institute's executive council, revealed that three or four projected $200,000 dormitories have been financed, but that due to an arrangement with the donors, construction cannot start until the fourth student home has been financed. This, however, Dr. Millikan believes, will be accomplished within a few months or sooner.

CITES OPPORTUNITY

"At this first assembly," said Dr. Millikan, "I wish to invite the attention of all those who have anything whatever to do with the building of this graduate research and educational center to the extraordinary opportunity which is before it at this moment."

"We are extraordinarily placed, both in time and space for making our outstanding contribution to the future. No generation which has ever lived has ever seen anything like the rapidity of change which has been taking place during the past seventy-five years.

"There is no doubt whatever but that any one of us now living is farther away from his grandfather than that grandfather was from Tut-Ankh-Amen. This is true not only of the external conditions under which we live our lives, which have been changed by the discovery of the power machine, but also of the way we think.

TAKES STEEP ANGLE

"In all his beliefs, in his superstitions, in his prejudices, in his world outlook, your grandfather was nearer Tut-Ankh-Amen than he is to you. In many of these respects, history, from Tut-Ankh-Amen's time, moved along more or less on a level, or at least with a gradually increasing slope upward, but during the last seventy-five years it has sloped upward at a steep angle, and a particular cause of that upward movement has already produced its effect, so that the rate of change for further accessions probably cannot be maintained.

"In other words, in many particulars, the curve of history moves along like a level plane and then rises to a new plateau. We are now at the brow of that plateau and are laying the foundations of an institution which can be adapted to the conditions of life which exist at this particular point in time and space.

"Most of the other institutions have built their traditions on the conditions existing in the past and adapted to the past better than to the present. They are going to change, but they will do it slowly, impeded by the inertia that goes with those traditions.

"We here have the opportunity which comes not once in a century to any group of men to build an institution which is adapted to the conditions of life and thought which exist in September, 1929."

TALKS ON BUILDING

Dr. Millikan asserted American educational institutions have not solved the problem of undergraduate student life so successfully as have the British institutions, but that through enabling 300 men to live together, the proposed four $200,000 dormitories will place the institute in a position to do so.

Other construction which is expected to be started on the institute campus this year includes three great buildings to be erected in connection with the proposed 200-inch telescope, and a building group to be erected at the southwest corner of the campus which will house the earth science departments, including those of geology and paleontology.

In speaking of the need for the financing of an additional dormitory, Dr. Millikan said, "I hope very much that some one who, in one way or another, hears my voice now or hears of this need through this address, may appear to supply this keystone in the architectural development of extraordinary proportions which I think I may promise you will take place here during the next two years."

HEROINE IN WALK HOME FROM RIDE

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

The somewhat staggering spectacle of Miss Dorothy Mackaill walking home from an auto ride will be exposed to your view if you go this week to Warner Brothers' Theater in Hollywood. Miss Mackaill, who always sort of struck you as the capable kind, chose to take no further chances with Edmund Burns, a young man about town, even though Jack Oakie, her brother, had taught her how to use a good right hook. Better the open road than dishonor; and so it was with this difficult-to-acquire lady heroine of "Hard to Get," a First National Vitaphone picture.

"Classified," by Edna Ferber, the story upon which the nocturnal promenade is based, has served the movie makers in good stead before, and probably will again. Corinne Griffith appeared in an almost identical version, but a better one, not so many years ago. The trouble with the present effort is that it might have been so much more deft and memorable and close to you and to me than it actually is. And still I commend it to your not overtaxed attention as a fair piece of Americana, amusing, and trailing—at a discreet and oblivious distance—the facts of life in a big city.

Whether this Miss Mackaill is a wise choice for the role of Bobbie Martin is open for debate. An intensely practical young person, she brings the right earthy touch to the matter of modeling gowns and keeping a large and overburdened family in its place; and as such, she gains in the talking medium, which is at its best when it concerns itself with practical and earthy things. At the same time, one is conscious that it will not be necessary to do any worrying about her; she will take care of herself. Remember that right hook, and thank you kindly.

Remembering it, one cannot take a too complacent attitude toward the righteous morality which Miss Mackaill invokes in her behalf when confronted by an irate and still overburdened family, which demands to know where she has been, and why, and how come. (This is after the walk home.) Her astonishing reluctance to talk frankly, her pleading "You don't think . . . ?" as she moves from one to another of her kin, is as hypocritical, in a sense, as the assembled kin's sudden solicitude for the welfare of a grown daughter and sister with a good right hook. And as unconvincing as the proposal of marriage from the chastened and conscious-stricken young man about town, who enters about here.

Jack Oakie, to employ an outworn phrase, lives the part of the brother. It is true that from his facile lips fall those lines best calculated to stir the risibilities of an audience, but it is also true that many which are trite and undeserving gain humorous potency through contact with those same lips. The aforementioned Mr. Burns, despite the fact that he appears almost constantly in need of a shave—or, maybe because of it—characterizes the man about town with considerable accuracy, and Charles Delaney is guileless and winning as the, shall I say, hero.

James Finlayson and Louise Fazenda caricature their portraits of the girl's father and mother. It is a persistent quality of the picture, anyway, that too much of the action is stressed pantomimically—as it would be in a silent film, and out of proportion to the content of the dialogue.

Gala Premiere Scheduled for Jolson Picture

AL JOLSON.

The picture, his latest Warner Brothers Vitaphone offering, "Say It With Songs," is to be ushered in with a gala premiere and Jolson will officiate in white face as interlocutor, master of ceremonies and general factotum at the evening's festivities.

"Say It With Songs" is the story of a radio singer who is separated from his wife and child and the role affords to Jolson an opportunity to put over several song hits in his own inimitable way. The story is by Darryl Francis Zanuck and Harvey Gates and was directed by Lloyd Bacon. In the supporting cast are Marian Nixon, Holmes Herbert, Kenneth Thompson and Fred Kohler.

"Say It With Songs" is said to be a worthy successor to "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," famous vehicles for Jolson.

Russell Hopton Cast as Barber

Russell Hopton, the clever young juvenile actor, who recently scored as Rags, in "Night Hostess," at the Belasco, will be seen as a high-brown barber when "Lulu Belle" begins its limited engagement at the Belasco Theater Monday evening.

Hopton recently has made quite a name for himself in motion pictures, but was engaged for his role in "Lulu Belle" immediately after the closing of "Night Hostess."

BODIL ROSING ON STAGE

Bodil Rosing, noted character actress, is rehearsing for an important part in "What a Woman Wants," starring Marjorie Rambeau. This production is tentatively scheduled to open on the 16th inst., at the Vine Street Theater.

Backstage Life Revealed

Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll
Who appear as "Skid" and wife in "Dance of Life," a Paramount production taken from the stage hit, "Burlesque," starting tonight at the United Artists Theater.

UNDERWORLD FILM BOOKED

"The Girl From Havana," William Fox all-talking picture featuring the same players who appeared in "Speakeasy," will start at the Boulevard Theater Thursday.

Lola Lane, Paul Page and Warren Hymer, the trio that secured long-term contracts by their work in "Speakeasy," are the principal players of "The Girl From Havana." Others in the cast are Kenneth Thompson, Natalie Moorhead and Joseph Girard.

"The Girl From Havana" was photographed in Los Angeles, San Francisco, the Canal Zone, on board a liner through the Panama Canal, Balboa and in the city of Havana. Every scene depicting some particular spot was actually filmed at that place, it is said.

The story is packed with thrills, according to advance reports. The theme deals with a gang of international thieves who make a big haul in a daylight robbery. On the stage Jack Stanley has planned a fast offering in "Rhythm Revue" with his band and girls.

PARAMOUNT TO SCREEN TWO CROWS

"Why Bring That Up?" to Provide Further Antics of Popular Team

The Paramount Theater announces that starting Thursday the feature attraction will bring the internationally noted two Black Crows to the audible screen in their first talking picture, appropriately titled "Why Bring That Up?" In this latest Paramount production Moran and Mack are supported by a fine cast featuring Evelyn Brent and Harry Green.

"Why Bring That Up" was especially written for Moran and Mack by Octavus Roy Cohen, popular author. The story gives Moran and Mack ample opportunity to carry on their lines of "tired" humor and to play the leading roles in a stirring story said to be based on their early experiences in the theater.

Evelyn Brent gives a fine performance, it is said, as the girl who plays the good-natured Moran for a "sucker," and Harry Green, who was cast as the theater manager in "Close Harmony," is funny as the distracted manager.

PLEASING PROGRAM OF DANCES GIVEN

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Doris Niles directed a dance presentation at the Figueroa Playhouse Sunday evening which attracted a large audience. Miss Niles is a California dancer who has achieved a reputation both in the United States and in Europe and during the past few months she has perfected a dance trio and many new choreographies which she offered. Mr. Raymond McFeeters was an assisting soloist and played the accompaniments for the dance with his usual sensitiveness and understanding.

The dancing included several different styles from the expected Spanish Flamenco which has become identified with Miss Niles. Extreme darkness and long waits interfered with complete enjoyment. A Scriabine prelude done in the Ito manner attracted especial attention for its simplicity and forthright gesture, and the Spanish numbers done with abandon and passion closed the evening's entertainment. The costuming was gorgeous in design and color and the Niles Trio, consisting of June Williams, Alexandre Stewart and Evelyn Crist, pupils of Miss Niles, struck a certain naive and unsophisticated note that was both interesting and promising for the future.

Mr. McFeeters palyed some of the moderns while seated in the wings with a huge shadow of himself thrown on the curtain. The effect was arresting and can be recommended for other pianists. One is conscious of the music rather than the player in this arrangement.

Chinese Changes Show Schedule

Effective immediately, the performances of "The Cock-Eyed World" at Grauman's Chinese Theater will commence promptly at 2:30 and 8:30, according to an announcement by Harold B. Franklin.

The matinees at Grauman's Chinese are fast becoming one of the popular institutions, it is said, replacing bridge parties, teas and other afternoon soirees for the fair sex. The romances, the touches of pathos combined with the thrills and beauty and the large cast of this William Fox-Raoul Walsh production is the reason for the universal appeal that this picture holds for women and girls in all walks of life.

SPORTS MIXED

"SPEEDWAY" NEXT FILM AT LOEW'S

William Haines Has Role as Racing Mechanic in Byron Morgan Story

William Haines has taken to the roaring race track with its thrills, upsets and sensations! His latest picture to open Thursday at Loew's State is "Speedway," from a story written around the annual racing classic at Indianapolis and climaxed by actual scenes of the big event, interspersed with cut-ins of thrilling episodes in which Haines participates.

The story is the creation of Byron Morgan, who compiled the thrilling automobile race stories in which Wallace Reid starred a few years ago.

Haines is cast as a carefree, ne'er-do-well racing mechanic who clowns and wise-cracks his way into the hearts of the race-track folk, including Anita Page, who has the romantic feminine role. Ernest Torrence is his friend and benefactor, a veteran driver who has tried for sixteen years to win a race and is making this his last big effort. The story climaxes with Haines turning hero and sacrificing his own big moment of glory for the happiness of his friend. Karl Dane and Polly Moran add more comedy, and John Miljan has the villain role.

Criterion Will Present Novel Ceremony Head

A decidedly unique master of ceremonies will preside at the Criterion Theater tomorrow night when "The Great Gabbo," James Cruze's first all-talking picture has its western premiere. The master of ceremonies, who will introduce stars and celebrities from the stage will be Otto, tiny ventriloquist's dummy, who is seen in the film in what might be termed one of the major roles.

Otto is ingeniously manipulated by means of concealed wires. In the picture it is through the mannekin that Von Stroheim as the Great Gabbo speaks his only kind words, and so forcefully is this dual personality of the central character brought out that Otto has a genuine personality in the story.

Of Interest to Women

Society

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Paraphrasing with many apologies the famous old bard's quotation from Hamlet, "The play's the thing," one might with great honesty say at this time that "the opera's the thing" of most interest to local society.

Shrine Auditorium will be ablaze tonight when the wealth, beauty, fashion and youth of the entire Southland will welcome to our midst the galaxy of stars from the musical world of both continents who are giving us this year one of the most delightful seasons of opera it has been our fortune to hear.

Dinners, many of them informal because of the early hour (8 o'clock, to be exact) of the curtain call are being planned by the many hostesses who are entertaining groups of friends and will take place at home, club or at a favorite cafe, thus adding to the festiveness of the occasion, and, of course, there is an undercurrent of enthusiasm and expectancy which always is prevalent at this time.

I am sure that the famous Diamond Horseshoe of New York's Metropolitan will be duplicated in the loges at our own Shrine Auditorium, where jewels will sparkle and exquisite costumes vie with magnificent furs in the costuming of society of the Southland.

Lovely Affair

Honoring Dr. Marcia A. Patrick and Mrs. Fred Potts, who recently returned from a delightful tour of the Orient, Mrs. William S. James of Shatto Place entertained Saturday afternoon with a luncheon and bridge at Sherwood Lake Country Club, bridge following in the spacious lounge.

The long table was centered with a plaque of early autumn flowers in the pastel shades, and unusual place cards which were used for tally scores at the bridge games afterward marked the covers for the hostess, honor guests and Dr. Blanche Brown, Mrs. Benjamin F. Porter, Miss Ada Potts, Miss Frances Martin, Mrs. F. Carl Lewis, Mrs. George Mesick, Mrs. Alexander Haynes Levy, Mrs. J. M. Cooper and Miss Dorothy Hurlbut, niece of the hostess, who assisted her.

Home Again

Mrs. Harry Eugene Andrews and her attractive daughter, Miss Harriet Andrews, have returned to their home in Virgil avenue after an extended tour abroad, where they visited all the various points of interest on the continent and passed quite a time in Paris.

For Bride-Elect

One of the lovely affairs given in honor of a popular bride-elect will be the luncheon and miscellaneous shower with which Miss Helen Balzer is entertaining this afternoon at her home, 540 South St. Andrews Place, honoring Miss Marjorie Hamilton, bride-elect of James Long Wright, Jr.

A Dresden motif will be carried out artistically in all the appointments of the table with caldelabra and pastel shades of flowers and tapers, and bridge will follow.

Those included will be Miss Balzer, Miss Hamilton, Miss Betty Grayton, Miss Doris Farrow, Miss June Comstock, Miss Dorothy Smith, Mrs. Edward Badham, Miss Maurine Honey, Miss Marjorie Kendall, Miss Margaret Lavering, Mrs. Gilbert Blackmore and Miss Charlotte Dabney.

Another lovely affair honoring Miss Hamilton was the dinner party given Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. James Long Wright, parents of her fiance, at their home, 601 North Linden Drive, Beverly Hills. The wedding is to be an event of Friday.

Their guests included Misses Marjorie Hamilton, Betty Grayton, Doris Farrow, Maurine Honey, Dorothie Smith, Marjorie Kendall, Grace Davis and Gail Herr Wright; Mrs. E. Howard McCaleb, Jr., of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hamilton, Dr. and Mrs. Warren Sheley, James Long Wright, Jr., Robert Cole, John Wilkins, Frank Fussel, James Learmont, Charles Goldthwaite, Jack Gage and Jack Stone.

Sorority Luncheon

Members of Tau Lambda Gamma Sorority of Woodbury College, enjoyed a delicious three course luncheon at the Windsor Tea Rooms in the Brack Shops, Thursday noon, September 26, in honor of Mrs. Charles Hunter, formerly Miss Frances Beard, a prominent member of the local chapter.

Dainty favors and place cards carried out the bridal motif. Flowers and candles in pastel shades suggested romance.

The bride was presented the customary gift by Miss Jane Layton, president of Tau Lambda Gamma.

Among the guests were the pledges and rushees, Misses Romona Wall, Margaret Ward, Marie Seybold, Beverly Blake, Gertrude Simpson, Doris Nicely, Irene Hillyer, Doris Rear, Dorothy Rockwood and Grace Witter.

The active members attending were Misses Jane Layton, Lucile Ingersol, Josephine Kelly, Irene Bly, Aileen Perriguey, Marianne Howell, Elaine Beach, Alexandria Rolland, Virginia Dunann, Ruth Bumpas and the guest of honor, Mrs. Hunter.

Johnson-Rugg

Miss Margaret Johnson and Kenneth Weatherly Rugg were married at Central Baptist Church Friday evening, and departed yesterday for Lake Arrowhead on their honeymoon. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Johnson of 1819 Cloverdale avenue. Rev. Clyde Matthews officiated at the church ceremony. The matron of honor was Mrs. H. T. Roche, and the best man was Earl Rugg, brother of the bridegroom.

Several Affairs

Misses Nome Strecker and Ada Christiansen, members of Kappa Beta Gamma, entertained their sorority sisters with a dinner and bridge at the Elk's Temple Wednesday night. Those present were Misses Marjorie Basset, Mildred Opperman, Margaret Steinmetz, Mildred Kahley, Clara Bremmer, Lillian Given, Willamene Dolley, Adele Heissenbuttel, Esther Lyngby, Irene Voight, Gladys Russell, and the hostesses.

Included were Mildred Opperman, Margaret Steinmetz, Irene Voigt, Gladys Russell, Nome Strecker, Adele Heissenbuttel, Ada Christiansen, Esther Lyngby, Marjorie Bassett, and the hostesses, all members, and Gertrude Forrester, Bernice Forrester, Jessie Gustavson and Marie Gustavson, nonmembers. Jessie Gustavson played high and Marie Gustavson second.

Kappa Beta Gamma will open its rush season with a bridge at the Arcady, Wednesday, the 16th inst. Several attractive events have been planned to follow, the last of which is to be the annual birthday party late in November, honoring the new pledges.

Slumber Party

A slumber party at the home of Miss Alice Smith, 1039 South Bonnie Brae avenue, Saturday, September 21, marked the first rush affair of the season for the Tri Zeta Sorority. Dancing and bridge were enjoyed during the evening and a delightful breakfast was served Sunday morning.

Among those present were: Louise Hill, Patsy Seyfriedt, Helen Kemper, Lee Frederick, Margaret Maxey, Madge Grantham, Varel Shebel, Mrs. Mary Price, Alice Smith, Jeanne Burke, Gerry Vogel, Helen Oliver, Genevieve Heaton, Katherine Golden, Phyllis Barabe and Mrs. Johnny Ford.

Bride and Husband Attended U.S.C.

[Boye Studios]

Mrs. David Goode

MISS MILDRED CATHERINE BROWN, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. Ralph Brown of South Ardmore avenue, became the bride of David Goode of Denver September 14. As Mr. Goode was unable to come to Los Angeles Dr. and Mrs. Brown and their daughter went to Denver for the wedding, which was most informal.

Mr. and Mrs. Goode were students at the University of Southern California, where they met, the bride being a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority and Mr. Goode affiliated with Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity.

Girl Disappears, Suicide Feared

Search for Miss Mary Pearman of 5908 1-2 South Central avenue was ordered yesterday by Capt. Bright, chief of Sheriff Traeger's homicide investigation detail, when it was reported that the girl had disappeared leaving several notes to a girl friend indicating she intended to commit suicide.

The disappearance was reported by Miss Irene Huntley, the girl's room-mate, who turned the notes over to Deputy Sheriffs Wilson and McQuaig for investigation.

MRS. MOORE'S BALM SUIT SET FOR TODAY

The $250,000 heart balm suit of Mrs. Monnie Moore against Mrs. Ruth Moon Bradner yesterday was postponed until today because there was no court available for the trial. Mrs. Moore charges that Mrs. Bradner captured the affections of her husband, Marshall L. Moore, detective on the Santa Monica police force.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

by THORTON W. BURGESS

PETER FINDS QUEER NEIGHBOR

Often when the truth is clear,
Things are not what they appear.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was over in the Green Forest. He hadn't anything particular to do. For that matter, Peter seldom has anything to do. Just now he was of two minds. He was trying to decide whether he would stay where he was, or whether he would go over and visit the pond of Paddy the Beaver.

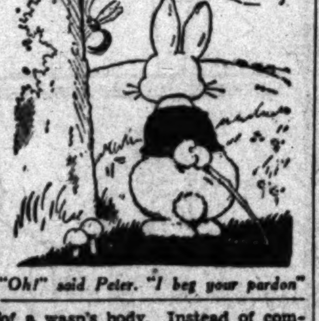
"There's nothing of interest here," said Peter, talking to himself. "This whole morning long I haven't seen a thing worth looking at. I believe I'll go over and see what is doing at Paddy's pond. I wish it wasn't so far. I feel lazy. If there were only something interesting right here, it would be different."

Peter was sitting at the foot of a big elm tree. It was just at that instant that something passed close to one of Peter's long ears so that Peter dodged. He was sure it was a big wasp. When he turned to look, he was more sure of it. The big insect had alighted on the trunk of the tree. It had a long, slender body like a wasp, and gauzy wings like a wasp. Peter merely glanced at it carelessly and moved off a step or two respectfully. Peter has a great deal of respect for wasps, or hornets, as they are sometimes called. He knows all about the sharp little lance that a wasp carries in the end of his body. He has been stung, and one who has been stung once never wants to be stung the second time.

Suddenly Peter sat bolt upright and his big eyes opened very wide indeed. "My gracious, what a sting! What a sting!" he exclaimed. You see, from the tip of the body of this new neighbor of his extended a very long, thread-like part, which Peter was sure was a sting. He leaned forward a little and then discovered that there were three of these instead of one. They were longer than the body of the owner.

"My gracious!" exclaimed Peter again. "My gracious! I don't want to be stung with that!"

The stranger turned so that Peter saw that the end of the body was quite different from the end of a wasp's body. Instead of coming down to a smooth point, it was queerly thickened at the tip. He began to realize that this was a different wasp from any he had ever met.



"Oh!" said Peter. "I beg your pardon"

"You are one, aren't you?" said Peter aloud.

The stranger turned and looked Peter over. "Were you speaking to me?" she inquired.

"I suppose I was," said Peter. "You are a wasp, aren't you?"

"I am not," said the stranger most decidedly. "I am not a member of the wasp family; and furthermore, I don't want to be. I'd have you know that I belong to the fly family."

"Oh!" said Peter. "I beg your pardon. You don't look like a fly; you look like a wasp. I didn't know that flies had such stings. If you don't mind my saying so, you have the longest sting I ever saw."

"What are you talking about?" demanded the stranger. "I haven't any sting."

"It looks to me as if you had three of them," said Peter.

"Those are not stings," replied the stranger.

"What are they, then;" demanded Peter.

"You'll see presently," replied the stranger. "You'll see presently if I have any kind of luck. Sit right where you are and I'll show you something worth watching."

YOUNG WOMEN NEGLECT CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

Not in any great numbers are young women of Los Angeles following the precedent set by their mothers who a generation ago joined women's clubs as a matter of course. A new era has dawned for young women out of college who often do not care for society or for clubs. Evidence of this comes casually in lining up incoming news as to what women are doing today and tomorrow in Los Angeles.

"Anne Beaudry," of one of the first families of Los Angeles, and Jean Murphy, a society girl of San Francisco, are appearing tomorrow night and several night thereafter in leading feminine roles in "The Affairs of Anatol" at the Marta Oatman School of the Theater. Dwight Edward Satterlee, who enacts the role of Anatol, is, by the way, also a member of a well-known family here, his grandfather of the same name being an author.

ADMITTED TO BAR

Miss Miriam Olden of 1007 North Normandie avenue, only 21 years of age, recently was admitted to the bar, having completed her law course at the University of Southern California. She is a member of Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debating society.

JEAN MURPHY

Gretchen Hensel Copper, a writer and interpreter of drama, will open the season for the Friday Morning Club this week in a program entitled "Dramatic Miniatures of Medieval Romance." Now in private life Mrs. Copper is a mother, a housewife and wife of a busy man of affairs. Now that her children are out of their babyhood Mrs. Copper finds expression not in the regular club life of women but in appearing before them for their pleasure. She has written, costumed and interpreted this program of medieval romance. Always a skillful research worker, she has disentangled a sharply defined drama from masses of material and has made of it a beautiful entity. It is Mrs. Copper's second appearance before the large program club and the members know what excellence to expect.

GRETCHEN HENSEL COPPER

SOME ARE BANKERS

Youthful Miss Bertha P. Singer is a banker, manager of the new women's department in the First National Bank of Portland.

Miss Grace Stoermer of this city, as western regional vice-president of the national association, leads the large delegation of women bankers now convening in San Francisco. Miss Snager is a prominent delegate.

MIRIAM OLDEN

A list of those newly enrolled at the Hollywood Studio Club indicate that many other young women eligible to high positions in society are seeking other activities. Among them are Miss Mary Cole of New York City, and Beatrice Sklar of Chicago; Lucille and Dolores Conrad of Denver. Lucille is a dancer, a pupil of Kosloff. Rosalind Harrison of Chicago is a scenario writer and other ambitious ones are Gloria Gaylord of New York, Lorna Whittingham of Santa Barbara, Ruth Water of Laguna Beach and Ernestine Mahoney.

BERTHA P. SINGER

In altogether another direction are two other young women turning their attention and thought. Miss Helen Alexander 1556 North Fairfax avenue, left last week for Manhattanville, N. Y., to enter the Sacred Heart Convent with plans to become a religieuse.

EXTENSIVE EDUCATION

Following her graduation at the Menlo Park Sacred Heart Academy, Miss Alexander went to Berkeley, where she was graduated and where she was a member of the French honor society and belonged to Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. She studied for a doctorate in philosophy at the Sorbonne, Paris. Beautiful as well as cultured, Miss Alexander comes from one of the old families here. Her late father was F. F. Alexander and her uncle was R. C. Clowy, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Frances E. Willard was a cousin of her mother, Mrs. Anna C. Alexander, who still keeps up the home on Fairfax avenue.

Miss Alexander was joined by Miss Constance Welch, also of a prominent family, who was a classmate of Miss Alexander at Berkeley. Neither knew until they met at Manhattanville that the other was considering life in the convent.

Today In Club Circles

Anna Steese Richardson in her article in the current number of Harper's Magazine entitled "Are Women's Clubs Dying?" cites sport as a strong rival to the women's club movement. Along comes the Wilshire Woman's Club, the first typical club of women to add a golf section to their many activities. Instruction in golf and tournaments among members will be featured. Today the first meeting of the club for the season will be held at 10:30 a.m. at 1419 South Wilton Place. The program will include a group of songs by Floretta Burdick; readings by Marion Montelone and an address on Mexico by Will Hays.

Bob Wagner will be the chief speaker today at the first meeting of the Southern California Women's Press Club at 2 p.m. at the Friday Morning Club. Mrs. Allison Gaw is president and Miss Katherine Lipke as vice-president is chairman of the day.

CLUB BREAKFAST

Highland Park Ebell opens the fall season with a breakfast in the clubhouse, 131 South Avenue 57. Mrs. Dan Hammack will serve as toastmistress.

A drama conference for the Los Angeles district, Federation of Women's Clubs, will be conducted at district headquarters, 2103 South Hobart Boulevard, by Mrs. George Frederick Allen. Mrs. H. H. Wood and Mrs. Randolph Carter are the speakers.

The Woman's Lyric Club begins its twenty-sixth consecutive season today with rehearsals. Mrs. Leslie L. Merrick is president, J. B. Paulin, director, and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson accompanist.

Soroptimists meet in the music room of the Biltmore at noon. Christine Strang presents Miss Margaret Hannah, who will depict the history of soap making in talk-and-motion pictures entitled "From Sand to Suds." Dr. Lillian Grandmason is president.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

CREAM OF SPINACH SOUP

Three tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of grated onion, a seasoning of salt and white pepper, three-quarters of a cupful of cooked spinach, three cupfuls of scalded milk, melt the butter, add the grated onion, and allow to cook for five minutes, add the flour, which has been mixed with a fourth of a cupful of cold milk, add the scalded milk, the pureed spinach and allow to cook in a double boiler for twenty minutes. Serve with croutons.

HUNGARIAN BEEF LOAF

Put through the fine knife of the meat grinder half a pound of lean beef and mix with a half a pound of sausage, add half a pound of lean boiled ham, chopped fine, and an equal amount of bread crumbs, add one chopped clove of garlic, three tablespoonfuls of grated onion, one finely chopped green pepper, and a seasoning of salt and paprika. Beat the yolk of one egg with four tablespoonfuls of milk, mix all together, and add the stiffly beaten white of the egg, place in a well-buttered baking dish, cover tight and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and one-half. Uncover the dish and allow to brown.

As soon as well browned, remove to a hot plate and serve at once.

DEEP ORANGE AND APPLE PIE

Four large apples, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped orange peel, one cupful of sugar, peel the apples and cut in thin slices, lengthwise, mix with the remaining ingredients, butter a baking dish, and fill with the mixture, dot with bits of butter, cover with a rich biscuit dough, place in a hot oven for the first ten minutes, then reduce to a medium oven and finish baking.

Mrs. Wyman does not reply to letters, but requests for recipes are answered in the department, PRACTICAL RECIPES, published every Friday.—(All rights to reproduce reserved by A. L. Wyman.)

Your Baby and Mine

by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

SMALL CHILDREN NEARLY SAME AGE NOT GOOD COMPANIONS

Mrs. B. S. writes: "I am a reader of your column and wonder if you can help me? My two girls are 3 and 5 years of age and they are almost continually fighting over the least trifles. I cannot seem to stop them. This is so wearing on me and my in-laws are always remarking about it.

"I am not very well and haven't much patience with the children, especially when this goes on every day. Please don't laugh, I am too discouraged for words. The children's bringing up seems too much for me."

Answer: Of course, I won't laugh. This condition isn't as serious as you are taking it and needs just better health, more patience and a better understanding of what should be expected of children. Right now you feel badly and their noise grates on you, making you in turn a scold, perhaps, and unable to handle the situation as wisely as you might if you didn't feel so irritable.

Children of this age practically always disagree. One child is still entirely self-centered (the younger,) and the older one is growing out of that. Most mothers show favoritism in these circumstances, taking the part of the child who makes herself the least nuisance and telling the other child how hard she makes her life and how unhappy the mother is over her, and what a naughty little girl she is. Under those circumstances, the child just gives up the struggle to be good and decides she is all that is said of her.

Two children in a household must have the same toys, however simple they are. This takes away one frequent cause for argument. The larger and more expensive toys have to be divided fairly in this manner. If the older starts to play with the wagon or doll buggy, it belongs to her until she is ready to give it up. She must play with it though, and with nothing else. When she is through the other may have it as long as she pleases. If this rule is enforced fairly, the children will begin to find out for themselves that while they are playing with the wagon they can't have anything else and they'll learn to trade and make bargains with each other. If a toy is snatched away or the child makes a fuss about not being able to play with it, the one who is at fault will have to go in some other room and stay there until she is able to play good-naturedly again. One can't deviate once rules are made and understood. Then the children will give in to them without argument.

Let the older one help you. Children of this age love it, and then there will be fewer chances for argument. Children of two such divergent mental ages as this, find it hard to be agreeable, while a year or two will make a great difference in their ability to play together.

Household Suggestions

A Little Lemon

After using lemons, don't forget to wipe your hands with the skins. They will remove all stains from vegetable paring and soften and whiten your skin.

That's What Makes You Mad

When painting overhead or up high, it is most annoying to have the paint drip down the handle of the brush. This can be eliminated by cutting a soft rubber ball in half and in one half cut a hole through the center large enough for the handle to slide through. Then you have a cup to catch the errant paint before it can run down the brush handle.

Just Facts

Dip the knife in boiling water before cutting through soap.

Always brush a hat, dress, or coat the direction in which the nap runs.

You will find percolated coffee more digestible than the boiled variety.

Oyster dishes and fish platters need garnishing to make them appear more appetizing.

Should the planked steak catch on fire on the plank, throw a little salt on it and you will quickly put it out.

Seek Witness in Divorce Hearing of Lewis Stone

Process servers are seeking to serve a subpoena on a prominent motion-picture actress whom Lewis Stone wants for a witness in his divorce case against his wife, Florence Oakley Stone. Because the subpoena has not been served the divorce case yesterday was continued one week by Superior Judge Sproul.

The identity of the witness is not disclosed, Stone's attorneys having obtained a Jane Doe citation for her.

Stone's action, filed last July, has not been answered by Miss Oakley, who defaulted. The actor charges his wife "lacked consideration for his feelings and sensibilities," was uncongenial in his presence and subject to temperamental fits of anger.

Arrangements are being made for free open-air dancing for everyone throughout the afternoon and evening with music furnished by several orchestras. More than 100 Catholic parishes and nearly fifty organizations will participate.

These will be special courtesies, as some of the recipes have been repeated several times. She will go over them again to please various members of the classes. Mrs. Wyman will make Cheshire pork pie, orange pie, cheese cake, baked egg plant and mayonnaise dressing, the latter four being the requests.

Electric Group in Merger With National Chain

F. J. AIREY

The merging of the Pacific States Electric Company, the largest distributors of electrical supplies on the Pacific Coast, with the General Electric Supply Corporation of Delaware was announced yesterday by F. J. Airey, Los Angeles division manager of the Pacific Electric Company.

"This consolidation," said Mr. Airey, "does not mean any change of ownership but brings into one national group fourteen wholesale distributing corporations owned by the General Electric Company, which companies have for many years distributed General Electric products."

The officers of the new corporation are Gerard Swope, chairman of the board; C. E. Patterson, president; J. L. Buchanan, executive vice-president; J. G. Johannesen, vice-president eastern region; D. E. Harris, vice-president western region.

D. E. Harris, who was formerly president of the Pacific States Electric Company, will occupy the position of vice-president and director of the new corporation. H. R. Noack will serve as commercial vice-president and S. B. Anderson will be assistant treasurer, all with headquarters in San Francisco.

Husband Before Court in Fatal Beating of Wife

Accused of assault with a deadly weapon and with murder as a result of the death of his wife, Mrs. Vivian Cordell, from an asserted beating administered by him, Fred Cordell of 4943 Clara street, Cudahy, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Lahey yesterday and his preliminary hearing set for Friday. He was ordered held without bail pending the hearing.

The beating, according to Deputy Sheriffs Burns and McCord, occurred following a family quarrel when Mrs. Cordell started to pack her belongings preparatory to leaving home on September 8, last. Cordell is asserted to have beaten her on the head with a hammer, afterward attempting to kill himself by slashing his throat with a butcher knife.

LASKY TO PRODUCE SUPER REVUE

Glenn Tryon Will Take Role of Actor for Universal; Chaplin Plays Tennis With Many Noted Amateurs; Napoleon Specialist Appears With Novarro

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

ELSIE JANIS

It looks as though the trammels and limitations of both stage and screen are being gradually broken down with the influx of sound and color pictures, with the result that what might almost be called a new art form is coming to the screen. M.-G.-M.'s "Hollywood Revue" pointed the way.

And now, voicing enthusiasm he has seldom before shown for an individual production for Paramount, Jesse L. Lasky, who has just returned to New York from Hollywood, has announced the fact that he is preparing to complete additional details of an ambitious cinephonic festival to be called "Paramount on Parade."

Did you notice that word "cinephonic"? Mr. Lasky declares that it is exactly the right word to properly describe this all-star song, dance, scenic and camera spectacle which he promises will mark a high spot in film entertainment. Natural color photography as well as sound will be used in the production.

"'Paramount on Parade' will not be a revue as that term is generally accepted," Mr. Lasky stated in a wire to the western studio. "The word is inadequate and too suggestive of the narrow limits of the stage to be used in connection with this sound, camera and color festival we have planned. We expect our picture to mark a celebration of the freedom from the restrictions of the stage and from the restrictions of the silent screen."

Naturally after such an announcement one feels curious as to who will take part in the production, and we find that not only the stage stars under contract to Paramount, but many of the film stars will appear.

Indeed, other productions will be held up in order to concentrate on this gigantic one.

The versatile Elsie Janis is giving her entire time to writing for the production, aided by other noted Paramount writers. B. P. Schulberg and Albert A. Kaufman are likewise concentrating their efforts toward making the picture the greatest success ever to come from the Paramount studios.

The "Paramount on Parade" cast will boast such names as Maurice Chevalier, Clara Bow, Ruth Chatterton, Dennis King, Harry Green, James Hall, O. P. Heggie, Helen Kane, the Four Marx Brothers, Moran and Mack, Jack Oakie, William Powell, Hal Skelly, Lillian Roth, Fay Wray, Richard Arlen, Jean Arthur, William Austin, Mary Brian, Nancy Carroll, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Regis Toomey, George Bancroft, Gary Cooper, Kay Frances, Neil Hamilton, Doris Hill, Phillips Holmes, Jeannette MacDonald, Frederic March, Warner Oland, Eugene Pallette and others.

In addition, Mitzi, favorite star of musical comedy, first becoming famous in "The Spring Maid," and afterward appearing in "Sari," "The Magic Ring" and many other musicals, most of which were written by the brilliant Zelda Sears, will take part, while it is likely that still other Broadway stage stars will contribute to the success of the production.

Humphreys Plays Napoleon

William Humphrey, the most noted of all the hundreds of actors who have portrayed the role of Napoleon Bonaparte on stage and screen, has been chosen by Director Sidney Franklin to depict the famous Corsican lieutenant in "Devil May Care," a Ramon Novarro starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The actor has been a Napoleon specialist, as you might say, for over thirty years. He has played the part approximately 5000 times. On the stage he appeared in "More Than Queen" with Julia Arthur in "Mademoiselle Mars" with Lily Langtry and in "Madame Sans Gene" with Lillian Lawrence. He has taken the part of Napoleon in pictures many times, his entrance, indeed, being made in a three-reel pictures, "Napoleon," starred by J. Stuart Blackton.

Charlie Chaplin's Day Off

Charlie Chaplin, the world's greatest comedian, took a day off from the gruelling exactions of art yesterday to play tennis. That he was beaten is perhaps a tribute to his gallantry, for Charlie is a good player, and in any event, as he was playing against some of the world's greatest amateurs, he need not be ashamed of his score.

The comedian entertained the players at lunch at his Beverly Hills home, after which the games were played at his private tennis courts.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

Distinguished names of the tennis and social worlds graced his guest list, including Tamio Abe of the Davis Japanese Cup team; Mrs. B. C. Covell, captain of the Wightman Cup team; Edith Cross, third ranking American woman player; John Van Ryn of the United States Davis Cup team; Betty Nuthall, Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, Mrs. Phoebe Watson, Bunny Austin, Midge Gladman, B. C. Covell, Mr. Brennon and others.

Three or four sets were played. Mr. Brennon and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron competed against Chaplin and Miss Nuthall, with the former winning.

GLENN TRYON TO BE FITTED TO STORIES

Some excellent stories are being arranged at Universal for Glenn Tryon, star of "Broadway."

GLENN TRYON

Two stories just announced, to follow "On the Make," the title of which, by the way, is to be changed, are a pair of yarns that promise to give Glenn excellent opportunity for his varied talents.

"Anything Goes" is the title of one, and "Times Square Kid" is the other.

"Times Square Kid" is the tale of a down-and-out actor in New York. Tryon will be supported in this, according to present plans, by Merna Kennedy.

JUDGMENT FOR NOTE GRANTED IN FILM CASE

Award of a judgment for $5649.43, the amount sought, was granted the Motion Picture Capital Corporation against Harry Garson, film director, when the case went before United States District Judge James yesterday. The amount was asserted to be a balance due on a note signed by Garson as secretary of the Thomas Productions, Inc.

CANADIANS TO DANCE

Waltzing for the 1929 championship of the Canadian Society, forty couples from all parts of the British Empire will compete tomorrow night in the Hollywood Roof Ballroom, 1549 Vine street. Three prominent ex-Canadians, now Los Angeles business men, will be judges. Larry Walden's Town Club Band will provide music. Col. A. G. Fonseca, formerly of Winnipeg, president of the club, will act as master of ceremonies.

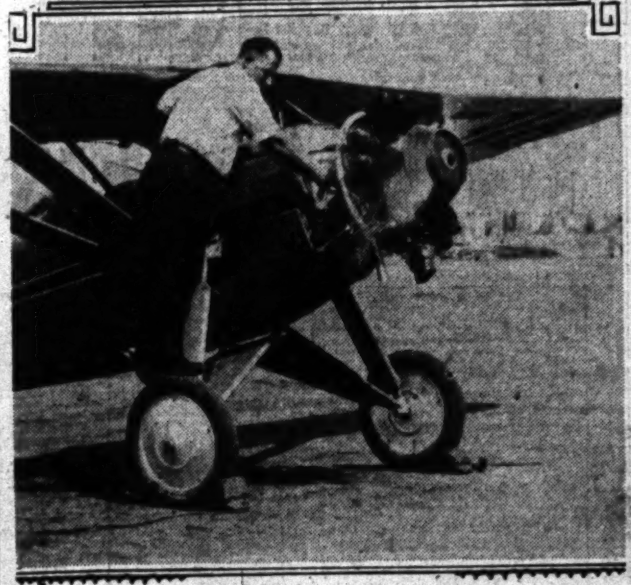
This Ought to Prove Ship's Mettle



Walter A. Hamilton Tuning 'er up

YOU might know it would be the biggest man who would fly the smallest plane, so when the Aero Corporation of California brought a tiny Davis monoplane to the local airport, it was a foregone conclusion that Walter A. Hamilton, who weighs 285 pounds, would be the one to try it out.

When the massive Mr. Hamilton walks over to the little ship, spectators expect to see him tuck it under his arm and walk away with it. And when he seizes the propeller to turn over the engine, the process is remindful of the rancher's method of dispatching chickens.

MILLIKAN LAUDS PROGRESS

Scientist Tells of World's Advance and Reveals Caltech Building Plans to Freshmen

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 30.—"Everyone now living is farther away from his grandfather than that grandfather was from King Tut-Ankh-Amen," asserted Dr. Robert A. Millikan today in telling the capacity class of 160 California Institute of Technology freshmen of their opportunities.

In the course of his welcoming address at the first student assembly of the year at Culbertson Hall, the chairman of the institute's executive council, revealed that three or four projected $200,000 dormitories have been financed, but that due to an arrangement with the donors, construction cannot start until the fourth student home has been financed. This, however, Dr. Millikan believes, will be accomplished within a few months or sooner.

CITES OPPORTUNITY

"At this first assembly," said Dr. Millikan, "I wish to invite the attention of all those who have anything whatever to do with the building of this graduate research and educational center to the extraordinary opportunity which is before it at this moment."

"We are extraordinarily placed, both in time and space for making our outstanding contribution to the future. No generation which has ever lived has ever seen anything like the rapidity of change which has been taking place during the past seventy-five years.

"There is no doubt whatever but that any one of us now living is farther away from his grandfather than that grandfather was from Tut-Ankh-Amen. This is true not only of the external conditions under which we live our lives, which have been changed by the discovery of the power machine, but also of the way we think.

TAKES STEEP ANGLE

"In all his beliefs, in his superstitions, in his prejudices, in his world outlook, your grandfather was nearer Tut-Ankh-Amen than he is to you. In many of these respects, history, from Tut-Ankh-Amen's time, moved along more or less on a level, or at least with a gradually increasing slope upward, but during the last seventy-five years it has sloped upward at a steep angle, and a particular cause of that upward movement has already produced its effect, so that the rate of change for further accessions probably cannot be maintained.

"In other words, in many particulars, the curve of history moves along like a level plane and then rises to a new plateau. We are now at the brow of that plateau and are laying the foundations of an institution which can be adapted to the conditions of life which exist at this particular point in time and space.

"Most of the other institutions have built their traditions on the conditions existing in the past and adapted to the past better than to the present. They are going to change, but they will do it slowly, impeded by the inertia that goes with those traditions.

"We here have the opportunity which comes not once in a century to any group of men to build an institution which is adapted to the conditions of life and thought which exist in September, 1929."

TALKS ON BUILDING

Dr. Millikan asserted American educational institutions have not solved the problem of undergraduate student life so successfully as have the British institutions, but that through enabling 300 men to live together, the proposed four $200,000 dormitories will place the institute in a position to do so.

Other construction which is expected to be started on the institute campus this year includes three great buildings to be erected in connection with the proposed 200-inch telescope, and a building group to be erected at the southwest corner of the campus which will house the earth science departments, including those of geology and paleontology.

In speaking of the need for the financing of an additional dormitory, Dr. Millikan said, "I hope very much that some one who, in one way or another, hears my voice now or hears of this need through this address, may appear to supply this keystone in the architectural development of extraordinary proportions which I think I may promise you will take place here during the next two years."

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

The somewhat staggering spectacle of Miss Dorothy Mackaill walking home from an auto ride will be exposed to your view if you go this week to Warner Brothers' Theater in Hollywood. Miss Mackaill, who always sort of struck you as the capable kind, chose to take no further chances with Edmund Burns, a young man about town, even though Jack Oakie, her brother, had taught her how to use a good right hook. Better the open road than dishonor; and so it was with this difficult-to-acquire lady heroine of "Hard to Get," a First National Vitaphone picture.

"Classified," by Edna Ferber, the story upon which the nocturnal promenade is based, has served the movie makers in good stead before, and probably will again. Corinne Griffith appeared in an almost identical version, but a better one, not so many years ago. The trouble with the present effort is that it might have been so much more deft and memorable and close to you and to me than it actually is. And still I commend it to your not overtaxed attention as a fair piece of Americana, amusing, and trailing—at a discreet and oblivious distance—the facts of life in a big city.

Whether this Miss Mackaill is a wise choice for the role of Bobbie Martin is open for debate. An intensely practical young person, she brings the right earthy touch to the matter of modeling gowns and keeping a large and overburdened family in its place; and as such, she gains in the talking medium, which is at its best when it concerns itself with practical and earthy things. At the same time, one is conscious that it will not be necessary to do any worrying about her; she will take care of herself. Remember that right hook, and thank you kindly.

Remembering it, one cannot take a too complacent attitude toward the righteous morality which Miss Mackaill invokes in her behalf when confronted by an irate and still overburdened family, which demands to know where she has been, and why, and how come. (This is after the walk home.) Her astonishing reluctance to talk frankly, her pleading "You don't think . . . ?" as she moves from one to another of her kin, is as hypocritical, in a sense, as the assembled kin's sudden solicitude for the welfare of a grown daughter and sister with a good right hook. And as unconvincing as the proposal of marriage from the chastened and conscious-stricken young man about town, who enters about here.

Jack Oakie, to employ an outworn phrase, lives the part of the brother. It is true that from his facile lips fall those lines best calculated to stir the risibilities of an audience, but it is also true that many which are trite and undeserving gain humorous potency through contact with those same lips. The aforementioned Mr. Burns, despite the fact that he appears almost constantly in need of a shave—or, maybe because of it—characterizes the man about town with considerable accuracy, and Charles Delaney is guileless and winning as the, shall I say, hero.

James Finlayson and Louise Fazenda caricature their portraits of the girl's father and mother. It is a persistent quality of the picture, anyway, that too much of the action is stressed pantomimically—as it would be in a silent film, and out of proportion to the content of the dialogue.

Gala Premiere Scheduled for Jolson Picture

AL JOLSON.

The picture, his latest Warner Brothers Vitaphone offering, "Say It With Songs," is to be ushered in with a gala premiere and Jolson will officiate in white face as interlocutor, master of ceremonies and general factotum at the evening's festivities.

"Say It With Songs" is the story of a radio singer who is separated from his wife and child and the role affords to Jolson an opportunity to put over several song hits in his own inimitable way. The story is by Darryl Francis Zanuck and Harvey Gates and was directed by Lloyd Bacon. In the supporting cast are Marian Nixon, Holmes Herbert, Kenneth Thompson and Fred Kohler.

"Say It With Songs" is said to be a worthy successor to "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," famous vehicles for Jolson.

Russell Hopton Cast as Barber

Russell Hopton, the clever young juvenile actor, who recently scored as Rags, in "Night Hostess," at the Belasco, will be seen as a high-brown barber when "Lulu Belle" begins its limited engagement at the Belasco Theater Monday evening.

Hopton recently has made quite a name for himself in motion pictures, but was engaged for his role in "Lulu Belle" immediately after the closing of "Night Hostess."

BODIL ROSING ON STAGE

Bodil Rosing, noted character actress, is rehearsing for an important part in "What a Woman Wants," starring Marjorie Rambeau. This production is tentatively scheduled to open on the 16th inst., at the Vine Street Theater.

Backstage Life Revealed

Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll

Who appear as "Skid" and wife in "Dance of Life," a Paramount production taken from the stage hit, "Burlesque," starting tonight at the United Artists Theater.

UNDERWORLD FILM BOOKED

"The Girl From Havana," William Fox all-talking picture featuring the same players who appeared in "Speakeasy," will start at the Boulevard Theater Thursday.

Lola Lane, Paul Page and Warren Hymer, the trio that secured long-term contracts by their work in "Speakeasy," are the principal players of "The Girl From Havana." Others in the cast are Kenneth Thompson, Natalie Moorhead and Joseph Girard.

"The Girl From Havana" was photographed in Los Angeles, San Francisco, the Canal Zone, on board a liner through the Panama Canal, Balboa and in the city of Havana. Every scene depicting some particular spot was actually filmed at that place, it is said.

The story is packed with thrills, according to advance reports. The theme deals with a gang of international thieves who make a big haul in a daylight robbery. On the stage Jack Stanley has planned a fast offering in "Rhythm Revue" with his band and girls.

PARAMOUNT TO SCREEN TWO CROWS

"Why Bring That Up?" to Provide Further Antics of Popular Team

The Paramount Theater announces that starting Thursday the feature attraction will bring the internationally noted two Black Crows to the audible screen in their first talking picture, appropriately titled "Why Bring That Up?" In this latest Paramount production Moran and Mack are supported by a fine cast featuring Evelyn Brent and Harry Green.

"Why Bring That Up" was especially written for Moran and Mack by Octavus Roy Cohen, popular author. The story gives Moran and Mack ample opportunity to carry on their lines of "tired" humor and to play the leading roles in a stirring story said to be based on their early experiences in the theater.

Evelyn Brent gives a fine performance, it is said, as the girl who plays the good-natured Moran for a "sucker," and Harry Green, who was cast as the theater manager in "Close Harmony," is funny as the distracted manager.

PLEASING PROGRAM OF DANCES GIVEN

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Doris Niles directed a dance presentation at the Figueroa Playhouse Sunday evening which attracted a large audience. Miss Niles is a California dancer who has achieved a reputation both in the United States and in Europe and during the past few months she has perfected a dance trio and many new choreographies which she offered. Mr. Raymond McFeeters was an assisting soloist and played the accompaniments for the dance with his usual sensitiveness and understanding.

The dancing included several different styles from the expected Spanish Flamenco which has become identified with Miss Niles. Extreme darkness and long waits interfered with complete enjoyment. A Scriabine prelude done in the Ito manner attracted especial attention for its simplicity and forthright gesture, and the Spanish numbers done with abandon and passion closed the evening's entertainment. The costuming was gorgeous in design and color and the Niles Trio, consisting of June Williams, Alexandre Stewart and Evelyn Crist, pupils of Miss Niles, struck a certain naive and unsophisticated note that was both interesting and promising for the future.

Mr. McFeeters palyed some of the moderns while seated in the wings with a huge shadow of himself thrown on the curtain. The effect was arresting and can be recommended for other pianists. One is conscious of the music rather than the player in this arrangement.

Chinese Changes Show Schedule

Effective immediately, the performances of "The Cock-Eyed World" at Grauman's Chinese Theater will commence promptly at 2:30 and 8:30, according to an announcement by Harold B. Franklin.

The matinees at Grauman's Chinese are fast becoming one of the popular institutions, it is said, replacing bridge parties, teas and other afternoon soirees for the fair sex. The romances, the touches of pathos combined with the thrills and beauty and the large cast of this William Fox-Raoul Walsh production is the reason for the universal appeal that this picture holds for women and girls in all walks of life.

SPORTS MIXED

"SPEEDWAY" NEXT FILM AT LOEW'S

William Haines Has Role as Racing Mechanic in Byron Morgan Story

William Haines has taken to the roaring race track with its thrills, upsets and sensations! His latest picture to open Thursday at Loew's State is "Speedway," from a story written around the annual racing classic at Indianapolis and climaxed by actual scenes of the big event, interspersed with cut-ins of thrilling episodes in which Haines participates.

The story is the creation of Byron Morgan, who compiled the thrilling automobile race stories in which Wallace Reid starred a few years ago.

Haines is cast as a carefree, ne'er-do-well racing mechanic who clowns and wise-cracks his way into the hearts of the race-track folk, including Anita Page, who has the romantic feminine role. Ernest Torrence is his friend and benefactor, a veteran driver who has tried for sixteen years to win a race and is making this his last big effort. The story climaxes with Haines turning hero and sacrificing his own big moment of glory for the happiness of his friend. Karl Dane and Polly Moran add more comedy, and John Miljan has the villain role.

Criterion Will Present Novel Ceremony Head

A decidedly unique master of ceremonies will preside at the Criterion Theater tomorrow night when "The Great Gabbo," James Cruze's first all-talking picture has its western premiere. The master of ceremonies, who will introduce stars and celebrities from the stage will be Otto, tiny ventriloquist's dummy, who is seen in the film in what might be termed one of the major roles.

Otto is ingeniously manipulated by means of concealed wires. In the picture it is through the mannekin that Von Stroheim as the Great Gabbo speaks his only kind words, and so forcefully is this dual personality of the central character brought out that Otto has a genuine personality in the story.

FITTS AND JURY IN THREAT SIFT

Bootleg Trial Coercion Attempts Asserted

Mayor Will Take Hand in Conference Today

Drastic action in the grand jury investigation into charges of asserted bootleg graft attributed to certain Los Angeles police officers is expected today as the result of a conference between members of the grand jury, Dist.-Atty. Fitts, Mayor Porter and members of the Police Commission to be held in the grand jury rooms at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

The conference was called by Fitts and Elwood DeGarmo, foreman of the grand jury, after receiving numerous reports from witnesses that attempts have been made by certain members of the police department to keep them from testifying against eight officers under indictment. The officers facing trial are charged with accepting bribes and extortion.

COMPLAIN OF THREATS

Since the indictment of Officers Miles H. Ledbetter, Walter E. (Bob) Evans, Thomas B. Washburn, Harry M. Hill, Oscar L. Peterson and Leonard P. Sale three weeks ago several of the State's most important witnesses have complained that they have been threatened and stated they feared to go into court and repeat the charges of bribery that they had made to the grand jury, according to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hammon, in charge of grand jury matters.

One witness stated, Hammon said, that a police captain came to him and announced that he, personally, would harm him if he appeared in court and testified against the defendants. Other witnesses stated that other officers came to them and declared that they would wreck their standing in the community by constant arrests if they testified unfavorably to the defendant policemen.

ORDERED TRANSFERRED

The situation was brought to a climax, according to the District Attorney, a week ago while detectives were investigating charges of graft among officers stationed in the Central-avenue district. The investigators met with so much opposition in their inquiry, it is charged, that an appeal was made to Mayor Porter, who immediately ordered the transfer of nine officers assigned to the Newton-street division back to Central station.

The following day M. B. Sheffield, negro officer, was taken from a train at San Bernardino while on his way to Kansas City. The grand jury was then called into session and returned an indictment charging Sheffield and A. T. McLanahan, another negro officer, with twelve counts of extortion and acceptance of bribes.

The inquiry today was precipitated a month ago following the arrest of Harry D. McDonald, asserted Whittier bootlegger, charged with conspiracy to violate the Wright Act. After his arrest McDonald declared that he had operated as a bootlegger in Los Angeles for five years with police protection, but that they had extorted money from him until he was bankrupt. He then gave a complete statement to the District Attorney and the grand jury, furnishing the names of witnesses asserted to have witnessed many of the pay-offs which resulted in the return of indictments against six of the officers mentioned.

HARRY McDONALD ON STAND AT TRIAL OF BRIBE CASE

Harry D. McDonald, reputed bootlegger, yesterday went on the witness stand in Superior Judge Emmett H. Wilson's court as the State's principal witness in the trial of Sergt. Thomas B. Washburn, indicted by the county grand jury on a charge of accepting a bribe of $600 from McDonald on October 15, 1926. The case is one of the first to grow out of a grand jury investigation of asserted graft on the part of a number of police officers.

According to McDonald he was operating liquor-making apparatus at a house on Woodlawn avenue when Washburn and another officer raided the place. He said he gave Washburn the $600 to refrain from arresting him on a Wright Act charge and that he also paid money to Washburn for "protection."

Mrs. Tillie Kruger, landlady of the house where McDonald operated, failed to make any identification of Washburn as the man to whom McDonald said he paid the $600, although it was reported the State had expected Mrs. Kruger to make such an identification. Mrs. Kruger's daughter, Dorothy, also failed to make the identification.

A jury of six men and six women was selected to hear the case. Two additional men were chosen to serve as alternate jurors. Judge Wilson ordered the jurors locked up nights during the trial in the custody of Bailiff Olds. Judge Wilson said he had taken this step to prevent any possible interference with the jury from outside sources.

The case is being prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty's Dennison and McKay, while Attorney Joseph Fainer is defending Washburn.

MINNESOTA CHIEF EXECUTIVE FLAYS FITTS

ST. PAUL, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Gov. Christianson of Minnesota made the following statement tonight in reply to charges by Dist.-Atty. Buron Fitts of Los Angeles:

"Fitts is trying deliberately to confuse the public by a misstatement of facts. The records of my extradition clerk, Miss Gertrude Thompson, show that the requisition in the Morris Miller case came to the office on May 23, 1929. I was absent from May 28 to June 7. Miss Thompson tells me that during my absence the California officer (Thomas O'Brien,) came to the office to have the date for a hearing set and that after conferring with the County Attorney, the attorney for the accused and the California officer, she fixed the date for the hearing for 9:30 a.m., June 8, to which all parties consented.

"The California officer might have had a hearing at an earlier date, if he had asked for the appointment of a referee to hear the testimony.

"Miss Thompson tells me that the California officer offered no objection to the date set and made no complaint.

"On the date set, June 8, 1929, at 9:30 a.m. a hearing was held in my office at which Mr. Antink identified Morrie Miller as Mr. Fitts says.

"When the State of California rested, Mr. Quinn (William J. Quinn, attorney for Miller,) stated that he was prepared to prove that the accused was not in the State of California at the time the crime was committed and asking a week's adjournment in order to secure the attendance of witnesses from New York. I granted the motion. I followed the law laid down in the decisions, which are quite clear on the point that before the Governor orders extradition he shall satisfy himself that the defendant is a fugitive from justice.

"When the defendant's attorney appeared at my office at 9:30 a.m., June 15, he stated that he had not been able to locate his client and was unable to proceed with the hearing. I gave him until 3 o'clock that afternoon to produce Morrie Miller, stating that if he did not do so an extradition warrant would be issued forthwith. Miller was not located. When Mr. Fitts speaks of the second and the third adjournment he makes a cheap attempt to confuse the public. There was only one adjournment, and he knows it.

"When he speaks of political manipulation he underestimates the intelligence of the people.

"His attempt to drag in another and more recent case, in which I did delay extradition for some time, is but an effort to raise a dust screen."

SONGBIRDS OVERJOYED TO SEE SUN

Opera Stars Arrive With Expressions of Happiness to Open Season Here

Expressing joy over the sunshine which greeted them as they stepped from the Southern Pacific Lark yesterday morning, stars of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association season which opens tonight were accorded a welcome on their arrival from triumphs in San Francisco.

"Fog, fog, all week fog; it is good to see the bright sun and blue sky," said Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, dramatic soprano.

Incidentally Merle Armitage, manager of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association, said "the advance sale for the nine performances already has passed the $100,000 mark and we are practically sold out for the first performance, 'Aida,' Verdi's opera."

"Where can I rent an auto? I want all this sunshine I can get and I wish I never had to leave it," was the first remark of Giuseppe Danise, baritone. Fulfilling his intention, he had an automobile within twenty minutes and was headed for the beach.

Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, tenor, was the only one of the group arriving who does not speak English.

Nina Morgana, coloratura soprano, arrived with her husband, Bruno Lirato, former secretary to Caruso.

Gennaro Barra was the other member of the party.

Tito Schipa, Queena Mario, Kathryn Meisle and Giuseppe De Luca will arrive this morning.

Many of the stars are staying during the next two weeks at the Victoria Arms Hotel Apartments.

Porter Guest at Wilshire Dinner

More than 100 civic leaders last night attended a dinner of the Wilshire Community Council at 682 South Vermont avenue, with Mayor Porter and Public Works Commissioner James Hyde as guests of honor. Frank Waters, president of the Council, presided.

Mayor Porter welcomed the support of civic organizations in his policy of law enforcement and economic adjustment. Commissioner Hyde urged the organization to use care in proposing public improvements and called attention to the present high cost of patent paving as compared to the unpatented kind.

REAL AMERICAN MUST PROVE IT

Jackson Barnett, Wealthiest Indian, Tries Vainly to Procure Passport

Jackson Barnett, said to be the wealthiest Indian in the United States, yesterday could not get a passport to travel through Europe because he did not present evidence to show that he was born in this country.

Accompanied by his wife, formerly Anna Laura Lowe, Barnett appeared at the Federal Building and asked for a passport from L. J. Cordes, passport clerk. The request was refused until papers are produced to show that the American Indian was born here.

Many Attracted to Beauty Show

A. F. Godefroy of Mexico City, expert hair dyer, is coming here to attend the first annual National Beauty Show, opening Saturday at the Ambassador Auditorium.

The first of a group of beauty experts to arrive is Edith Lonas of Chattanooga, Tenn. She says she came here for the beauty show instead of making her annual trip to New York City, as Los Angeles and Hollywood rapidly are becoming known as the beauty centers of the country.

More than 100 manufacturers are preparing to install exhibits.

WANTED HER TO WORK

When Mrs. Zella Merchant married Harry Merchant she wanted a home and a husband who could support her. However, when he insisted that she go to work and support him she thought it was time to get a divorce, she told Superior Judge Blake yesterday when asking for a legal separation.

A decree was granted.

All in Vain

A teacher had dealt with wearisome iteration on the part played by carbohydrates, proteids and fats, respectively, in the upkeep of the human body. At the end of the lesson the usual test questions were put. "Can any girl tell me the three foods required to keep the body in health?" was the first one. There was silence till one maiden replied, "Breakfast, dinner and tea!"—[Weekly Scotsman.

FINGER LOSER ASKS NO ODDS

Youth Says He Will Avenge Bitten-Off Digit in His Own Way

Alfred Morena, 21 years of age, of 414 1-2 North Hill street, appeared minus a finger at Georgia-street Receiving Hospital yesterday as the result, he said, of an altercation with an acquaintance at Sunset Boulevard and Grand avenue.

He refused to give the name of his adversary but said the latter had bitten off the digit during the quarrel.

Dr. Jacobs treated the injury, and Morena went home declaring he would avenge the loss of the finger in his own way.

Inhalator Baby Barely Alive

A faint spark of life still was retained by Baby Caldwell at the Rice Maternity Hospital, 2942 West Twelfth street, last night, where firemen of the inhalator squad and nurses began their third day's battle to keep the infant alive.

The baby's mother, Mrs. L. M. Caldwell, is in a serious condition in the same hospital. The baby suffered a series of complications when born Saturday and the firemen were called. Since that time two men have been forcing carbogen into the child's lungs.

BELVEDERE GARDENS MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

William Leslie Smith of 1272 Augusta street, Belvedere Gardens, ended his life by swallowing poison Sunday night, according to a report filed by deputy sheriffs who investigated the death yesterday. Smith, who was a truck driver for a large Los Angeles department store, became despondent and resigned a week ago, according to his widow, Mrs. May Smith. Since resigning he appeared to be brooding over his lack of employment, she told the officers.

Boat Seized at Harbor Held for Investigation

The fifty-four-foot power boat Chiquita was seized in Long Beach Harbor last night by officers of the Coast Guard cutter 804, and is being held for investigation following an unsuccessful chase of the craft on Saturday afternoon off Point Dume, near Long Beach.

Coast Guard officers said last night that the suspected boat had been sighted on Saturday and ordered to stop, but that its crew threw a cargo of liquor overboard and escaped. When the boat was located at Long Beach last night, Abe Brown, who was on board, was released when it was found not possible to connect him with the incident of Saturday.

CARDS BUCKLE DOWN TO WORK

Stanford Starts Drilling for Oregon Game

Warner Believes Webfoots Are Tough Outfit

Johnny Preston Will Sit on Bench Saturday

BY FLOYD HEALEY
"Times" Staff Representative

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—Now that Pop Warner knows what he can expect from the 1929 version of the Cardinals, he got down to work this afternoon with the kid gloves in the locker. Stanford may be the present favorite to lick Oregon next Saturday, but the wizard of the farm considers Oregon the toughest thing in moleskins between now and the collision between the Cards and U.S.C.

POP WARNER

Charley Winterburn, who saw Oregon in action Saturday, came back to the farm today with plenty to report.

The most important thing he had to tell Warner was that the northern outfit has the same big, heavy ground-gaining outfit it had last year, but with the benefit of another year's experience.

Last year, Stanford came out of the fray two touchdowns to the good, but Oregon scored twice and Winterburn made no secret of the fact he considers the outfit capable of doing the same again this year.

Johnny Preston probably will not be in the Card line-up. He is on the bench with an injured knee. If he doesn't start, the big Red squad probably will miss him. Phil Neill seems the best bet to sit in at left end. Except for this possibility, the Cards look to go in the same order they started against the Olympic Club last Saturday.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

San Diego State (34) vs. Whittier (12.)

FRIDAY NIGHT'S GAME

Occidental vs. Santa Barbara State at Rose Bowl, 8 p.m.

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

Four of the five teams considered to be of championship timber meet Saturday afternoon to clarify the Southern California Conference football situation.

True strength of conference schools is more or less a matter of conjecture at this writing, but week-end games which bring together Caltech and Pomona at the Rose Bowl, and San Diego State at Whittier, should furnish a definite line on what may be forthcoming this fall.

Occidental, 1928 conference champion, plays a nonconference contest with the Santa Barbara State Teachers' College athletes at the Rose Bowl Friday evening. The Bengals are considered to be rapping at the championship door again, but will not be tested until November, when they tangle with San Diego State.

Redlands and La Verne both draw blanks. Neither can be considered in the race, as the Bulldogs were knocked over by Chaffey Junior College last Saturday, 7 to 0, while Caltech opened its conference season with a 26-to-7 win over the Leopards.

RESERVE SEAT SECTION AT CUB PARK SOLD OUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—The last batch of applications for the world series games between the Cubs and the Athletics to be played at Wrigley Field, October 8, 9 and 10, were drawn today. Only a small number of seats, all in the grand stand, were available.

By tomorrow night, the entire allowance of reserved tickets will be ready for the staff of clerks who will address the envelopes. The tickets will be sent by registered mail to lucky applicants. They will be placed in the mails, probably by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, conferred with officials of the Internal Revenue Department today to make scalping of tickets tough for the scalpers. Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, Collector of Internal Revenue, attended the conference. Thirty special agents will go on duty tomorrow as the scalping detail.

Work on the temporary bleachers being constructed over the sidewalks on two streets adjoining the park is being rushed in order that the seats may be available for the start of the series.

Huge platforms are being erected even with the walls of right and left field on which will be placed circus seats to accommodate 8000 fans. An additional crew of carpenters was put to work today so that the seats will be in place by Friday.

No tickets are reserved for bleacher seats. These will be placed on sale at daybreak on the day of each game. For these tickets the system of first come, first served will be employed. To prevent scalping of these $1 tickets, the purchaser will be ushered into the park immediately.

The Cubs wele idle today, but departed for Cincinnati where they will engage the Reds five days in a row, returninug to Chicago to wind up the season with the Pirates next Sunday.

BUSH TO MANAGE CHISOX

Former Pittsburgh Boss Signs Two-Year Contract to Succeed Lena Blackburne

CHICAGO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Donie Bush, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will pilot the Chicago American League baseball club next year, the White Sox management announced today.

Bush succeeds Russell (Lena) Blackburne, and has signed a two-year contract beginning next year. Blackburne will finish this season. Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the club, did not reveal the terms of the contract with Bush.

DONIE BUSH.

Blackburne has managed the White Sox almost two years, succeeding Ray Schalk in the middle of the 1928 season. At that time he was assistant to Schalk.

The White Sox have had a disastrous season under Blackburne's leadership, falling to seventh place in the pennant race. Blackburne has engaged in two fist fights with Arthur Shires, the belligerent first baseman, the last one occurring two weeks ago at Philadelphia. The manager promptly suspended Shires for the second time this season.

After the Shires incident, Comiskey, seeking to regain his health in his retreat in the woods of Northern Wisconsin, announced his determination to again pick up the leadership of the club and build it into a pennant winner. For the last three years Comiskey has not devoted his entire attention to his team because of his health. He is 70 years of age. He felt the need of allowing members of

Managerial Troubles May Keep Argentine Giant Out of American Rings

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—The same type of managerial troubles that finally drove Max Schmeling from American rings blew up today about the giant frame of Victorio Campolo of the Argentine.

VICTORIO CAMPOLO

The squabbles of the six-foot mauler will be taken tomorrow into the arena of the New York State Athletic Commission where the German youngster was disbarred along with his American manager, Joe Jacobs. Like Schmeling, the Argentine is planning an immediate return to his homeland.

Campolo's arguments with his Argentine manager, Gustave Leneve, are almost as many sided as Schmel-

MICKEY WALKER OPENS BOXING ON THURSDAY

Mickey Walker will get down to boxing next Thursday, according to his manager, Jack Kearns, who arrived back from Soper's ranch yesterday. The champion has been doing the heavies in roadwork and mountain climbing for the last four days.

Kearns stated that Walker will be fully ten pounds overweight as he begins the grind which will send him into the ring at Wrigley Field, October 29, next, in defense of his middleweight title against Ace Hudkins.

The doctor came back to Los Angeles to select a crew of suitable sparring partners. He said that Eddie Burnbrook, Roy Moore and Frankie Campbell would make up part of the staff.

Kearns will spend much of his time at the camp the next three weeks, where he will personally look after the training of the champion for what he considers his hardest battle.

Hudkins plans to move into the camp at Bastanchury's ranch no later than Thursday. He will do no boxing this week. His chief problem will be to build himself up since he doesn't hit over 160 pounds today.

The Wildcat will have his own special chef and quarters will be provided for fifteen to twenty men. The Nebraskan likes to have a lot of people around his training quarters.

The Olympic received the consignment of tickets back yesterday from the printers. There were 25,287 of them.

The sale will probably get under way Thursday or Friday, it is said. Work of counting, checking and racking the pasteboards is being rushed by Newell Miller and his staff.

Best Women Golfers to Meet in Early Rounds

Mrs. Lifur, Mrs. Pressler to Mix in First Round

BY ANNE TRABUE

(California representative of the U.S.G.A., who is reporting the women's national championship for The Times.)

OAKLAND HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, BIRMINGHAM (Mich.) Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—A decision of the women's committee of the United States Golf Association to continue their policy of pairing the qualifiers according to the numerical method was responsible for Mrs. Lifur and Mrs. Pressler meeting in the first round of match play. Two players of greater national importance than the California women were also affected as Miss Helen Hicks and Miss Glenna Collett will meet in the second round should both be victorious in their matches Tuesday.

GLENNA COLLETT

EASY MATCH

Glenna has a fairly easy match, while "Billy" Hicks, as she is affectionately called, will have her hands full with Maureen Orcutt from White Beeches Club, New Jersey. Between Mrs. Lifur and Mrs. Pressler there is little to choose, both are playing well, but Mrs. Pressler was playing better today and seemed to have regained her old confidence. It will be a fight to the finish and I know how the California women will be wishing they could be here to see the struggle. I will do my best to give them all the details of the match tomorrow.

Never in the history of the championship has there been such a fine field, which is attested by the qualifying scores. Last year 91 qualified and I think it was the same figure the year before at Garden City. Everything over 88 is out to-

VITTMEN FIGHT TO CINCH RACE

Sheiks Have Two-Game Lead as Last Week Begins

Shellenback, Walters Ready to Twirl in Opener

Missions Only Outfit With Chance to Beat Stars

BY BOB RAY

Leading the procession by two full games and with a second-half triumph in their grasp, Oscar Vitt and his battling band of Hollywood Stars return to Wrigley Field today to open a seven-game series with the Portland Ducks. The series winds up the second-half race and it's now strictly up to the Sheiks whether they win the right to tackle the Missions in the play-off series for the Coast League championship.

OSCAR VITT

The Mission Reds loom as the only serious threat to the Hollywood peace of mind. The Reds are two games back of the Stars and have a soft series against Seattle this week. The Angels, three games behind the Sheiks, must face Oakland this week, so there's not much chance for the Leliveltians to wind up on top. A two-game lead is pretty tough to overcome in seven tilts so the Stars look pretty safe unless they go into a terrible slump.

DUCKS OUT OF RACE

Bill Rodgers's Ducks, who this season established the league's high-water mark of sixteen straight victories, were practically eliminated from the race last week by the Oaks, who captured five out of seven. That should take a lot of sap out of the Portlanders and should benefit the Hollywood cause somewhat.

Frank Shellenback, who has won twenty-five games for the Stars this year, is slated to pitch for Skipper Vitt today. It's not certain who'll take the mound for Portland, but either Junk Walters or Leo Chesterfield is a good guess for Rodgers's mound choice.

Walters, the jack of all trades, has won nine games for the Ducks since turning pitcher and may give the Sheiks considerable trouble. The Seals sent Walters to Portland for the waiver price because he was

Hawkins and Al Walker to Decide Negro Heavyweight Title Tonight

BLACK GIANTS IN TITLE BOUT

Both Have Win Over Godfrey Via Foul Route

Battlers Well Cautioned About Low Blows

Joe Vargas, Sammy Jackson Mix in Wind-up

Long Tom Hawkins and Al Walker, both claimants of the negro heavyweight championship, will decide the issue further tonight when they clash at the Olympic in a ten-round bout.

"LONG TOM" HAWKINS

The title among the colored gentlemen is always more or less clouded. Up until the time that Hawkins won from George Godfrey on a foul a few weeks ago the Black Shadow was generally conceded to be the "bogey" man of the giants.

Then along came Walker with just as good a claim—in fact, the same exact claim—to the negro supremacy. He won from Godfrey on a foul in the third round at Philadelphia last January.

Well cautioned against the evils of fouling as an aftermath of the Godfrey affair here, Hawkins and Walker are quite about hitting below the belt likely to be more than careful tonight.

In this case, since both are hard hitters, the fans may get a good run for their money and possibly see a knockout.

Boxing under Hawkins and Walker are a team of 19-year-old welterweights who are not far away from being legitimate challengers of Jackie Fields. They are Joe Vargas, Fresno Mexican, and Sammy Jackson, star negro boxer who has been making sensational starts recently.

Vargas fought Fields about a year ago. The Mexican was giving Fields 50-50 competition when the referee stopped the bout in the ninth round due to a mouth cut.

To further recommend Vargas he knocked Young Corbett down a couple of times and was the popular winner, although the referee raised the southpaw's hand.

Jackson is a stablemate of Goldie Hess and has been making high-calibered battles. But Vargas has met far better boys than the negro. The weight is 150 pounds to accommodate Vargas, who is not trained down as fine as he should be. Frank Churchill wants to train Vargas down to 145 pounds, his natural weight.

Vargas and Jackson are boxing ten rounds, making the bill a double wind-up.

The other three bouts are Frankie Dias vs. Willie Fausto; Tommy Huffman vs. Leonard Allen and Milt Fraser vs. Joe Lopez.

Jack Allen arrived here yesterday with Billy Townsend, the Vancouver boy who knocked out Wildcat Carter in three rounds at Seattle a few weeks ago. Townsend is here for a rematch with Carter next week.

Carter won nine rounds from Goldie Hess and was stopped in the tenth in his only appearance here.

ing's controversies with his native and American pilots as well as various boxing commissioners and promoters. The Argentine claims that from the purse of $9415 paid his manager for Campolo's losing stand against Phil Scott only $312 was offered him. "Expenses" never incurred ate up the remainder, he says.

More serious are Campolo's charges that on the afternoon of the Scott match, an unlit gas jet was opened in his room, causing him severe nausea, and that only his brother, Felipe, and Leneve had access to the room. During the fight itself, Campolo says, Leneve kept shouting "Don't fight him, take it easy," when Scott was badly battered in the first and second sessions.

Like Schmeling, Campolo now refuses to box under Leneve's management again, although Humbert J. Fugazy, local promoter, has a contract signed by the manager calling for four more fights.

Campolo alleges that $3000 of his money was posted by Leneve as a forfeit with Fugazy without his consent.

Campolo has applied for passage to the Argentine on a steamer sailing Friday night.

THE HIPS SLIDE LATERALLY TO RIGHT
THIS TURN OF HIPS IS WRONG—AVOID IT
Sol Metzger

BY SOL METZGER

Golf has been made a difficult game for many by reason of such slogans as straight left arm, pronation, pivot, getting one's weight into the stroke and so on. These expressions lead to a lot of confusion and take one's mind off the big idea. The big idea is to sweep the clubhead through the ball.

The pivot idea is O. K. but has been so often misinterpreted as to confuse most everyone. The pivot really isn't a pivot at all but a hip slide back and forth on a line parallel to the line of flight. Of course your hips and shoulders will turn, the left side coming around as you get the club up and back, the right doing so at the finish of the swing through. But they do these things by reason of the pull of the arms. Woe to the golfer who trys to turn the hips and shoulders of themselves.

Abe Mitchell explains the pivot clearly. He slides his hips back as his club is taken back. He does not intentionally bring the left hip forward and around. That takes care of itself and is caused by the arm pull.

football game, don't fail to attend Pomona's 1929 debut against Caltech.

In our opinion Pomona will at least be on par with last year, and Caltech possibly a trifle weaker, but it won't be surprising if the final score approximates that hollow 7-to-6 victory the Sagehens won in 1928.

Faced each year with mediocre material at the best, Fox Stanton equips his Engineers with plays nobody has ever seen or even heard of before and usually manages to trip up one or more of his rivals. Last year it was Oxy by a 13-to-7 margin, when the disillusioned Bengals had the game all won.

We have a sneaking suspicion that Stanton did not strain his team against La Verne Saturday, and will have enough stuff left to give the fans the low down on Pomona's real strength.

GOOD BACKS

Nixon is more than apt to take the cover off a bona fide championship eleven. Capt. Poke Hartman at quarter, Don Murdy and George Stancer, halves, and Al Putnam, fullback, give the Sagehens the slickest backfield in the conference. Pomona usually develops an unnamed hero, and he may come this season from Blair Nixon, Harvey Bear, Harold Hager, Bob Baynham, or any of a half-dozen other ball carriers who have shown to advantage in practice.

Pomona's passing attack should be particularly effective with an accurate and deceptive passer in Hartman, and two veteran wingmen in Frank Dyer and Stew Hagestead. Young Nixon, who may replace Murdy at half, is also a pass snatcher of no mean ability.

Reports emanating from Claremont would indicate that Line Coach Beefy Heath has worked wonders with the material at hand. Having John Judy at center as a nucleus for a sturdy forward wall, Heath has made presentable guards out of two sophomores, Frank Clements and Jack Witherspoon, and has two better than average tackles in Seymour Tucker and Art Colley, who was shifted from the backfield to strengthen the line.

Stanton is still a bit undecided about who will start, but the fans will see at least three fair to middlin' football players in Capt. Les Boyle at quarterback, Walter Dickey at full and Bill Shuler at tackle.

DISAPPOINTING

Both Whittier and San Diego State were a bit disappointing, in their opening bows, the Poets being badly trampled by the Los Angeles Firemen, 18 to 0, while the Aztecs appeared none too strong against an alleged weak California Christian College team. The Christians, in fact, had San Diego at the short end of a 12-to-7 score at the half, but finally lost, 26 to 18, when the two Wilson boys, Art and Jack, pushed over three touchdowns.

From the Poets' apparent lack of punch, however, San Diego State should be a slight favorite, as Coach Peterson has a veteran team at the Border City this year with a wealth of material.

Oxy's game with the Roadrunners, although a nonconference fracas, should attract a good turnout, as the night games under lamplight have apparently taken hold. At least, the 20,000 crowd which saw Arizona and Oxy play last Friday would indicate that such was the case.

Trojan Coach Expects Battle from Oregon State

the man holding the ball to set the pigskin up correctly.

SEE VERY LITTLE

Lonnie Stiner and Dick Newman, Oregon State scouts, saw Saturday's game but their report to Paul Schissler can't possibly contain very much valuable information.

Aubrey Devine returned yesterday from watching Schissler's team against the California Aggies. He turned his dope over to Herd, who chaperones the Spartans, and it wasn't long before Clif had his boys running through plays.

Local fans will get quite a kick out of Oregon State's new shift. It is said to be patterned after that employed by Chick Meehan at New York University, but descriptions of it as relayed to us indicate that it has many features of Howard Jones's own shift.

The Oregon State linemen go into a huddle with the backs, the forwards lining up with their rear ends to the opposition as Jones's players did several years ago. They then pivot and hop into the line, the backfield at the same time executing a shift of its own.

Herd's Spartans did the stunt fairly well; at least well enough to give the Trojan varsity an inkling of what to expect from the Oregonians Saturday. Art Taaffe, publicity man for the Oregon State team, says Schissler calls it "the military shift."

ORANGEMEN'S CHANCES NOT SO BRIGHT

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, CORVALLIS, Sept. 28.—For the third successive season Oregon State will open its conference season against the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. The Orangemen will face the Trojans Saturday with the odds more unfavorable than at any time in the past three years.

Two years ago Oregon State in the memorable 13-to 12 game came within one point of victory and threw such a scare into the Trojans that in 1928 they prepared earnestly for Coach Paul J. Schissler's proteges and set them down, 19 to 0. Coach Schissler admits that the Orange team that faces the Southern Californians this year is weaker than that of last year. In any event the Trojan eleven is heralded as much stronger.

TWO GAMES

Oregon State team will have had more season game experience as it has already mixed with two teams in nonconference tilts, Willamette University and California Aggies. Against this Southern California has already tried its mettle in a conference battle with U.C.L.A.

The Orangemen leave for Los Angeles Wednesday and arrive the morning of Friday. A workout in the Coliseum Friday afternoon just to get the men used to feeling a turf field under their feet will probably be scheduled.

The trip south will differ this year from preceding years in that there will be no regular workouts on the road. Heretofore the Orangemen have stopped off at Davis, Cal., and worked out on the California Aggie field. This year they start their trip a day later and go straight through.

As usual Coach Schissler will probably take close to three full teams with him. This enables him to keep enough substitutes going into the game to give players some rest from the heat of the Southern California climate.

GOOD ENDS

Barring injuries Coach Schissler will have two rather presentable ends, a center and a tackle, all of some experience to stiffen the line that faces the Trojans. Russ Striff and Bill McKalip, ends; Chuck Stout, tackle; and Bob Geddes, center, are the mainstays.

The vim with which Striff, a Los Angeles boy, has hurled himself into play despite sickness and lack of weight handicap has cheered the coach considerably. With the fiery though somewhat inexperienced McKalip and the clever, heady work of Striff the wing positions are in fairly good shape. Reserve material here as along the entire length of the line is practically inexperienced in conference play.

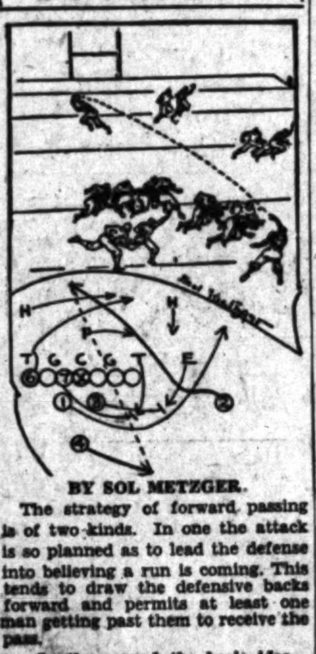
As a running mate to Stout there is Sayles Young for tackle. Pete Miller, who looked like a sophomore about to break into varsity regular play, is recovering from an injury received in the first game of the season. Miller was the only real big tackle prospect, most of the others, including the regulars, being well under the usual size of Orange tackles.

COX AT GUARD

Jack Cox, a sophomore, probably will be one regular guard with Chief Thompson, or Del Scott, both converts, alternating the other side of center. Thompson was a fullback letter man and Scott a tackle letter man, so both have had conference baptism even though not seasoning in their new-found positions. Just who will form the second line is too uncertain to conjecture, but whoever it is will lack a whole lot of experience.

The backfield, though lacking in the brilliant quarterback play of Howard Maple, is well balanced this year. For one combination to lance the Howard Jones eleven there are Buerke, quarter; Sherwood and Hughes, halfbacks, and Gilmore, fullback. Another foursome is Nosler, quarter; Kerr and Metten, halfbacks; Essman, fullback. This quartet is not so sure of its places, as Babe Peterson and Floyd Owen have covetous eyes on the halfback jobs. If the veteran Roger Montgomery recovers from his Willamette game injury he will get the call over Nosler at quarter, as he has had two seasons of varsity experience and outweighs the peppy midget twenty-five pounds.

Columbia Grid Squad Decoys Defense Backs



BY SOL METZGER.

The strategy of forward passing is of two kinds. In one the attack is so planned as to lead the defense into believing a run is coming. This tends to draw the defensive backs forward and permits at least one man getting past them to receive the pass.

In the second the basic idea is to decoy one side of the defensive backfield out of the territory it occupies and then slip an eligible man into it to receive the pass. Against a man-to-man defense this is often accomplished just as Columbia works the play shown here.

Note how end No. 6 and back No. 2 break down field and turn in to their left to draw with them the defensive left half and full. Following them comes No. 3 back. But instead of turning in he works straight down and takes the pass. The ball is thrown by back No. 4, who starts back before the ball is snapped to No. 1 and takes the ball from No. 1. No. 1 acts as his protector. Such a pass can be planned along far different lines. Georgia Tech has such a play for its game this Saturday with Mississippi Agricultural College at Atlanta.

TWO TIED FOR MEDAL HONORS

night. It looked for a while as if three players tied at 90 would play off, but their hopes were wrecked by Miss Rosamond Vahey of Belmont Springs, Boston, one of the late starters, breezing in with an 87. Strange to say that there is not a single 89 in on the board.

Helen Hicks was out in 36 with four birdies and an eagle on the second hole, where she was on in two and sank her putt. This hole is 450 yards in length, and is a five par for both men and women, and is one of the ones that was not shortened. She came back in 43, going over par twice, the first time on the eleventh hole and again on the eighteenth, where she had a bad six, not really getting any shot on the hole.

Tied with her is Virginia Van Wie, Beverly Country Club, Illinois, with 38-41, and one stroke more is our own Kathleen Wright, who missed tying for the medal by missing a six-foot putt on the eighteenth hole. Kathleen meets Louise Fordyce tomorrow, and if she wins will play Mrs. O. S. Hill on Wednesday, providing of course, that Mrs. Hill defeats Miss Vahey in their match tomorrow. Mrs. Hill was out in 38 and came in in 44, requiring six strokes on the seventeenth hole, where she was buried in the sand on the side of one of the deep traps guarding the green. Mrs. Hill had her difficulties here. She dug out a veritable ledge to stand on and then in making the shot put the ball in the ground she had dug out for a foothold. In the end she was compelled to play her ball backward and then on to the green. A hurry call was sent out for greensmen to repair the trap before the players following could proceed.

Mrs. Alexa Fraser, much thinner and playing considerably faster than two years ago, qualified with an 81, and is at the top of the fourth bracket in a good position, I would say, to reach the semifinals at least. There is no more popular player than Alexa Sterling Fraser, and the championship gains much by her presence.

MRS. PRESSLER SHINES

Mrs. Pressler was one of the few who came in better than she went out. I have not the time to check over all the scores but I believe that her 40 on the second nine was the lowest of the day. She tied with Glenna Collett at 82, Glenna having a 39-43.

Mrs. H. A. Martelle, Hartford Golf Club, Connecticut, and Miss Gertrude Boothby of the Town and Country Club, St. Paul, Minn., failed to qualify due to nines on the three par seventeenth where both players had their tee shots buried so deeply in the sand in the trap short of the green that it was with difficulty that they located the balls. Mrs. Martelle finished with a 90 and Miss Boothby with a 91.

There is much discussion concerning the shortening of the course. To my way of thinking it is an excellent course for women but there is no doubt that they have made it to favor the shorter hitter. The course as the women are playing it is a bit over 100 yards shorter than it is regularly played and some 400 yards shorter than it was in the open championship when the back tees were used. It is today 6437 yards in length, 3168 yards out and 3269 in. The women are using their wood clubs to an advantage and the players of not quite championship caliber are playing short of dangerous traps on many holes. I think that the low scoring is due to three things, first that the women are playing better golf than ever before, second that they can use wood clubs for the second shots on nearly every hole and third to the fact that there is no rough on the edges of the fairways.

The day was cloudy and a cold wind was blowing but with all of it the weather was more favorable to low scoring than last week when the weather was hot and the course dry and fast.

Lomski and Willis May Hit Cooler

SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 30. (AP)—Warrants for the arrest of Leo Lomski, and Jack Willis, light heavyweights scheduled to fight a six-round bout here tomorrow night, and Lonnie Austin and George W. Bishop, promoters, charging the four with intention to violate the State antiprize-fight law, were issued by Justice of the Peace John B. Wright here today at the request of the Prosecuting Attorney's office.

Bail was set at $1000 each, six Seattle newspaper sport writers were subpoenaed as witnesses. The warrants were issued after two men from the Prosecuting Attorney's office had bought tickets for the fight.

Under the State law, only private clubs may spar or fence for exercise. Promoters of the fight declared they were not violating the law, but were operating under a membership plan, legally putting their show on under the banner of Austin and Bishop Athletic Club, Inc.

to the Bruins for the season. He has a broken foot. Capt. Carl Brown, Norman Duncan and Patches French were badly used up but they should be all right by the end of the week. Jack Remsberg, who was being groomed for one of the regular tackle berths, has two smashed ribs and may not be able to get back in for several weeks.

The Bruins have a comparatively easy game on their hands Saturday. The Fresno State team was beaten by Loyola last Saturday and they should not give the Westwood squad much more than a heavy workout.

Spaulding will use his reserves a good deal, he indicated, in Saturday's game.

SKATERS TO START AT PALAIS TONIGHT

Bert Clark, recognized as the "Chaplin of the ice," will feature the program tonight at the Palais De Glace with his comedy act on skates when the season is opened. Included in other events will be the contest for the fancy-skating championship of the Pacific Coast which will be open to all-comers.

Henry Siemer, owner and operator of the Palais, announces that a meeting of players who will compete in the Southern California Ice Hockey League this year will be held. Managers of teams will be present to sign up talent for the forthcoming pennant race.

Eddie Hume's last winter champions, La Natividads, will clash with John Austemann's All-Star sextet Thursday night in the first practice game of the season.

LEO DIEGEL SHOWS LACK OF TITLE GOLF

If Leo Diegel, American professional champion, succeeds in winning the Southern California open golf championship at Sunset Fields, October 14-18, he will have to play finer golf than he yet has displayed on the public course, according to J. A. Patterson, secretary of the Professional Golfers' Association of Southern California. The championship, starting one week from Monday, this year will draw the finest field in its history, according to Patterson.

PHIL McGRAW LOSES BOUT; TO QUIT RING

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. (AP)—Jack (Kid) Berg, speedy English junior welterweight, outpointed Phil McGraw, of Detroit, in a ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

In announcing his permanent retirement from the ring, McGraw said he had amassed a tidy fortune of more than $100,000 in his seven-year fistic career and thought that ought to last him the rest of his life. Several years ago he was regarded as one of the leading contenders for the lightweight crown.

JIMMY SLATTERY IN VICTORY OVER DARCY

BUFFALO (N. Y.) Sept. 30. (AP)—Jimmy Slattery essayed a return to his old place in the ring tonight with Len Darcy of Flint, Mich., as his opponent and did well enough to win a decision after six rounds. Slattery was only in fair condition, but finished unmarked, while Darcy was bleeding from nose and mouth.

FERNANDEZ GETS OFFER FOR FIGHT

Purse of $10,000 Will Go to Filipino if He Wants Singer Scrap

An offer of $10,000 has been made to Ignacio Fernandez, Filipino featherweight, if he will fight Al Singer, New York's popular Jewish featherweight. It was Fernandez who kayoed Singer a few months ago in the biggest upset the fight game has had in New York this year. Friday night the Filipino will make his last appearance of the year in California at the Hollywood American Legion stadium and his opponent will be the hard-hitting Mexican Kid Ponce.

There will surely be a knockout in the main event. If Ponce doesn't get over a knockout he will get flattened. Ponce isn't in the same class with Fernandez, but his one chance is in landing a wallop that will upset the dope.

A corking good semi-wind-up has been booked. Ray McIntyre fights Sid Torres. Fidel La Barba turned down an offer of $1300 to fight McIntyre at Ventura before La Barba left for Europe. There were softer touches for La Barba, and Jackie Mandell was considered one.

Herbert Turchi and Bobby Pacho, featherweights, will be seen in the special event. Pacho has never fought at Hollywood.

Bush comes to the Sox after resigning the management of the Pirates less than a month ago. He threw up his job after the Pirates began to slip in their final bid for the National League pennant. Bush, who was a star shortstop for the Detroit Tigers for fifteen years, formerly managed the Washington club of the American League, and the Indianapolis club of the American Association.

BIRMINGHAM BEATS DALLAS STEERS, 8-4

DALLAS (Tex.) Sept. 30. (AP)—In a see-saw game the Birmingham Barons put on a strong finish to defeat the Dallas Steers, 8 to 4, in the fifth game of the Dixie series between the champions of the Southern Association and the Texas League. The series now stands at three victories for Birmingham and two for Dallas to win the Dixie championship. One team must capture four contests.

Preps to Get Break at Oxy Evening Game

High school students of Southern California are to have the opportunity of witnessing the night football game between Occidental and Santa Barbara Teachers next Friday night in the Pasadena Rose Bowl at the established high school student ticket price of 15 cents, according to announcement from Phil Ellsworth, Oxy graduate manager.

Fifteen thousand of the special student tickets will be mailed from Ellsworth's office today to high-school principals of Los Angeles and surrounding communities. Decision to make this special concession to high school students came after a number of Southern California coaches had reported a big demand for tickets following the success of the first after-dark contest between Oxy and Arizona. Any high school principal who fails to receive an allotment of tickets should communicate at once with Ellsworth at Occidental, ALbany 1151, to make arrangements for a block of the seats.

Husky Football Squad Has Everything Needed by Great Team

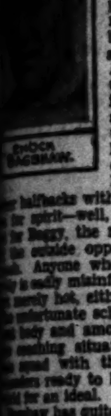
HUSKIES HAVE FINE MATERIAL

Huskies Well Fixed in Every Position on Team

Merle Hufford Shining Light of Seattle Club

Line Likely to be Biggest on Pacific Coast

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, SEATTLE (Wash.) Sept. 30.—Everything that has been said about the potentialities of the new Washington football team are true. It's a great squad. There is plenty of material, and it is big, powerful and fast for size. Also, in addition to battering-ram runners and blockers for the backfield on his famous power plays, Enoch Bagshaw has halfbacks with dashing speed. As for spirit—well, these boys are for Baggy, the more so because of the outside opposition to their coach. Anyone who thinks differently is sadly misinformed. They're not merely hot, either, but red hot. The unfortunate schism in the student body and among alumni over the coaching situation has fired the squad with the holy zeal of crusaders ready to battle the whole world for an ideal.



ENOCH BAGSHAW.

Bagshaw has quite a sprinkling of veterans, especially in his line, yet it is still essentially a green team. It will take a few battle tests to enable it to find itself, and Washington has a terrific schedule, which comes early and ends late. That schedule contains only one little breathing spell, which comes November 2, next, against College of Puget Sound of the Northwest Conference. Before this game and after it, seven big games follow each other on successive Saturdays.

And if the students and alumni will leave Baggy alone, on the Washington Stadium field today is the making of another of his great teams.

HUFFORD SHINES

The Huskies rode over Whitman Saturday after being held for downs three times, and to a 0-to-0 score in the first quarter. Then that power attack got organized and Merle Hufford, the speediest halfback in the Pacific Northwest, began running past the plucky Missionary lads. Washington piled up four touchdowns in the second quarter.

This game, however, was little more than a reconnaissance in force by the big Husky war machine. Next Saturday the real shellfire starts when Washington plays Montana in her opening Coast Conference game.

After Montana comes University of Southern California to the Washington Stadium, October 12, and it will be marvelous indeed were the Huskies to upset Howard Jones's powerful and veteran team with its great runners and hordes of reserves. Then comes the Washington-Washington State game, a traditional contest and, hence always a fierce one, at Pullman. The Saturday following Oregon appears in the Washington Stadium to battle her ancient enemy. That is always a tough one.

In the violent controversy that has raged around Enoch Bagshaw's head in the last two years, you have heard much about his so-called out-of-date football attack. Of course, this is a dig at Baggy's reliance on power plays, especially on his old punt-formation attack. The opposition cries for a coach who will build up an attack of "modern deception."

Much of the cry over "no deception" lies in the fact that Baggy's deceptive plays are so rarely of the "razzle" type that the spectator fails to recognize them as such. The ordinary idea of deception is something along the spectacular razzle-dazzle of the Stanford method, which is the shell-and-pea game phase of modern football.

Material at Washington? Reams of fine, powerful lads. Baggy and Spellman, the veteran line coach, have done some surprise shuffling in the middle of the line.

Sam Kraetz, a 190-pound six-foot veteran, is the offensive center, but on defense Kraetz moves over to guard.

The other offensive guard will be played by any one of three candidates, who all are good. One is Bill Gregor, two-year veteran; another is Lee Shelton, one of the vets Baggy lost last year because of the quaint episode in which they ducked the student-body president in the lake; the third is Jack Scamon, a proficient sophomore. All three scale around 185.

At offensive guard for Kraetz's post when he passes the ball is a big surprise. Just 192 pounds of surprise, that's how big. His name is Henry Wentworth and he is the large and active end and tackle of last season. Wentworth is rather tall and long-legged for a guard. On defense, however, he becomes the first-string right tackle. The right tackle on offence is the six foot seven and one-half-inch Paul Jessup, captain of the team, but on defense Jessup becomes defensive center. This means he usually fills a "roving" assignment.

GOOD RESERVES

Kraetz at center is declared by his teammates to have improved "only 100 per cent." Baggy has reserves for that post, and also for tackle, the two most prominent being Roland Boettner, a 190-pound sophomore of the Aggressive type, and Alvin Holmes, Junior, also a 190-pounder. Holmes is the northwest amateur heavyweight boxing champion. To say he uses his hands is putting it mildly.

Ends are all over the Washington campus. Baggy has seventeen candidates for that post, so picking six good ones should not be so tough. Walt Sahli, a 170-pound vet, and Bill Snider, 160 ditto, are one pair. Sahli, by the way, was another member of the Lake Washington ducking party, who is back in college after a year off.

These two are pressed by Roy Squires and Clarence Pautzke, both juniors with experience last season. And pressing them in turn are many others. End is no problem at all.

Johnny Geehan, 160, a third of the Lake Washington "duckers," and two-year football vet, is not a quarterback of the dominating type but calls his plays rather well and looks like a fine forward passer. Second quarterback choice is Jack Patrick, 170, who played for the champion freshmen last fall.

Jack Mittlestedt, a soph from Centralia Junior College, with a poker face and concealed emotions, is also in reserve. There are halfbacks of all types. One of the standing vets is Thurle Thornton, 170, heavier than before, keener at following his interference, and apparently better in all respects. Also he is a triple threater and at present the main kicking reliance. That's one Washington weakness—no outstanding good kicker.

Ellis Johnson, 165, is a steady little soph from Aberdeen High. Merle Hufford, 175, Milton-Freewaters most famous football son, gets his first varsity chance as a sophomore. And unless the signs all fail, he will be one of the conference wows. Hufford is very fast and has as deceptive a hip shift and change of place as Red Grange. He looks like a great prospect.

TERRIFIC PUNCH

Johnny Stombaugh, 180, is a junior and the smashing half of the backfield. He is chunky and short, not the big Shuck Carrell type, and there are better pass defenders, but he has a terrific punch. Gordon Jenkins, 185, a Queen Anne High School soph, is another grand prospect. He's good in everything, and looks especially good because he can kick.

Then there's Bob Buzzard, the heel-and-toe 160-pound side stepper, as another half.

At fullback two sophs have the call. One is Bill Marsh, 190, from Broadway High, short, squatty and powerful, a made over tackle. Rather slow, but Baggy uses his fullback mostly in the tackle-blocking job and Marsh is built for it.

Chuck Rosenhan, 200, is the other and he should be another Elmer Tesreau, whom he resembles, when he learns more about it. He's more a ball carrier than a blocker.

Spence Will Compete for Mercury Club

Walter Spence, high-point winner of last week's far-western swimming championships, has decided to remain in Los Angeles and compete under L.A.A.C. colors in future competition. Spence won the 100 and 220-yard free style swims and 300-yard medley event last week and placed second in the 500-yard free style. He defeated "Buster" Crabbe and Austin Clapp in two races. Spence holds many world breaststroke records and only two weeks ago lowered his own 220-yard breaststroke mark in an L.A.A.C. meet. He scored 17 points in the national outdoor meet this year, competing for the Pennsylvania A. C.

RABBIT PUNCHES

A FINE NIGHT BLOOMER

NIGHT football's blooming at the Rose Bowl the other night apparently was a pronounced success in all departments. The game was good, the field well lighted, the play snappily conducted and everybody went home happy after one hour and fifty minutes of fun.

The latter feature seems to be one of the bright points of night football. Whereas a hot afternoon takes its toll of the boys, bringing in its wake many time-outs and dragging games, the cool of the evening lends itself most effectively to the cause.

But the best evidence of its popularity was the way in which the public took to the idea. A good-sized crowd of nearly 20,000 persons turned out for the Oxy-Arizona festival—about four times or more as many as would have been on hand had the same teams bucked the Trojan-U.C.L.A. game at the Coliseum.

The idea of playing to large crowds is always annoying to college managements, but there is every reason to suspect that the fine turnout of last Friday will encourage the Occidental management to fulfill the current night schedule, which calls for the Tigers to meet Santa Barbara next Friday and New Mexico the following week.

Thereafter the Tigers will take to the customary procedure of playing on Saturdays, hot afternoons having worn themselves out by this time.

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS AGO

THE resumption of night football—all the press agent talk to the contrary notwithstanding—has brought up some interesting points in connection with the first night game.

This was played here in 1905 at old Fiesta Park, and oddly enough Arizona was a competitor against St. Vincent's. The Saints won by a score of 54 to 0, and Frank Acker, now a doctor in this city, was one of the stars of the game.

All Acker, who played at U.S.C. the year before, did was to score five touchdowns and kick nine goals after touchdown. This was a perfect score, and will silence all the base stories that the Trojans never had a man who was a consistent goal kicker. Acker was at U.S.C. in 1904 and St. Vincent's in 1905.

Acker after leaving St. Vincent's went to St. Louis University, where he gained his medical degree and became one of the greatest halfbacks of all time, rated in the same breath by critics of that region with any of the so-called famous greats. One year he kicked fifty-nine out of sixty goals after touchdown, and in a contest at Fort Collins, Colo., he set a new record of fifty successive goals.

The conductor of this column remembers Mr. Acker as halfback in these parts who was so far ahead of the college competition there was really no comparison. In addition to his kicking ability he was a real ball packer, a slasher who was hard to stop.

On the St. Vincent's team which humbled Arizona so heartily in that night game played twenty-four years ago this fall one found the following names:

Campbell and Grindle, ends; Wilhoit and Phelps, tackles; Lane, guard; Stuart, center; Seeley, quarterback; Acker and Cunningham, backs, and Andreas, fullback.

"LOONIE" FOOTBALL

MR. REESE A. EDWARDS of this city, who is interested in night football because he is interested in Dr. Acker, dug up a scrap book which records some items of interest in connection with that old game of 1905.

Bill Traeger, who had just busted out down here as a football official with his famous Stanford "S" emblazoned on his manly bosom, was one of the umpires of the game, the other being a gent known as Ben Gray.

The newspaper stories said 3000 spectators showed up for the affair, which was quite a crowd in those days—quite comparable to the 20,000 crowd at the Rose Bowl, because Los Angeles in 1905 numbered about 250,000 souls.

One of the gents who reported this early-day night game put everything he had into the following description of the affair:

"The performance resembled some ancient dance of the 'loonies' in the deserted arena of Rome and the spectators were properly impressed."

Three cheers for that one.

THE BEST EVER

THEY didn't have the names, but they had the competition.

Therefore, the third annual Pacific Southwest tennis tourney, which wound up Sunday, was one of the best.

And the West fared quite well with Johnny Doeg turning back Van Ryn in the singles and Brown and Sellers defeating Allison and Van Ryn, the Wimbledon and Davis Cup champions, in the finals of the doubles.

Mr. S. Wallace Merrihew, who is to tennis what the late Walter Camp was to football, told officials conducting the tourney that next to the national championships of England, France and this country the Pacific Southwest tourney is the finest in the world.

And that's taking in a lot of territory.

"WILD BILL" HEISLER FAVORED TO COP RACE

"Wild Bill" Heisler, the pilot who has been tabbed as the original "hard luck champion" at the American Legion Speedway during the past several months, will go into Sunday's 100-lap race here as the favorite for the first time this year. Heisler turned in one of the best performances of the season when he captured the fifty-mile feature at Fresno last Sunday, and with his victory went the sensational winning streak of Mel Kenealy, the erstwhile "Invincible Irishman."

Kenealy had equaled the record of Ralph De Palma by taking seven races in a row, before he was given the exhaust by Heisler Sunday. Babe Stapp of Indianapolis fame was second in the race, which forced Kenealy into third place.

With Kenealy defeated, interest in Sunday's 100-lap grind is growing rapidly. Now that the Irishman's charmed reign as king-pin of the dirt tracks is ended, it is believed that he will henceforth find the competition hot with such as Eddie Meyer, Guy Deulin and Heisler tooling fast mounts.

Deulin, the champion of the Pacific Northwest, is scheduled to arrive in town today with his 91 in tow.

Eddie Meyer, brother of the national champion, Louie, has decided to pilot his own car, the Redlands Special, and hereafter "Stubby" Stubblefield will handle a different mount at the local oval.

Sunday's program, which will be refereed by the famous Barney Oldfield, will include the 100-lap grind, a twenty-four-lap consolation event, and two motorcycle races of ten and fifteen laps.

SOCCERITES TANGLE IN OPENER SUNDAY

With all practice games over, teams of the Los Angeles City Soccer League are now set and ready for the official league opening Sunday. Two games will be played at Loyola and two at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena. In the Loyola games the Sons of St. George meet the Spanish-Americans at 1 o'clock and the L.A.A.C. Mercuries tangle with the Scots at 3 o'clock. Hollywood, favored to retain the league title, meets the Vikings at Pasadena at 1 o'clock and the Magyars and Pasadena mix at 3 o'clock.

HUGE ENTRY LISTED FOR CLUB TOURNEY

The entry list for the first annual combined clubs golf tournament, sponsored by the L.A.A.C., is expected to pass the 200 mark before entries close Friday with Charley Keppen at the L.A.A.C. Fifteen golfers entered yesterday, swelling the total to 130 to date. The tournament is open to members of the L.A.A.C., Hollywood Athletic Club, Pacific Coast Club and Santa Monica A. C. The qualifying round starts at the Riviera Country Club Friday and will continue over the week-end. Match play will begin next week to continue for the remainder of the month. Saturday night all contestants will be guests of Capt. W. J. Brown, Riviera manager, at a big stag dinner and show.

RIVERS IN HARBOR BOUT

Indian Jimmy Rivers, Fullerton welterweight, who has been holding down the feature spots at Santa Ana for many weeks, and who is regarded as the star attraction in that club, makes his appearance in the six-round semifinal against Joey Rienhart at Wilmington tomorrow night.

LEWIS, LUTZE IN LAST DRILL

Colorful Mat Stars Ready for Bout Tomorrow

Strangler Will Depend on Headlock to Win

Plestina and Cantonwine in Semi-Wind-up

Final workouts have been scheduled for today by both Ed (Strangler) Lewis and Nick Lutze, the two colorful mat stars who will meet at the Olympic tomorrow night in the finish feature event of "Carnation" Lou Daro's all-star wrestling show.

Lutze stated yesterday he would work for about an hour today, brushing up on his tackles and toe holds. He is very confident that these two grips, together with his jack-knife arm scissors and backward slam hold, will prove enough to account for the first nontitle defeat Lewis has suffered in years.

Lewis will depend upon his crushing headlocks to dispel all of Lutze's hopes of a victory at this time. The 230-pounder has been training hard for the last week and is said to be in the very best of condition. He came to the Coast several weeks ago in better shape than he had been in years, according to his manager. The rest he was forced to take following his last match here probably kept him from overtraining.

At the present time Lewis is ready to meet any wrestler in the world, bar none. He is favored to win from Lutze tomorrow night, although the young mat idol is being given a short-ender's chance of upsetting the popular choice, just as has been done many times in other sporting events during the past year. Jack Sharkey's victory over Tommy Loughran was the latest upset of a favorite.

In the opinion of mat experts, Lutze is due for the biggest victory of his wrestling career. His wins over Stanley Stasiak and Joe Malcewicz were enough to put Lutze's backers on edge for a victory by him over Lewis.

too fat, and dubbed him "Junk," but the portly all-around man made the San Francisco club rue that deal. In one week he trimmed the Seals twice with his hurling and thumped out two homers as an outfielder to upset them in another pair of games. He's the reigning Portland hero and has had to hire a secretary to answer his fan mail.

Since making their last appearance here, the Ducks have added several new athletes to their payroll. Dave Harris and Bob Johnson are two new outfielders, while Buster Chatham, the midget shortstop, will be another new face for local fans. Harris and Chatham are pretty good hitters, while the latter has proved a very capable performer at short. Frank Sigafoos, another infielder, who was drafted last fall, has rejoined the Ducks.

Mack Hillis and Gale Staley, who were out with injuries for quite a spell, have recovered and their appearance in the line-up has added more strength to the Portland line-up. But the Ducks don't rate in the same class with the Stars, although they have a fighting outfit that won't give up until the last man's out.

The series ought to provide Wrigley Field patrons with a lot of good baseball and should draw out record crowds.

BANKS ON SLUGGERS

Vitt believes that his wrecking crew of Bill Rumler, Eli Funk, Cleo Carlyle, Mickey Heath and Hank Severeid will pull the Sheiks through the Portland series safely.

The Ducks have only one southpaw, Fred Ortman, and the Stars are tough to stop for right-hand hurlers.

To become mathematically certain of the pennant, the Stars have to win six games this week. If they take six out of seven the Hollywooders can't be headed off even if the Missions sweep their series from Seattle. But if the Indians can trip the Missions in one game, the Stars can win by copping five clashes from Portland. The race may not be settled until Sunday, and there's a chance that it may end up in a tie, which will necessitate a play-off for second-half honors, as was the case last year between the Seals and Sacramento.

Jack Lelivelt's Angels wind up the season at Oakland with just a bare chance to win. The Stars and Missions both will have to be upset for the Angels to sneak home a winner, and it's no cinch that the Seraphs will cop their series from Oakland.

The Seals finish the year at Sacramento, but they're out of the reckoning so it doesn't matter what takes place up there.

AMATEUR PUCKS TO MIX UPON THURSDAY

Local ice hockey fans are expected to pack the Winter Garden Ice Palace Thursday night when the amateur hockey players stage their first exhibition game of the season. Earl Gilmore's Lions and Doc Coleman's Eskimos are the clubs who oppose each other in the first clash.

In addition to the hockey affair, the Garden officials have arranged for five exhibitions by noted performers. Those appearing between the periods are Mlle. Margot, Lew Winston, Paul Wilson, Miss Emilie Biggs and Joe Falent.

VICTORIOUS LION TEAM BACK HOME

Coach Driver Planning Hard Workouts for Tilt With Arizona State

Loyola University's football team, headed by Coach Bill Driver, returned yesterday from its 20-to-0 victory over the heavy Fresno State squad.

This game solved many of Coach Driver's worries which had been bothering him. His veteran line functioned perfectly and should cause no trouble throughout the season; his green light backfield which heretofore had caused no end of trouble, played spectacular ball and showed signs of becoming better with more experience.

Many stars were uncovered Saturday which should prove valuable in the coming games. Chief among them are Capt. Bernie Donahue, who has been shifted from tackle to halfback. Reed and Laurrman also stand out and have cinched first-string berths.

Ike Boone Tops Coast League Batters with Average of .405; Records Likely to

HITTING MARKS ALL IN DANGER

Mission Player Has Great Season With Stick

Compares With Best Ever in History of League

Hollywood Leads in Number of Runs Scored

Ike Boone is perched on the top rung of the Coast League batting ladder with an average of .405. All previous high batting marks for the league may be smashed to smithereens. Boone has made the same number of safe hits in two less times at bat than did Smead Jolley when he set up the league high-batting mark of .404 in 1928.

Ike Boone's batting average for the season will compare with the best ever turned in by a Coast League player. He has competed in 190 contests, has been to bat 763 times, and has hit safely 309 times. He is the leading manufacturer of safe hits and also the leading home-run hitter with fifty-four to his credit. Boone also has banged out fifty-two doubles, eight triples and 195 singles, for a total of 539 bases. Only in one season has a Coast league player made more safe hits than Boone has been already credited with. Only one player has ever banged out more home runs in a single season.

Ike Boone added six points to his batting average last week. He shows a thirteen-point lead over his nearest competitor for high batting honors. With the season only one more week more to run the Mission outfielder is almost a sure bet to wear the batting crown for the 1929 season.

During the past three weeks Boone has been on a terrific batting spree, treating all pitching alike. He has batted above .500 in the past three series and has hit safely in more than twenty consecutive games. Last week he found the Hollywood twirlers for fifteen safe hits in twenty-six trips to the plate, a batting average of .577 for the series.

Bill Rumler holds second place in the batting averages with a mark of .392. Elias Funk follows with .391. Gus Suhr is fourth with .388 and Smead Jolley fifth with .380.

"Buzz" Arlett has banged out sixty-eight doubles, very close to the league record. Fred Haney has pilfered fifty bases. Red Rollings has sacrificed fifty-eight times. Dudley Lee has been to bat 610 times.

The Mission Reds hold the team batting leadership with a mark of .318. Hollywood leads in runs scored with 1192. San Francisco has made the most safe hits, 2178, and the most home runs, 189.

HERB McQUAID TOPS TWIRLERS

Herb McQuaid, one of Red Killefer's stalwart moundsman, again leads the Coast League hurlers. McQuaid has won 11 and lost 4 contests for the Red outfit. Beryl Horne, who came to the Angels from the Cubs when Slug Tolson was recalled, has had pretty fair success so far, winning 5 and losing 2 contests. Horne is in second place.

Hollis Thurston, San Francisco slugging pitcher, is in third position with 22 battles on the win side and 9 in the red. Frank Shellenback is close on his trail with 26 victories and 11 defeats to his credit.

LeRoy Mahaffey still has possession of the league iron man honors, with 20 victories and 24 defeats.

Runner Comes Downward to Send Mark Up

There are various kinds of records made from time to time from drinking near beer by the gallon to lifting street cars by means of the teeth but it remained for Anthony Clascjak to add a new wrinkle to them all. Clascjak, a Pittsburgh youth, arrived here yesterday with the information that he had established a new world's record for running down from Pikes Peak. He claims that he traveled the nine-mile distance faster than any human on foot had ever done before. His time was 54m. 50s. Some other inspired individual had set a mark of 1h. 24m.) which Clascjak declared was apple pie for him running down hill. He intends to remain in Los Angeles long enough to compete for the Los Angeles A. C. if they can find any mountains for him to run down. He ascended the Peak in the cog railroad.

Bruin Frosh Hopes Go Up

The 200-pound line of the freshman football team of the University of California at Los Angeles has been augmented by the addition of a diminutive guard weighing some 250 pounds, more or less, Coach Freddy Oster, Bruin frosh mentor, announced yesterday. The new addition is one J. Robertson, a boy from Idaho, who is sure to see action on Freddy Oster's team of yearling giants this season.

Robertson was in Los Angeles when the football practice opened, but due to some difficulty in getting his credits in to the U.C.L.A. registrar, was unable to register in school until last week. He came out for football the last of last week, but he has been in training for several weeks. Robertson weighed 258 pounds when he first came here, but is down to about 245 now.

Coach Oster started drilling his peagreeners yesterday afternoon for their first game of the season next Saturday against the powerful Long Beach Junior College eleven as a preliminary contest to the Bruin varsity tilt with Fresno State Teachers' College at Westwood. Up until now the Westwood yearlings have been drilled on Southern California plays to practice with the varsity, but yesterday different offensive plays were inaugurated.

ANDY DI VODI WINS FROM BILLY ALGER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30. (AP)—Andy Di Vodi, New York, slugged his way to a judges' decision over Billy Alger, Phoenix, Ariz., in a slashing ten-round bout at the arena tonight. Alger substituted for Baby Joe Gans, who was unable to appear because of a sprained wrist received in training.

Matt Adgie, Philadelphia, scored a knockout over Tony Marullo, New Orleans, in less than thirty seconds. Two rights to the jaw dropped the southerner twice. He was practically out when the referee stopped the fight and gave the decision to Adgie.

FLYWEIGHTS STAR IN PASADENA RING

Continuing the policy of "ladies free" for another week, the Pasadena Arena is going to offer another flyweight main event which promises much action. Tommy Hughes, one of America's outstanding flyweights, meets Mickey Erno, a very clever lad who used to fight a great deal at the arena, but who has been in the East for the last two years.

The six-round semifinal will mark the second professional fight of Royal Dutch Elliott, formerly national amateur heavyweight champion. His opponent will be a tough Mexican boy, Ray Ortega.

Four-round bouts will be Bert Wagner vs. Happy Romero, 150 pounds; Kid Easu vs. Bolo Mision 135 pounds; Stutts Houk vs. Morrie Eagleson, 160 pounds.

TROTTER SETS RECORD

LEXINGTON (Ky.) Sept. 30. (AP) The Hanover Farm's Hanover Bertha lowered the world's record for two-year-old trotters at the Grand Circuit races here today, making the final heat of the Kentucky Futurity in 2m. 3 1-2s.

BEARS FEEL CONFIDENT

California Expects to Give Trojans and Cards Real Run for Coast Honors

BERKELEY, Sept. 30. (Exclusive)—With a feeling of renewed confidence and a strong suspicion that they will give the University of Southern California and Stanford something to worry about before these all-important football games are staged, the University of California's Golden Bears today entered upon the third week of the practice schedule.

It was plainly noticeable that Coach Clarence (Nibs) Price extended his field of attention today and watched with appreciative eye the antics of a few more potential first-string men. Particular reference is made to Ellis (Togo) Thornton, Joe Hickingbothan, Dick Scarlett, Lytel Brown and Leland Rice. The clamor has been loud and persistent for the removal of Stanley Barr in the place of some one, any one but some one.

Since Rice performed so nobly against the esthetic Santa Clara Broncs, the hue and cry is raised in his favor. Rice showed much of speed, daring and passing accuracy against the Santa Claras. He passed to Thornton for one touchdown and personally scored another touchdown on a slashing 11-yard dash through tackle. It happens that Barr made an exceptional showing on a very rainy afternoon in 1927. He was sent into the breach against the University of Washington, the field was a swamp, everyone was falling and slipping and sputtering, but Barr mud-horsed his way through and got off to some sensational runs. He was made. Since then he has not done much and bleacher critics call incessantly for his removal. The real probability is that Barr will get what amounts to the "bounce" and that Rice will see action aplenty, particularly if the present rate of efficiency of performance is maintained.

Hickingbothan, who, recently was accorded the highest honors an undergraduate student can hope for, mainly election to Phi Beta Kappa, national honor scholastic society, gave adequate signs of his talent. Hickingbothan was called upon to make a 2-yard plunge to a touchdown, he got across by 5 yards. The Phi Beta is a junior this year and, according to the way Price watched him today he stands a fine chance of beating out Clarence (Moose) Garrity for fullback, although the latter's defensive work gives forth signs of rivaling that of Charley Schmidt's before the season is over. It will be remembered that Schmidt is the fullback whom the press praised without limit last season for a ferocity on the defense unequalled on the Pacific Coast if not throughout the entire country.

Thornton is serving his last year as a gridster. He looks the part of a mature, well-carried performer this season. He caught a pass from Rice last Saturday that was a remarkable piece of work. He also is vastly improved in general defensive play and it may be that he will furnish Price with good reserve power at end. In signal drill today Price gave Dick Scarlett ample opportunity to learn the plays and to comprehend the varsity system. Scarlett's main contribution Saturday was a 9-yard gain on a swiftly and beautifully executed short pass from Lom. Scarlett is fast. He played freshman football at St. Mary's College before enrolling at California.

Because the Santa Clarans showed up a California weakness on aerial defense, Price today began to build up protection in this quarter. The truth of the matter is that Price has been paying far more attention to a general offense than to the different departments of defense. They are smart, flexible football heads in the California backfield, however, and there is no reason to believe that the Bears will not have a suitable defense for the aerial attack which U.S.C. and Stanford undoubtedly will unleash in the coming major engagements of the season.

TENNIS STARS LEAVE FOR MEXICAN TOURNEY

Ten American tennis aces five will entrain this morning at 10 o'clock for Mexico City to compete in the Mexican national tournament beginning Saturday morning and continuing for a period of eight days.

John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., member of the Davis Cup squad, heads the male invaders, further comprised of Fred Mercur, Harrisburg, Pa., and J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange (N. J.) clay court doubles champions; Ben Gorchakoff, intercollegiate doubles player, representing the L.A.A.C., and Edward Berry, L.A.T.C.

Edith Cross, San Francisco, member of the Wightman Cup team, third ranking in this country, and partner of Helen Wills in the recent foreign invasion, heads the women's quintet. Midge Gladman of U.S.C., Louise McFarland, Pasadena; Mrs. Marion Williams, La Jolla, and Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, complete the list.

John Van Ryn will pair in the men's doubles with Ben Gorchakoff and in the mixed with Midge Gladman. Mercur and Hall are the second men's combination. Miss Cross and Miss Gladman are paired in the women's doubles. Josephine Cruickshank and Ben Gorchakoff and Edward Berry and Louise McFarland are the remaining pairings.

The Mexican home talent includes Bob Kinsey, former American doubles champion with his brother, Howard, and Richard Tapia and Victor Ponce de Leon, two alternate Davis Cup youngsters of Mexico.

PANTHERS PLAN TO GIVE REDLANDS BAD AFTERNO

Outweighed nearly twenty pounds to the man and with only seventeen men in uniform, one of whom was delegated to hold the yard sticks, Coach Ralph Welch's fighting California Christian College Panthers bowed in defeat before the mighty Aztecs of San Diego State College Saturday in the southern city, but not without giving the southerners a big run for their money, and causing no little anxiety to Coach C. E. Peterson of the Aztecs.

Had it not been for their lack of substitutes and lightness the Panthers might have been able to turn the tide and crush their ancient grid rivals, for Welch's team actually outplayed and outfought the Staters throughout the first period, took the play away from them twice in the second quarter and made matters as unpleasant as possible in the second half, according to the San Diego press.

Resorting to passes early in the game the Panthers completed ten out of twenty-two attempted for large gains, and had but two passes intercepted. Thompson at quarter tossed the passes while Capt. Newberry and Tower received.

The Panthers emerged with few minor injuries that should not keep anyone out of next Saturday's game with the Redlands eleven, who last year trimmed the locals, 15-7. Inasmuch as the Panthers are still aiming at membership in the Southern California Conference they are taking the Redlands game seriously, and promise an inter noon for the Maroons.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Big expansion makes places for 30 additional salesmen in a permanent capacity.

An opportunity to become associated with a prominent Los Angeles institution with an offering of the conservative, confidence-inspiring type—something you can talk with honest enthusiasm and have your efforts yield cash. Also an opportunity to build up a permanent clientele that will mean a regular income to you for the years to come.

Present sales force rolled up a million dollar dollar volume in approximately eight months. Our new program calls for a million dollar volume in three months. This gives you an opportunity to cash in on work accomplished by our present organization.

If you are puzzled about what to do, come with us, where your experience and ability will count, right from the start.

To save your waiting in line for interviews, Charles W. Preston, the widely known sales production specialist, will explain what is and the points that sell it Monday night.

He will also give the first lecture of his famous course of salesmanship—a course that makes money—makers of men. The entire course is free to all.

Tuesday Night
at 8 o'clock
Second Floor
740 So. Broadway, L. A.

A SALES REPRESENTATIVE
OF REAL ACHIEVEMENT

to care for its growing clientele, an established and reputable personal service corporation—the largest of its kind on the Pacific Coast—is about to add to its staff one and possibly three sales representatives for local office. And for Orange, Riverside and San Diego Counties.

The term "representative" is used advisedly, for the man or men selected must be REPRESENTATIVES in every sense of the word — in character, sales caliber and appearance—men who can get to the very best type of people, and after getting to them, talk their language—impress them.

The affiliation offered is not only a most dignified and congenial one, but an exceptionally lucrative one. The earnings of the right man should be very quickly at the rate or not less than $10,000 a year. The earnings of one of our force is at the rate of more than $2000 a month.

This is not to be classed with the general run of an inquiry for salesmen. It is in every sense an exceptional opportunity worthy of the investigation of the most ambitious type of men.

If you are of this class, willing to follow instructions and able to finance yourself, phone TR. 3801, for appointment. Ask for Mr. Rogers.

My time is valuable and so is yours. I am making no misleading statements by taking up your time in submitting a proposition, which is the same old worked out methods, or making an ad appealing and then after your investigation find a proposition disappointing.

Mink Destroy Trout

Low water in the brooks is making trout an easy prey for mink, according to one of the old-time anglers of Springfield. Most brooks are only trickles between chains of small pools and the trout are blocked in these pools so that it is easy for mink to dive in and get them, as there is no way for the fish to escape. While angling near Dayville this fisherman saw a mink coming down the stream and scooping into each pool. He kept still to see how near the animal would come to him before it saw him. It was so busy feasting on fish that he was able to reach out and tap it with his fishing pole. Shortly afterward another mink was so intent on gorging itself that it came even nearer than the first one before it saw the fisherman.—[Boston Globe.

A B C's for the Kurds

The Kurds, a primitive people who live in the mountainous regions of soviet Armenia (still larger numbers of them are to be found in the eastern district of Turkey,) are to learn their A B C's for the first time. Hitherto they have never possessed an alphabet and have been inclined to keep their children away from schools unless they were attracted by some material benefits, such as free hot meals and clothing. Now an alphabet, adapted to the peculiar sounds of the Kurd language, has been drawn up and the task of introducing educational measures has been made correspondingly easier.—[Christian Science Monitor.

SHIPPING NEWS AND ACTIVITIES AT LOS ANGELES HARBOR

SHIP LINES PUT UP COTTON RATE

Boost by Foreign Carriers Brings Protest

Loss to Southwest Growers Set at $150,000

Creation of American Flag Service Urged

BY WALDO DRAKE

Cotton growers of the Southwest are faced with a minimum loss of $150,000 on this season's cotton crop, already contracted for European delivery, as a result of arbitrary action of the European steamship conference, composed entirely of foreign lines, in raising the rates on west coast cotton exports from 60 cents per 100 pounds to 70 cents on all contracted tonnage and to 75 cents per 100 on all shipments without contract guarantees, it was learned ysterday.

As a result A. H. Lamberth, president of the California-Arizona Cotton Association, and W. J. Simpson, president of the Los Angeles Cotton Exchange, have protested to the United States Shipping Board in telegrams urging the earliest possible establishment of an American-flag line from the Pacific Coast to Europe. Members of a committee named by the cotton growers to combat the action of European-Pacific lines yesterday explained the seriousness of the situation.

"We feel that the action of the steamship lines, all of them under foreign flags, was very unjust, and more than unjust because they waited until the cotton growers had completed all contracts for delivery of the 1930 crop to European markets before they announced these drastic increases in freight rates," said a committe chairman. "We have 350,000 bales of cotton this season, largest in the history of the industry in the Southwest, ready to move out to Europe through Los Angeles Harbor, and then, after we agree to deliver the crop at contracted prices, we are suddenly informed that we must pay an increase of 60 cents per bale on all European exports, which means a direct loss of between $150,000 and $250,000 to the growers.

"The cotton industry has materially aided European shipowners in development of their present large fleets. Therfore, we feel that in their present arbitrary action they have repudiated our confidence and aid."

The 1929 and 1930 cotton crop for California, Arizona and New Mexico, by government estimate, will total 469,000 bales, of which 350,000 bales will be shipped through the local port and the remaining tonnage through San Diego and San Francisco. Last season's crop, which established a new record to date, totaled 330,000 bales, of which 275,000 bales were shipped out of Los Angeles Harbor. The present season's crop is already moving to tidewater.

STEPTEMBER TRAFFIC AT PORT SCORES GAIN

Commerce in and out of Los Angeles Harbor during September just ended totaled 2,243,929 tons, valued at $88,881,277, according to estimates by the Marine Exchange. It is a gain of $14,000,000 over September a year ago, and $431,000 over August, this year. Every trade gained materially over the corresponding month last year, except exports and imports, which dropped $900,000 each. Receipts from Hawaii more than doubled in the twelve months. Oil shipments totaled 11,499,000 barrels, compared with 8,376,000 a year ago. Lumber receipts were 103,766,000 board feet, bringing the year's total to date to 915,698,000 feet. Ships entering port numbered 731 during the month, compared with 618 in September, 1928.

Harry Johnston of Los Angeles has invented a beveled piston ring which has effected material savings on internal combustion motors and on steam, and which soon is to make a bid for installation on ships. Its effectiveness on motor launches, as well as locomotives, automobiles and airplanes is declared proved. The ring is beveled and is seated in a beveled groove machined into the piston. The conical effect is said to prevent leakage of pressure and consequently give more power with a lighter throttle. A seventy-foot Seattle boat so equipped increased its speed one and one-half knots with a 50 per cent saving in fuel, according to Earl W. Braga, Los Angeles customs broker, who represents the device in marine and railroad trade.

Forty-seven passengers sailed on the Dollar liner President Johnson yesterday noon for the Orient and around the world. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Martel of Pasadena, who will attend the Engineering Congress at Tokio, for which Dollar's next liner, President Jackson, will embark several hundred delegates.

Construction of five new tank motorships, all expected to be familiar callers here for petroleum products, are assured by the government award of $6,304,687 to the Motor Tankship Corporation of New York.

These vessels, of 13,450 deadweight tons each, will cost $1,681,240 each on which the government is lending three-fourths. Construction will be by the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation of Chester, Pa.

They will displace 18,900 tons and have a speed of eleven knots, propelled by single-screw Diesels.

Capt. Etienne Barth, dean of French Line skippers, yesterday brought the company's freighter Indiana in from Havre on her sixteenth successive voyage to the Coast. Capt. Barth, who has sailed under the house flag of the Compagnie Generale Trans-Atlantique for twenty years, is the only commander in the French Line fleet who hails from the Mediterranean—his home being Marseilles.

He announced yesterday that the French Line training ship Jacques Cartier, which is to be the fifth unit of the line's new express passenger-refrigerator fleet to the Pacific Coast, will, accordingly be renamed the West Virginia.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30. (AP)—Capt. Paul Schulter, who achieved fame for navigating an airplane to Honolulu in the Dole race, and then renounced air travel in favor of the sea "because its safer," was picked up off the coast of Florida after drifting in an open boat for three days, it was revealed in messages received here today. Capt. Schulter was master of the steamer Wisconsin Bridge, which foundered off Florida in a hurricane last Wednesday. He and his officers and crew took to lifeboats and were rescued. No details of the rescue or experiences of the men were contained in the brief messages received here.

The Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, which rammed and sank the coastal passenger liner San Juan off Pigeon Point, August 29, was put on the auction block today and repurchased by the Standard Oil Company for $425,000. Owners of the San Juan, the Los Angeles and San Francisco Navigation Company, libeled the Dodd for $1,800,000 shortly after the accident. The sale of the tanker was to limit the liability on the part of the Standard Oil Company.

SEATTLE, Sept. 30.—Halibut fishermen operating from Seattle, caught fish during September that sold for $185,000. The catch represented ninety-five trips of fifty vessels and was considerably larger than that of September of last year. The halibut catch totaled 1,030,070 pounds that sold for $162,382. Sable and mixed cod made up the remainder.

The Montanan of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, will leave this week for the Atlantic Coast with a cargo of Pacific Northwest goods. She will lift 5300 tons of canned goods, paper and other manufactured products in Seattle and Tacoma.

PORTLAND, Sept. 30.—Burchard and Fisken, agents for the line here, announced today that vessels of the Java-Pacific line will call at this port in the future when sufficient inducement offers. Shipments from here in the past have been routed via San Francisco.

At the same time Burchard and Fisken announced the line has eliminated Hong Kong and Manila from its ports of call.

Three Companies to Open Office

Officials of the Pere Marquette, the Hocking Valley and the Chesapeake Railway companies announced yesterday that joint offices of the three companies will be opened at 8:30 a.m. today at 731 Central Building.

Increase in the business, industrial and commercial prosperity of the Southland was given as the reason for establishment of the office of the three companies which represent a part of the holdings of the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland, O.

"Freight business in Los Angeles has become tremendous and the freight business being handled out of this territory, with the large volume of intercoastal trade, convinced the officials of the companies that the establishment of an office here was necessary," said D. R. Evans, who will be commercial agent for the three lines.

LIQUOR PRESCRIPTION PLOT PAIR SENTENCED

Sentence was passed yesterday by United States District Judge Henning on Eric Maas and Charles A. Richter, who were convicted by a jury of defrauding the government in the manipulation of prescriptions for liquor. Maas was sentenced to six months in the County Jail and to pay a fine of $1500, and Richter was ordered to pay a fine of $750. The government adduced testimony to show that the two, as agents of eastern liquor interests, purchased large numbers of prescriptions and supplied them to druggists to increase the sale of the liquor.

PHONE LINK EXTENDED TO CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

All points in Czecho-Slovakia now can be reached by trans-Atlantic telephone, according to an announcement yesterday by M. L. Stannard, division manager of the Southern California Telephone Company. Effective today, the service is available from all points in the United States and Cuba, and from those points in Canada and Mexico which now receive trans-Atlantic service. Twenty-two foreign countries now can be reached by trans-Atlantic phone at any hour of the day or night.

SCHOOL FRIENDS ASSIST GENTHER

Former Pupils and Teachers Testify in Case

Instructor Ousted by Board Seeks Reinstatement

Witnesses Declare Order Maintained in Class

Former pupils and teacher associates of John Genther went into court yesterday to aid him in his fight before Superior Judge Yankwich to compel the Los Angeles Board of Education to reinstate him as an instructor in the city school system and to pay him back salary from September, 1927, the time he was dropped from the pay roll on an asserted charge of incompetency and being unfit to serve. The trial of the case, which started last week, was resumed yesterday.

Genther, formerly a teacher in the commercial department of the Franklin Junior High School, filed a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the Board of Education to take him back.

DISCIPLINE UNDER FIRE

During the first days of the hearing numerous witnesses were called by Deputy County Counsel Pritchard, counsel for the school board, to prove the contentions of the board that the teacher failed to preserve discipline in his classes and that he refused to assist properly pupils who came to him for instruction.

Former pupils and teachers who taught in schools where Genther was employed were placed on the witness stand yesterday afternoon by Attorney William A. Alderson, his counsel, to offset the testimony given by other pupils and teachers testifying for the board.

STUDENTS GIVEN AID

Marcus A. McClure, who was a teacher at the James A. Foshay Junior High School when Genther taught there, declared he never had observed any disorder in Genther's classes nor had he ever heard him refuse to give a child instruction.

"Did you ever hear a pupil ask him for instruction?" asked Attorney Pritchard on cross-examination.

"No, I didn't," was the reply.

Miss Jean Steffen, a pupil under Genther in 1925, asserted that she never had any trouble understanding Genther; that he explained problems to his class and that there was no more disturbance in his classroom than in any other.

NO DISORDER SEEN

Tisutomu Shiraishe, 18 years of age, a bright and alert Japanese student, who was under Genther's instruction in 1925, said he never saw any disorder in the classroom or ever heard the teacher refuse to assist pupils who went to him for instruction.

Mrs. Lillian Meepost, 19, a former pupil, now married, corroborated the testimony of the other pupils.

Among the teachers who testified for Genther were Mrs. Carrie S. Martin and O. Lefevre.

The trial of the case will be resumed this morning.

THEFT PAIR OWN 'FENCE,' POLICE SAY

Couple Held on Burglary Charges Declared to Have Sold Plunder in Shop

MRS. STELLA MARCHALSKI

Elimination of a fence, as police term the receiver of stolen property, successfully was accomplished for six weeks by Walter Marchalski, 27 years of age, and his wife Stella, 24, by the unusual method of stocking their own clothing shop with goods taken in numerous Wilshire and Hollywood burglaries, according to Captain of Detectives McCaleb.

Marchalski and his wife were taken into custody yesterday by Detective Lieutenants Perry and Misner on burglary charges. In a store which they operated at 7930 Santa Monica Boulevard the detectives reported finding approximately $15,000 worth of wearing apparen which, the detectives assert, was obtained in residence and apartment-house burglaries.

WALTER MARCHALSKI

Apprehension of the pair resulted from tracing of a Michigan automobile license, the detectives said. A week ago the apartment of Mrs. A. Cummings at 427 South Normandie avenue was entered. A neighbor, nearly run down by an automobile leaving a side alley, jotted down the license number and turned it over to police. Detectives traced the license number and learned Marchalski's local address, they said.

Fortune Teller Fined $500

Rev. Archibald T. Rainey of the National Colored Spiritualistic Association was fined $500 yesterday by Municipal Judge Curtis following his conviction by a jury of telling fortunes without a city permit. An additional fine of $500 on a second count of the same charge was suspended by the court.

Policewoman Mary Ross, called as a witness by Deputy City Prosecutor Fox, testified Rainey outlined her past and future life in his office at 1217 South Hobart Boulevard in return for a fee of $1.

Louis Kearney, defense attorney, gave oral notice of appeal, on which Judge Curtis fixed bail of $600.

SPOUSE OF SINGER FILES NEW ACTION

Mrs. Hester Stiles

MRS. STILES FILES SUIT FOR BALM

Mrs. MacGinnis Named by Singer's Wife in $350,000 Alienation Action

Litigation between Mrs. Hester H. Stiles and Mrs. Eloise MacGinnis, reputed to be the wife of a wealthy copper magnate, over the asserted theft of the affections of Vernon Stiles, nationally known singer, was resumed yesterday in Superior Court with the filing of a suit for $350,000 damages by Mrs. Stiles against Mrs. MacGinnis.

The issues in the case were first up in court more than a year ago, at which time Mrs. Stiles instituted a similar action against Mrs. MacGinnis and a divorce suit against her husband. Both complaints were dropped in September, 1928, when it was reported Mr. and Mrs. Stiles had effected a reconciliation.

The present alienation case was preceded last week by the filing of a divorce suit by Stiles under the name of M. V. Stiles. Stiles charges his wife with cruelty and possession of a violent temper, but Mrs. Stiles replied yesterday with a cross-complaint in which she seeks a divorce on grounds of cruelty and infidelity. Mrs. Stiles names Mrs. MacGinnis co-respondent in the divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Stiles says her husband left her December 28, 1928.

Mrs. Stiles asks $150,000 damages for the asserted alienation, $100,000 exemplary damages and $100,000 as damages for asserted wrongful acts of the defendant.

FORMER WIFE CHARGED CRUELTY

PORTLAND (Me.) Sept. 30. (AP)—Vernon Stiles, singer, whose second wife today filed suit in Los Angeles against Mrs. John R. MacGinnis, charging alienation of affections, was well known in this State.

His first wife, Mrs. Eugene Stiles, a native of Rumania, was granted a divorce from the singer in Lewiston in 1923 on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. The controversy developed over the custody of their daughter who now makes her home with a Lewiston family.

The first Mrs. Stiles testified at the hearing that Stiles struck and choked her during an asserted argument over another woman.

Puppy Shows Judge He's in Good Health

Bozo, a Boston bull pup, is in perfect health, Municipal Judge Gualano decided yesterday after watching the canine play around the courtroom for several minutes. Following the decision, Bozo left the courtroom with Rudolph Binder, 6530 Pacific Boulevard, although K. J. Davitt, 436 Harvard Boulevard, brought him before the judge.

Binder told Judge Gualano that he bought the dog from Davitt several weeks ago for $20, but that he developed severe abdominal pains within a short time afterward, letting his new master know that he was a sick puppy. He was returned to Davitt, who refused to return the $20, whereupon Binder brought suit in small claims court to collect. Following Bozo's performance in the courtroom, Binder agreed with the judge's decision and left with the puppy under his arm. The case was dismissed.

B." and the inside of the band bore the number 31657. Mr. Cooper was informed that the United States government is spending large sums of money on migratory birds, tagging them and sending them forth to see how far and in what direction they will travel.

SCHOOL CHIEFS OPEN SESSIONS

California Superintendents Meet in Pasadena

Three Hundred Welcomed at Hotel Huntington

President Attests Great Value of Gathering

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 30.—Asserting that the meeting "will have more bearing on educational policies than even the convention of the National Education Association," C. L. McLane, president of the California Board of Education, welcomed 300 delegates to the annual convention of California school superintendents, which opened at Hotel Huntington today.

The opening session was devoted to greetings and addresses by Vierling Kersey, State Superintendent, and Walter L. Bachrodt, superintendent of San Jose schools.

The first business session of the annual meeting of the Association of California Public School Superintendents was held this afternoon.

In calling the convention to order this morning, President McLane stressed the importance of the gathering and of the opportunity of the delegates for carrying the ideas obtained at the gathering to their respective school systems.

"The era in which we find ourselves," he said, "is one with a definite characteristic.

"That characteristic is the stressing of the importance of those distinctly sociological aspects of education which center around the future of our youth. Our own group finds its challenge in the responsibility of working together for educational advancement."

Greetings of this city to the delegates was extended by John A. Sexson, local superintendent.

Davis Divorce Comes Up Today

Airing of the marital troubles of Mrs. Clara Davis and her husband, Len C. Davis, cemetery owner of Glendale, is scheduled to take place today in the court of Superior Judge Tappaan. The hearing on the wife's petition for a divorce and the husband's cross-complaine was set for yesterday but was postponed until today when the court was informed that Mrs. Davis's attorney was busy in the trial of another case.

Mrs. Davis names a corespondent and asserts her husband is worth $2,500,000. Davis denies the accusations of his wife and in his cross-complaint names two men. He also declares his property will not exceed $500,000 in value.

ADMITS COIN BOGUS
